Stanford Fire Committee embraces challenges with more aid for Ukraine

by Curtis Schmidt
and Rich Thomaselli

It's been almost a year of missions accomplished, and now, even more missions to come for members of the Town of Stanford Fire Department and its volunteers.

What began as a novel idea to help fellow volunteer firefighters in war-torn Ukraine has become an incredible adventure filled with challenges – and successes – that none of the local firefighters could have foreseen.

Dubbed Stanford's "Help For Ukraine Committee," and led by Co-Chairman Ed Zick, the group spent several months last year working to collect much-needed fire equipment and emergency medical supplies for a fire department in a village in Ukraine. Zick and a small group of local firefighters traveled to Syracuse in August to watch as 3,000 pounds of equipment was loaded to be shipped overseas – to Gdansk, Poland and then to Ukraine.

The first batch of supplies arrived in the village of Manevychi, Ukraine in late October. Included was everything from bandages to face-masks to body boards and more. Everything donated was from the Stanford Fire Department and fire departments across Dutchess and surrounding counties.

"The idea was well received," Zick said. "We appreciate everybody who got involved in one way or another."

The on-going war has resulted in many embargoes and other sanctions. That has meant a severe limitation on moving supplies and other items, as well as refugees, across the borders. So Zick and his colleagues did not know when, or if, the supplies would arrive.

Zick recalls the words of "Fred," his contact in Syracuse, when the shipment began its journey overseas. "Over and over, he would say 'I don't understand why you would do this for my people, but God does.' It made all those setbacks and sleepless nights worth it," said Zick.

Zick recounted the events that transpired in transporting the initial shipment.

"Fred (our Ukraine contact from Syracuse) flew to Poland, met the ship, took possession of our cargo in Gdansk, and trucked it to his hometown of Manevychi before categorizing and transporting the supplies to the front lines of fighting. Shortly afterward, he coordinated a Zoom meeting between our committee members and the chief fire official and hospital medical director of the province. They wanted to directly acknowledge receipt of our cargo, and to express their profound gratitude for our contributions. They described how dire the situation had become. Firefighters were battling blazes in sneakers, turnout gear was insufficient to offer bodily protection, and fire hoses were rendered useless by Russian artillery strafing."

After speaking with these men, Stanford's "Help For Ukraine Committee" unanimously decided to send a second cargo, which would include heavy winter clothing, boots, and medicine. Three women on the committee volunteered to collect, coordinate and pack all donations received.

"Once again, we appealed to our local fire companies, communities, churches, outreach groups and resource

Editor's note: This is the first in a series of articles that will inform readers about Dutchess County's Climate Action Planning Institute (CAPI), an innovative 16-month program to identify and address ways for local governments to become more sustainable, involving County Government and selected towns and villages that were chosen to participate.

Nine municipalities in Dutchess County are participating in the Climate Action Planning Institute (CAPI) to identify a path toward more sustainable local government operations. They include Dutchess County government; the cities of Beacon and Poughkeepsie; the towns of Amenia, Pleasant Valley, Poughkeepsie and Rhinebeck; and the villages of Rhinebeck and Wappingers Falls.

CAPI is a project of the Hudson Valley Regional Council (HVRC), an organization of county governments that provides a regional perspective, offers education and outreach, technical assistance, and advocacy to the communities it serves. The initiative

Climate action program kicks off in nine municipalities

is funded by the NYS DEC Climate Smart Communities Grant Program.

The Dutchess CAPI group had its first meeting on Jan. 18 at the Cornell Cooperative Extension Dutchess County site in Millbrook, and from all accounts the program is off to a promising start.

"I thought it was a productive first meeting," said CAPI Coordinator Mary Lambert, who made the kick-off presentation to the group. "There were representatives from all nine communities. They seemed engaged, asked good questions about climate action planning, and are excited to begin the process of charting and more actively managing greenhouse gas emissions in their municipalities."

Carla Castillo, HVRC's Interim Executive Director, added, "I was making the rounds [during Lambert's presentation]; as I walked around and spoke to the participants, [many of them] were saying to me that they were so thankful to have a process like this: streamlined, with relevant resources [made available to them], because there's so much out there, just looking at it is overwhelming."

"It was a chance for us all to be in the same room together," said Village of Rhinebeck Trustee Vanessa Bertozzi. "The program had been postponed by COVID for a couple of years now. For me it was great, because I was able to get our mayor [Gary Bassett] to come, our treasurer [Karen McLaughlin] and our superintendent of public works [Kyle Eighmy]. It shows we take it very seriously, and shows the [village] team why we're doing it and why it's important."

In addition, Michael Forlenza, who serves on the village's Climate Smart Task Force, was inspired to volunteer for the program.

During the 16-month program, the participants will examine municipal processes, infrastructure and ecosystems; plan ambitious but realistic targets and actions; make data-driven decisions; identify community needs, including those of vulnerable populations; and engage with residents and officials alike, to address the highest priority community issues.

As a starting point, a baseline inventory will be taken of each municipalities' greenhouse gas sources and emission levels.

"This program is really focused on the process of municipal greenhouse gas emissions management, creating a target emissions reduction goal and charting a course to reach that goal," Lambert said.

Bertozzi said, "We'll be gathering data from our Central Hudson bills, gas mileage, fuel oil that goes to heat municipal buildings [and more]." The information will be input to a software tool called ClearPath, developed by the International Council for Local Environmental Initiatives (ICLEI), and will be utilized to forecast models for lowering greenhouse gas emissions. This data will be presented to the local boards and residents.

Castillo said the greenhouse gas inventory will be powerful because the municipalities will be able to determine their "energy hogs" and develop a plan to address them.

"It will allow them to prioritize the buildings, the projects [that should take precedence], and many of these projects end up saving municipalities money," she said.

"That's where it gets kind of interesting," said Bertozzi, "when you start looking at those visualizations and create a plan on how you're going to achieve your goals."

Lambert noted that "cross collaboration is part of the goal of the program; discussion among cohort participants, comparing their greenhouse gas emissions by sector, will enable them to share learnings, ideas, and best practices."

HVRC will oversee the process and provide support to the participants as needed, along with partner organization ICLEI, Local Governments for Sustainability, a global network of more than 2,500 local and regional governments committed to sustainable development. The CAPI cohort will meet with Lambert and Castillo 11 more times over the next 15 months; in addition, the municipalities will hold their own meetings, brainstorm solutions, seek input from their boards and the public and, ultimately, create their individual Government Operations Climate Action Plans.

It's ambitious, to say the least, but individuals like Bertozzi have the commitment to follow through. Her personal story highlights the need for action.

"I had been living in Red Hook, Brooklyn, and had a new baby; I was a first-time Mom. Hurricane Sandy hit, we had to evacuate, and that was really terrifying," she said. "I had a moment [where I realized] this is not a fluke, it's the new normal. Once the veils are lifted, you can't un-see what's happening."

When Bertozzi and her family moved to Rhinebeck a few years later, she wanted to be involved in her local community and "really make a difference." She began volunteering on climate-change programs, and then Mayor Gary Bassett encouraged her to run for office, and she was elected as trustee. As the Village's environmental specialist, Bertozzi is the Climate Smart Communities Task Force Coordinator.

"The good news is ... you can not only do better for the environment, but it's also a cost savings," Bertozzi said. There will be some up-front costs involved, she said, but those will pay off in the long run. "The other good news is that the federal and state government are earmarking a lot of funding to make this transition."

Castillo said this work model has the potential for "future opportunities for collaboration."

"[The participants will be] able to see eye-to-eye and be able to learn from each other," she said. "Even a county will invariably have some similarities with a village when you look at energy use data."

Lambert added that there may be "future opportunities for grants and other funding mechanisms based on the work completed. We're constantly thinking about bringing grant opportunities to our members."

Castillo said "CAPI 1.0" was launched in 2017-2018. That NYSERDA-funded pilot program was mostly comprised of Ulster County municipalities along with one from Putnam and one from Dutchess, and focused solely on the greenhouse gas inventory. This led to the DEC-funded grant for Dutchess CAPI from the Climate Smart Communities (CSC) Grant Program. The CSC program is aimed at greenhouse gas reductions and savings increases through specific Pledge Element Actions. Communities that complete enough actions can then become CSC-certified and qualify for potential DEC funding.

"We were finding that a lot of municipalities wanted to [become certified]," Castillo said.

To learn more about CAPI, CSC and other initiatives, visit <https://hudsonvalleyregionalcouncil.org/>.

"We're very excited that CAPI is under way," said Castillo. "The Mid Hudson, as you know, is a hotbed of sustainability, and this work is really valuable." It prompts residents to take notice that their local governments are "maintaining their own house, and it sets a really positive precedent and gets the community to consider their own [energy-saving efforts]."

"The leadership from these municipalities is exciting to see," Lambert said, adding that it "underscores the momentum" in the Hudson Valley for taking action on climate change. "These folks are embarking on some challenging but really important work. I'm truly inspired by them."

City of Poughkeepsie approves strategic updates to Waterfront Revitalization Program

The City of Poughkeepsie has approved strategic updates to its Local Waterfront Revitalization Program (LWRP), reflecting changes that have occurred to the area since the City last adopted an LWRP more than 20 years ago. The program updates includes:

- Increasing public access and working on efforts to create a continuous public walkway along the waterfront.
- Resolving conflicts that may occur with increased waterside uses and ensuring compliance with the policies.
- Incorporating principles of sustainability and potential impacts of climate change.
- Improving chances of receiving state funding for capital projects.

"We all know the City of Poughkeepsie's waterfront has so much potential," said Mayor Marc Nelson. "Updating the LWRP has been a long and complicated process, but an essential one if we are going to protect the valuable assets and maximize the many opportunities on the waterfront. I want to thank Common Council Chair Natasha Brown for her collaborative approach to her new role in city government. With her leadership the Council has at last taken a critical step to assure we can achieve strategic and sustainable development along our southern waterfront, and indeed through out the entire LWRP zone."

Brown said, "Only those who have closely watched the long arduous process play out over the last several years will fully appreciate the satisfaction I have at this particular accomplishment being the first order of business as we begin a new year with new leadership both on the Council and in the Mayor's Office. Thank you to the City staff, our consultants, the Waterfront Advisory Committee and the many stakeholders and partners who did the hard work to get this across the finish line."

The City of Poughkeepsie's previous LWRP was locally adopted in 1998, but was never adopted by New York State. The new plan expands the defined zone to include the Fall Kill area with the focus being to increase public access, mitigate flooding and improve creek conditions.

The adoption of the LWRP, and state approval, opens pathways to grant funding to support local projects. Potential projects include connecting and extending the riverside walkways, providing storage and rental opportunities for kayaks, creating a dog park, building a floating dock for swimming and improving signage and creating interactive maps to help people better find their way and enjoy the waterfront. The "New to You" Thrift Shop at St. Christopher's Church Parish Center on Benner Road in Red Hook has been open since June, and we must thank everyone who has contributed to our success. We are hopeless shoppers ourselves and have tried to make our shop as welcome as we can so patrons can enjoy their experience and find some bargains, as well.

If you wish, we're happy to offer advice while you're trying on that perfect blouse or dress. But fear not, we are not just for womenfolk. Men come in to peruse books and chefs may find that perfect pan. Lots of paintings and frames line our walls and are updated regularly. An empty spot fills right up with another interesting item. One thing we can say is that we have made new friends and welcomed old friends and we always have a good time.

Is it time to rearrange that closet? Or organize your kitchen? How about those unwanted gifts? (We won't breathe a word!) The "New to You" Thrift Shop at St. Christopher's Parish Center is available to take your nearly new donations every Saturday. We take women's clothing, tchotchkes, housewares, books, lamps but NO MUGS. I'm serious, nobody wants them and we don't either!

We are open on Thursdays from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 2 pm. We would love to see you.

snowsuits and every imaginable piece of clothing and bedding essential for firefighters and their families to endure winter conditions on or near the battlefields."

The second drive ended just after Christmas.

Zick said, with additional and generous financial support - much of which was contributed anonymously - the group was able to purchase generators needed to keep firehouses and hospital areas heated and powered. Additionally, they located a U.S. manufacturer of potassium iodide, a compound used to protect the thyroid gland in the event of radioactive contamination should Russian bombings strike at or near nuclear reactor plants.

Zick said his group was able to purchase 5,700 adult doses for 10 percent of the retail cost. Also contained in their current shipment are 300 tourniquets, useful in stemming severe bleeding and extremity damage incurred by battlefield wounds.

"After everything was collected and packaged for transport, Fred and his brother drove down to the Stanford Fire House, where they and our members loaded a 20-foot box truck. These brothers will personally monitor the cargo's progress from Secaucus, NJ, through Poland, into Ukraine, until it reaches its destination in crucial, war-torn areas of their homeland. The cargo is scheduled to arrive during the second or third week of February."

Roddey appointed principal at Red Hook High School

by Stacey van den Thoorn

Kyle Roddey is set to take the helm as principal at Red Hook High School at the end of February following his appointment by the Red Hook Central School District Board of Education at its Jan. 18 meeting.

"We are excited to welcome Mr. Roddey to the Red Hook Raiders family at the high school," said Superintendent of Schools Dr. Janet Warden. "His presence will bring a great deal of experience and knowledge to our District."

According to the district, a rigorous candidate search was conducted that included parents, students, faculty, administrative staff and members of the community. Roddey currently serves as principal at Fallsburg Junior Senior High School. His experience in education includes serving as Dean of Students, Assistant Principal and as a social studies teacher in school districts in Orange County.

From 2011 through 2018 Roddey served as Mayor of the Village of Goshen and is expected to complete his Doctorate in Educational Leadership from Seton Hall University in June 2023.

"I am beyond excited to be joining the Red Hook Central School District," said Roddey. "One of the things that most attracted me to the district was the strong sense of community that was apparent throughout the interview process. Red Hook is a special place where neighbors take care of neighbors and the community works together exceedingly well. I am looking forward to being an active participant in community events, both inside and outside of Red Hook High School."

Roddey's experience in education and local government has solidified his commitment to the importance of community building through collaborative leadership and forward thinking.

"One of my biggest takeaways from being mayor was the importance of collaborative leadership. I know that I will never know it all, and it is critical that I engage those around me to make the best possible decisions," said Roddey. "Collaboration, critical thinking, and creative problem solving must be developed in our schools simultaneously while we help students master academic content."

"As a principal, one of my primary goals is to make sure Red Hook High School is a safe, fun and engaging place for everyone. I was extremely impressed with the innovative learning that is taking place throughout the district. In a constantly changing world, it is critical that schools educate students to be critical thinkers who exhibit the soft skills that future jobs will require. I am excited to work with school stakeholders to continue these efforts and innovations. I look forward to supporting all faculty and staff members as they do amazing things each day for our students."

The Post-Science era: Another confirmation

To the editor:

The Age of Science had its roots in The Enlightenment, dating from the late seventeenth century to the early nineteenth, leading to spectacular achievements in understanding phenomena, and harnessing them.

The Post-Science Age can be dated much more precisely, at a press conference held by HHS (U.S. Department of Health and Human Services) Secretary Margaret Heckler, announcing that the cause of the illnesses called AIDS had been found. Details were sparse, but were soon provided by the key foundation paper of HIV/AIDS: "Detection, Isolation, and Continuous Production of Cytopathic Retroviruses (HTLV-III) from Patients with AIDS and Pre-AIDS," available from "Science" the May 1984 edition, by paying $30, authors Dr. Robert C. Gallo, et al. It is the most referenced paper in scientific history.

Retroviruses had never been associated with human disease, but Dr. Gallo fortuitously patented a detection test that could check for indications of the HIV retrovirus said to be the cause of AIDS.

At this point, a good grasp of mathematics will be necessary to contemplate Dr. Gallo's achievement. The paper has a table summarizing the Gallo team's findings: Juvenile AIDS : 3 out of 8 tested HIV-positive, or 37.5%, Adult AIDS with Kaposi's sarcoma: 13 out of 43 tested HIV-positive, or 30.2%, Adult AIDS with opportunistic infections: 10 out of 21 tested HIV-positive, or 47.6%.

In total, just 26 of the 72 tested were HIV-positive, or 36.1%.

Thus was launched the HIV/AIDS phenomena, a mere 36% of cases sufficing to launch a worldwide campaign and medical treatment consuming hundreds of billions of dollars.

For those unfamiliar with science as it has been practiced historically, no, 36% is not considered proof of anything. Maybe it is an indication to merit follow-up work to get near 100%, but clearly inadequate as proof. Nobel Prize winner (for the PCR test) Dr. Kary Mullis, sadly no longer with us, did not regard Gallo's paper as proof, and was unable to locate any other paper constituting proof.

And sure enough, a number of scientists came out with papers and books with titles like "Has Gallo proven the role of HIV in AIDS? ", and "Inventing the AIDS Virus".

Backing up, AIDS was an umbrella term for illnesses, largely in a highly active, often stimulant-using, segment of the homosexual population, and in intravenous drug users. One might wonder if risky lifestyle might be the cause, which would suggest an investigation by specialists in toxic substances and drug impacts. But Gallo's paper caused the AIDS work to be routed to the government department handling infectious diseases, recently headed by Dr. Anthony S. Fauci.

Today, the HIV/AIDS skeptics have their papers, books and websites, and the knowledge that all those hundreds of billions on HIV/AIDS money has yet to produce a cure, a vaccine, or proof. The Gallos and Faucis have fame and fortune, living proof that contrary to King Canute, nature (or its perception) can be bent to rulers' commands -perhaps trusting that there is no afterlife, or real congressional investigation.

We live today in a $2 + 2 = ?$ world. We need to get back to the old $2 + 2 = 4$ world.

Poughkeepsie seeks developers' visions for key southern waterfront parcel

The City of Poughkeepsie is seeking qualified developers to offer their vision for a 14-acre site on the city's southern waterfront.

The city has released a Request for Expressions of Interest (RFEI) for the DeLaval site, which takes its name from the former owner and occupant of the site, the DeLaval Separator Company.

The site is the last parcel with undeveloped acres on the city's waterfront, with views of the Hudson River and the Highland bluffs of Franny Reese Park.

The city's goal is to identify qualified developers/organizations that have both the experience and financial and design/construction capabilities to be able to successfully complete a redevelopment project.

The city has completed a number of visioning exercises concerning the site and arrived at the overarching goal of creating an anchor on the southern waterfront — providing public space and water-related uses, driving tourism to bolster the local economy, and complementing existing waterfront assets, such as Waryas Park and the Walkway Over the Hudson.

The RFEI invites a dialogue with qualified respondents to develop a plan that meets the objectives of the city and is financially feasible. The RFEI is seeking the broadest range of responses, recognizing the once in a lifetime development opportunity presented by the site.

The city's development goals for the site include:

- Establish mixed-use waterfront facilities and programming that make optimal use of the city's waterfront, including day and nighttime activation via development that includes a creative mix of uses, such as restaurants, a boutique hotel, docks, water recreation, or other such uses.
- Make the site fiscally productive, contributing to tax revenue generation, both on and off site.
- Provide riverfront walkway connectivity and public gathering spaces.
- Landscaping and architecture that is inspired by the site's unique location, including consideration of native plantings and resiliency to climate change.

"Careful and strategic development of this waterfront property offers us tremendous opportunity for transformative change in the City of Poughkeepsie," said Mayor Marc Nelson. "This RFEI will be well marketed, not only regionally but nationally as well. We invite those with extraordinary vision and a proven track record of success to participate as we prioritize and balance our chief objectives of achieving a continuous walkway along our waterfront, stimulating our local economy and creating jobs, attracting more visitors, expanding available housing options in the city and growing the city's tax base. The foundation for proposals should emphasize public access to the waterfront and our goal of advancing our designation under the New York State Climate Smart Communities Program. In designing an eco-friendly and sustainable destination, respondents should be guided by the city's newly adopted Comprehensive Plan and Local Waterfront Revitalization Program, available at www.cityofpoughkeepsie.com."

Proposals that are based on a master developer model and employ a collaborative approach using multiple architects, landscape designers and engineering firms to produce a total site plan that looks organically developed over time and is compatible with the historic fabric of the city are preferred.

City officials said the RFEI may lead to a Request for Proposals (RFP) process that may result in an award of a preferred developer to negotiate a Development Agreement that will memorialize the terms and conditions for a development.

Proposals in response to the RFEI should be sent by 3 p.m. Thursday, March 23 to: Natalie Quinn, Development Department, 62 Civic Center Plaza, 2nd Floor, Poughkeepsie, NY 12601. Please include five (5) hard copies and one (1) electronic copy of the proposal as part of your submission.

You need to be 18 years old or older and be able to perform, at minimum, basic physical labor such as bending, kneeling and carrying buckets. Garden work is done during the spring, summer and fall months on Saturday, Tuesday and Thursday mornings from 8:30 a.m. to noon. You are welcome to work as often and on any days that suit your schedule. Thrift shop in Red Hook: The "New to You" Thrift Shop at 30 Benner Road has opened. Sales will benefit St. Christopher and Good Shepherd Church. Four rooms to roam through; items include books, crafts, CDs, tapes, housewares, home décor, clothing and more. Hours: Thursdays, 11-4 and Saturdays, 10-2 (and Saturday donations).

Volunteers needed for OFA's Friendly Calls program: The Dutchess County Office for the Aging (OFA) is reaching out to older adults who are isolated and would like some type of social connection, somebody to talk to for 20-30 minutes a week. OFA's Friendly Calls program is looking for volunteer callers to reach out to our older adults. It's a simple program at its core: neighbors talking to neighbors in a short, structured conversation. OFA screens both the volunteer callers as well as the people being called. You'd be talking to somebody who lives alone, is isolated, and has expressed an interest in staying socially connected. Volunteers would start out calling from OFA headquarters in Poughkeepsie, but we envision the program becoming something a volunteer can do from home if that's what they prefer. Adult volunteers of all ages are welcome. If you're interested in taking part as a volunteer caller, email bjones@dutchessny.gov or call (845) 486-2555.

Four Renegades alumni named among top 100 prospects by MLB

Four Hudson Valley Renegades alumni were named to Major League Baseball's Pipeline's list of Top 100 prospects in baseball, which was released Thursday, Jan. 26. Infielder Anthony Volpe, outfielder Jasson Domínguez, infielder Oswald Peraza and left-handed pitcher Ken Waldichuk were all named as some of the brightest future stars in the game. Additionally, Volpe was named the No. 1 shortstop prospect by MLB, and Waldichuk the No. 3 left-handed pitching prospect.

All four players named as Top 100 prospects suited up for the Renegades during the first two years of the Yankees affiliation.

"We are so happy for Anthony, Jasson, Oswald and Ken for being recognized as some of the brightest stars of tomorrow in the sport," said Tyson Jeffers, General Manager of the Renegades. "They are all incredible players whose strong work ethics were on display during their time in the Hudson Valley. We are very grateful as an organization to have been a part of their journey."

Volpe was drafted by the Yankees in the 1st round (30th overall) in the 2019 First-Year Player Draft out of Delbarton School in Morristown, NJ. He appeared in 55 games for the Renegades during the 2021 season, batting .286/.391/.587 while clubbing 15 home runs in only 213 at-bats en route to being named MLB Pipeline's Hitting Prospect of the Year. He split the 2022 season with Double-A Somerset and Triple-A Scranton/Wilkes-Barre, hitting .249/.342/.460 with 35 doubles, 21 home runs and 50 stolen bases in 132 games. Volpe was the first minor league player to have 20 homers and 50 steals in the same season since Andruw Jones in 1995.

Domínguez is one of the most-hyped prospects in recent years, Domínguez had a breakout year as a 19-year-old in 2022. Split across three levels of the minors, The Martian hit .273/.376/.461 with 16 home runs, 37 stolen bases and 72 walks in 120 games in 2022. Domínguez spent 40 games with the Renegades, batting .306/.397/.510, and wowed with his athletic feats in the field and in the batter's box. In his last game with Hudson Valley, he switch-hit home runs against Wilmington, becoming the first Yankees minor leaguer to accomplish that rare feat since Andrew Velazquez with Triple-A Scranton/Wilkes-Barre in July 2021.

Peraza, a September call-up to the Yankees, was the first Renegades player to make his MLB debut with the Yankees since the team became affiliated with the Yankees in 2020. He played well in limited action in New York, batting .306/.404/.429 across 18 big league games. In his short time with the Renegades in 2021, he hit .306/.386/.532, and ushered in the Yankees-era with a bang – smacking five home runs in a four game stretch on the first homestand of the year, including hitting three in three straight at-bats at one point. He was named High-A East League Player of the Month for May, and was promoted all the way to Triple-A by the end of the season.

Waldichuk, now a member of the Oakland Athletics organization, made his major league debut in September, going 2-2 with a 4.93 ERA with Oakland in the final month of the 2022 season. He began 2021 with the Renegades, posting video game-like numbers across seven starts. The lefty struck out 55 batters and allowed only 12 hits and no runs in 30.2 innings. His 30.2 innings pitched is the most by a Renegades pitcher while maintaining a 0.00 ERA in club history. Waldichuk reached as high as Triple-A Scranton/Wilkes-Barre in the Yankees organization before he was moved to Oakland in the July trade that saw New York acquire Frankie Montas.

Including Domínguez, 17 members of MLB Pipeline's Top 100 prospects list spent time playing in the South Atlantic League in 2022. Many more members of the list project to play in the SAL during the 2023 season.

Latest scam involves perpetrators posing as Sheriff's office personnel

The Dutchess County Sheriff's Office is warning the residents of Dutchess County and surrounding areas about scams that once again seem to be on the rise.

Scams are ways in which criminals will attempt to get money from people by contacting them and making up elaborate stories. In some cases the perpetrators have tried, sometimes successfully, to use the victim's emotions about a loved one in trouble to get money. It's common for the perpetrators of these scams to try to get money by telling people that one of their relatives has been seriously hurt or is in jail, and that they need money right away. In many cases they will pose as a law enforcement official or another relative to try and convince the victim that it's legitimate.

The latest scam involves the perpetrators posing as representatives of the Dutchess County Sheriff's Office. To make the scam seem legitimate, the perpetrators somehow duplicate the Sheriff's Office main number of 845-486-3800, and then identify themselves as "Sgt. Diaz" or another Sergeant before asking suspicious questions. These calls are scams designed to elicit money or information from the victim. If you receive one of these calls, please hang up immediately and call the Sheriff's Office to report it. This type of scam using duplicated phone numbers is known as a form of "spoofing."

The Sheriff's Office would like to offer the following tips to help people avoid these scams:

- Legitimate law enforcement would not attempt to satisfy a warrant or make promises to avoid prosecution by soliciting money.

- If you receive an email about an order you didn't place or asking you to send money call the company using a legitimate number, DO NOT follow the instructions in the email, click on any links in the email, or call the number provided in the email.

- If someone asks you to purchase merchandise, transfer money, provide bank information, or enter a code given to you by them, use caution as it is likely a scam.

- Do not meet up with someone that you don't know; if you're asked to do this it is surely a scam, and it is very dangerous, as well.

- If you're contacted by someone you don't know asking for money, for any reason, that's a signal that it's most likely a scam.

- If someone calls you and tells you that a relative has been hurt or is in jail, confirm it first before sending any money. Call other relatives or a legitimate law enforcement agency for confirmation before any money is sent. If they're posing as a relative, try and contact that relative for confirmation.

- Sending money overseas is especially risky; use extreme caution.

- Ask the person for their call-back number and ask to speak to their supervisor to confirm the info; if it's a scam they will most likely hang up at this point and the number they give you will be bogus.

- If the person is telling you that a loved one is in the hospital or jail, find out which one and contact the institution yourself to confirm.

- If a loved one has recently passed away, be wary; in some cases perpetrators have even preyed on victims by searching through the obituaries and calling surviving loved ones. If you get calls from people you don't know soon after someone passes away, be careful and confirm it before you send any money.

- In some cases someone will call and tell the victim that they've won money, but to "process the claim" they need to first send money. Beware this is most definitely a scam and don't send any money – you should never have to pay money to claim a prize. If it seems too good to be true, it most likely is.

- If there's any doubt about a phone call or email you've received, contact the Sheriff's Office before sending any money.

- Scams tend to increase during the holiday season; be especially alert for them during those times.

It is very important to not send any money to anyone that you don't know until you've confirmed the situation through an independent source and feel comfortable with it. If it's a scam, once the money is sent it's very difficult, and most times impossible, to get it back. If anyone thinks they may have been the victim of a scam they are encouraged to contact the Sheriff's Office at 845-486-3800 or via the tipline at 845-605-CLUE or dcsotips@gmail.com.

Don't miss valuable tax credits on National Earned Income Tax Credit Day

Credits worth up to $11,097 are available to eligible New Yorkers

On National Earned Income Tax Credit Awareness Day, the New York State Department of Taxation and Finance is urging taxpayers to review their eligibility for this valuable benefit.

When the federal, New York State, and New York City earned income tax credits are combined, they can be worth nearly $11,100 for a family with three or more children.

"The earned income tax credit, which puts money directly into the pockets of working taxpayers, can be a financial lifeline for those struggling to make ends meet," Acting Commissioner Amanda Hiller said. "I encourage all those eligible to take advantage of this valuable benefit."

The earned income tax credit (EITC) is a refundable credit for working taxpayers who earn less than $59,187. This means you get a refund if the credit amount is more than what you owe in taxes.

Every year, thousands of New Yorkers qualify for the EITC for the first time as their filing status or personal financial situation changes. For eligibility requirements, please see the Tax Department's Earned income credit (New York State) webpage. For federal qualifications, see the IRS EITC webpage.

For more about the federal, state, and local earned income tax credits, including the value of available credits, see the Tax Department's Get all the credit you deserve with EITC fact sheet.

How to apply

You must file a personal income tax return to receive the credit, even if you don't owe any taxes. E-filing is the easiest and safest way to file your return, as well as the fastest way to receive your refund.

If you're eligible for the earned income tax credit, you're most likely also eligible to take advantage of the Free File program. This program allows you to electronically prepare and file both your federal and New York State returns at no cost through the Tax Department website.

Hundreds of thousands of New York State taxpayers take advantage of this truly free service each year, saving them hundreds, if not thousands, of dollars in tax-preparation costs.

Art Talks with Rena Tobey: Georgia O'Keeffe Art for Personal Reflection

Georgia O'Keeffe was not swayed by fame, even as she carefully cultivated her image. Instead she lived life on her terms, seizing opportunities, driven by passion. O'Keeffe was also a master of reinventing herself – as a teacher, provocateur in the avant-garde, and into elderhood as a lyrical voice of place, space, and time.

Through the sweep of the artist's life and with close looking her masterworks, we will see that the radical shifts she made personally are reflected in her paintings. Now you have the chance to look at your own life through the lens of change, with O'Keeffe's best loved paintings as your inspiration.

MODfest to feature an evening of Native American song and storytelling

MODfest, Vassar College's annual tribute to the visual and performing arts, will be highlighted this year by "Welcome to Indian Country," an evening of song, storytelling, and satire celebrating Native culture. The performance will be held Saturday, Feb. 4, at Skinner Hall on the Vassar campus in the Town of Poughkeepsie. All MODfest events are free and open to the public. For a complete listing of events, go to <https://www.vassar.edu/music/modfest#upcoming>.

Tom Pacio, MODfest co-director, said this year's events feature numerous collaborations with visiting artists, faculty, alums, and others.

"We are grateful to work with the Consortium on Forced Migration, Displacement, and Education for the first time, with the events featuring Kate McGloughlin and her work on the Ashokan Reservoir," Pacio said. "We are also thrilled to welcome back Andre Bouchard and Indigenous Performance Productions, who we have wanted to work with more deeply since he took part in the Indigenous Artist Panel in 2021."

"Welcome to Indian Country," which premiered in 2019, features a five-piece musical ensemble joined by Washington State Poet Laureate Rena Priest, a winner of the American Book Award, who complements the music with stories and poems celebrating Native culture.

Bouchard said he conceived of "Welcome to Indian Country" as a way of countering stereotypes of Native culture through stories and song.

"I wanted to reflect the sense of community and cultural richness I found in being a member of the Native American community," he said. "Rena has a wonderful, gentle way of taking us on a journey throughout the show, not just through her own work but through the work the musicians have created with their original compositions and the songs and stories we are bringing from our ancestors.

"It's a mosaic of a lot of different ideas bound together by a sense of hope and strength and connection and joy,"

Bouchard continued. "I term it a 'low-key celebration,' akin to curling up around the fire with a cup of cocoa and asking someone to tell you a story."

MODfest kicked off on Jan. 26 with openings in three galleries on campus, including a reception in the Palmer Gallery. Painter and printmaker Kate McGloughlin will give a talk on Feb. 2 in

The Wild Garden Project

Excitement abounds with news of a long-awaited addition to Bellefield's landscape in Hyde Park.

It's happening! – The Wild Garden at Bellefield – thanks to a generous donation by Hudson Valley native Bob Ouimette. "The Wild Garden" is a project initiated by Anne Symmes, former director of the Beatrix Farrand Garden Association, to realize the vision of pioneering landscape gardener Beatrix Farrand. On the drawing board for the past 10 years, new funding and support from the National Park Service have pushed the project to the front burner.

Beatrix Farrand (1872-1959) was a charter member of the American Society of Landscape Architects, having studied with Harvard botany professor Charles Sargent at his home. She went on to champion the informal cottage gardens or mixed flower borders pioneered by William Robinson in his seminal 1870 book "The Wild Garden." Farrand incorporated these designs into more than 110 commissions, including work for John D. Rockefeller, Stephan Harkness, Princeton University, and most famously, at Dumbarton Oaks garden in Washington, D.C.

In 1911, Farrand designed a garden at Bellefield, the estate of Senator Thomas and Sarah Newbold in Hyde Park – a private walled garden attached to the Newbold house. The plan called for a "wild garden" outside the walls, incorporating Farand's favorite native plants. For some reason, the wild garden was never completed, and the more formal interior garden eventually fell into disrepair.

In 1993, an intrepid team of garden enthusiasts, including my mom Doris Adams, founded the Beatrix Farrand Garden Association, with a mission to restore the 20 X 60 foot garden inside the walls, referencing historic photos and examples from Farrand's nearby gardens. The result is a stunning display of perfectly composed borders set off by vine-traced walls and clipped hemlock hedges, open to the public 7 a.m.–dusk every day, adjacent to the Franklin D. Roosevelt National Historic Site.

When I heard about the jump start to the Wild Garden Project, I immediately called Bob Ouimette, who happens to be a friend, even though we hadn't spoken since we graduated from Arlington High School 55 years ago. In addition to his initial generous donation, Bob set up a $25,000 challenge matching fund, which should go quite a ways toward realizing the total goal of $150,000.

Bob is a former corporate attorney living in Manhattan. He got interested in historical preservation, working as a trustee at The Mount, novelist Edith Wharton's restored home in Lenox, Massachusetts. Beatrix Farrand was Wharton's niece, so Bob was excited to learn about the Wild Garden Project happening in his home town. Last fall, he visited Bellefield and was bowled over by the staff's enthusiasm and the "significance" of Farrand's contribution to the gardening profession.

"How can I help?" he asked.

"Hmm, let me think," replied Bellefield's horticulturist Karen Waltuch.

I sat down with Karen and program director Chris Zumtobel last Tuesday at the National Park Service office in the Newbold House next to the Bellefield

SUDOKU

Sudoku requires no arithmetic skills. The object of the game is to fill all the blank squares with the correct numbers. Each row of 9 numbers must include all digits 1 through 9 in any order. Each column of 9 numbers must include all digits 1 through 9 in any order. Each 3 by 3 subsection of the 9 by 9 square must include all digits 1 through 9.

Suguru

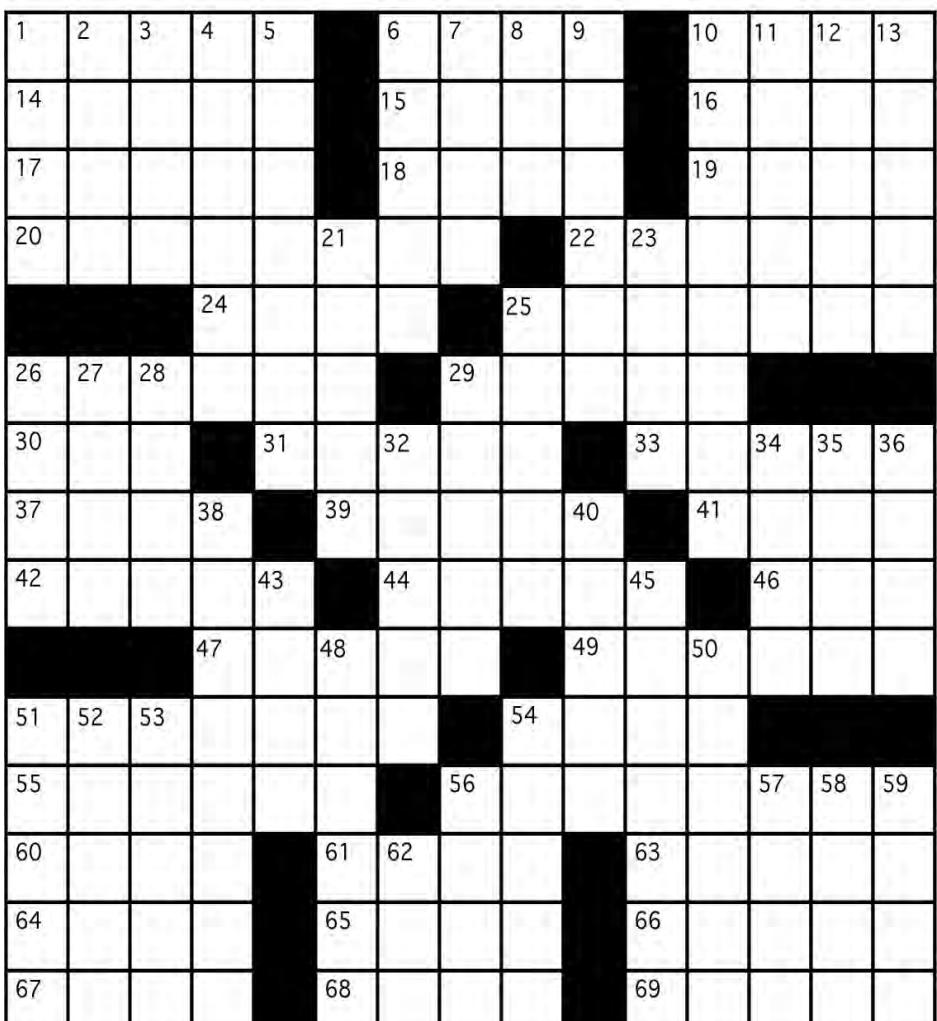

The heavy lines indicate areas, called cages, from one to five squares in size. Fill each cage with unique digits, counting up from 1. So for example a 2-square cage contains the numbers 1 and 2; and a 5-square cage contains the numbers from 1 to 5. Adjacent (touching) squares, even ones that touch diagonally, may never contain the same number.

Candied bacon

A delectable, decadent and, most likely, an occasional treat

How have I not shared candied bacon with you yet?!? Seems a random question, I know, but here we are in prime comfort food season, and me, just having gone through my recipes to find things to bring to four (!) separate work-related parties, seeing everyone's favorite pig candy recipe and slowly realizing my colleagues were about to have it again, but I've left you quite in the dark for years! That just isn't right and, well, I'm about to atone for such a slight.

For those who have not yet discovered the unabashed joy that is candied bacon, I think I'm about to rock your world (though there really can't be many of you out there, unless you're just not that into bacon and then I feel a little sorry for you). To each their own, and more for the rest of us). All you need to find yourself in hog heaven is bacon, brown sugar and black pepper, though, to be honest, you don't need the pepper but, before you say it, you most certainly do need the other two! Read on and never doubt again.

Here's what happens when you slather bacon with brown sugar: at first, nothing, but then, when you bake it? Pure magic, that's what! The bacon gets hot, the sugar melts, then caramelizes, mixing with the hot bacon grease and spreading itself into the sweetest dark golden-brown smoky coat on each slice. It crisps as it cools just enough to be easily picked up and shoved into your face demurely eaten, because we're not savages and we know how to savor a good thing.

So why don't we make it all the time then if it's so easy and so good? First of all, I never said it was easy (it is) and it's better than just good, waaaaay better, so I get why you're asking. I'm no doctor and since I also don't play one on TV, I'd hardly be an expert here; but it's probably safe to say that it may not be the healthiest thing to eat every day. Best then, perhaps, to leave it for weekends or occasional occasions.

So far we've established a few things. 1: I kept something life-changing from you, 2: bacon just rocks, 3: you don't need many ingredients, 4: I'm stalling because I still haven't disclosed the magical secrets for making it all happen. Let's remedy that now in the hope that you can forgive me.

I did not invent this concept of brown sugar + bacon + heat = Amazing, and I do not know who did, but they should have a commemorative plaque somewhere or maybe a statue, which I'd be on board with starting a petition to get done. In fact, there are so many essentially the same recipes out there for such a simple thing that if they were taken off the internet tomorrow it would free up enough memory to maybe help me remember all the things I've forgotten. Like not having shared this with you before which, I promise you, I am actually going to do riiiiight...now!

Sorry, not quite! A couple things first. Greasy bacon and sticky burnt sugar can be messy and might result in smoke billowing from your oven and the lingering aroma of badly burnt sugar in your hair, on your clothes and greeting you when you walk in the door for a few days. I'm going to try to set you up so that doesn't happen, but it had to be said (and it still happens to me sometimes).

Second, some recipes call for thick-sliced bacon (this one doesn't), which I have used, and is fine. It just takes longer to cook, and I like my bacon sooner rather than later, as well as on the crispish side, thank you very much. Speaking to that, remember that it will crisp up as it cools, so it may take some practice to get it just the way you like it.

And one more: most recipes out there say to lay bacon strips on a baking rack set atop a parchment-lined baking sheet, which works really well because the strips aren't sitting in the grease drippings. The one I'm sharing here omits the rack so there's a lot less mess to clean up (think scrubbing a wire rack free of baked on sugar) and you'll get nice flat pieces, but you'll want to transfer the bacon from the greasy pan to a rack or paper towel-lined plate a few minutes after taking out of the oven.

CANDIED BACON (ready or not!)

No special equipment here, but you will need some baking sheets. Parchment paper is also a must. And I'm thinkin' you'll want some foil, too, for easy clean up.

INGREDIENTS

1 pkg (12-16oz) bacon (not thick-cut)
Brown sugar (dark or light), about 1/2 cup

Freshly ground black pepper

METHOD

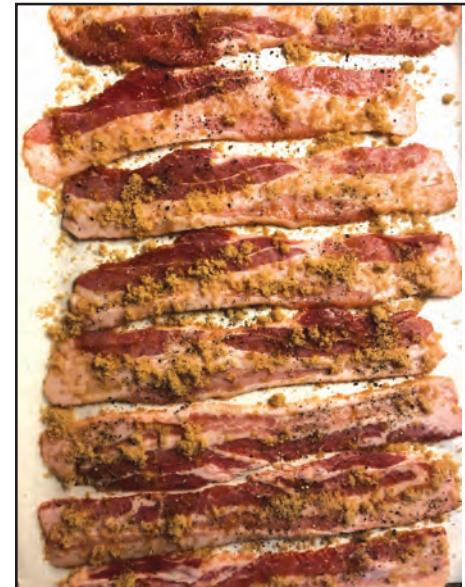

Move oven rack to center position. Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Cover a baking sheet (or 2) with foil. Line with a sheet of parchment paper.

Lay strips of bacon on parchment. Sprinkle each pretty generously with brown sugar, press into bacon, gently flip over and repeat. Sprinkle with black pepper and any leftover sugar. Arrange slices so they are close but not touching. Try to leave about 1/2-inch of space from edges of pan.

Top bacon with another piece of parchment, right to the edges and covering all the slices. Top with second baking sheet.

Bake 20 minutes. Check bacon. It goes from almost done to burned pretty quickly. It should be golden brown. Flip slices, replace parchment and top sheet. Rotate baking sheet and cook for another 15 minutes, which should be enough.

If this sounds better-than-good to you, what are you waiting for? After all, I made you wait long enough. Make it for a few or a crowd or you all by your lonesome because no one would ever think to judge you when it's bacon. Sweet, savory, salty, spicy, smoky, scrumptious and, I hope, worth waiting for. Enjoy!

What's not to like about candied bacon?

A "wild garden" is not exactly a "wild-flower garden," although it uses mostly native species. "Wild" refers to the design – informal, as though it just grew, without the weeds. Farrand's original plan placed the wild garden outside the walls. When completed, this will serve as an invitation to visitors at the F.D.R. Estate to explore Bellefield, which will be connected by a path leading from the Wallace Center.

Witch Hazel, Fothergilla, Sweet Fern (comptonia) and Serviceberry are scheduled for the first phase of the wild garden.

Also, Farrand's favorites – Paw Paw and Cucumber magnolia. Ferns will fill in the spaces around the trees until phase two gets under way with native flowers.

Let's all get together to support the Wild Garden at Bellefield. Google Beatrix Farrand Garden at Bellefield for more information.

Wow! Don't miss "What Do Your Flowers Say Today?" Flower Readings by Sue Adams at Locust Grove Estate, at 1:20 p.m. on Saturday, February 11. Go to Igny.org/calendar for tickets.

Author event set Feb. 2 at Wallace Center

The FDR Presidential Library and Museum will present a conversation and book signing with Peter Shinkle, author of "Uniting America: How FDR and Henry Stimson Brought Democrats and Republicans Together to Win World War II," at 6 p.m. on Thursday, Feb. 2. The event will be held in the Henry A. Wallace Center at the FDR Presidential Library and Home and streamed live to the official FDR Library YouTube, Twitter and Facebook accounts. This is a free public event (local health metrics permitting), but registration is required for in-person attendance. Visit fdrlibrary.org to register.

As Adolf Hitler's Nazi armies threatened Europe, Democratic President Franklin D. Roosevelt urged a divided America to mobilize to defend democracy and freedom. Many Republicans accused FDR of leading the nation needlessly into war and demanded that America remain neutral. On June 20, 1940, FDR shocked the country by announcing that two prominent Republicans would take posts in his cabinet. Henry Stimson, former President Herbert Hoover's secretary of state, became secretary of war, and Frank Knox, the Republican vice-presidential candidate in 1936, became secretary of the Navy.

Roosevelt intended the appointments to build national unity. But building a coalition across party lines was a risky move that could have backfired politically. It also placed a bipartisan relationship at the center of America's confrontation with global fascism. FDR's Republican allies went on to play critical roles in leading the war effort, and many bills passed Congress during the war years with strong backing from both parties. Following Roosevelt's death, Stimson continued to champion bipartisanship under President Truman in the closing chapter of the war.

"Uniting America" tells the story of how this alliance stands as an historic example of united leadership in a nation scarred by political division.

Peter Shinkle worked for 19 years as a reporter at various news organizations, including most recently the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. He covered the federal court system and wrote investigative stories on subjects ranging from improper disposal of radioactive waste to contamination spread by a lead mining company. He is the author of "Ike's Mystery Man: The Secret Lives of Robert Cutler."

Black Legacy Project to launch touring band

Music in Common, the nonprofit that produces The Black Legacy Project (Black LP), recently announced the 2023 launch of the Black LP touring band. Online auditions are open now through Feb. 15.

The Black Legacy Project is a musical celebration of Black history to advance racial solidarity, equity, and belonging. The Black LP is a national project produced in partnership with community stakeholders at the local level. As it travels the country, the Black LP brings together Black and White artists and artists of all backgrounds to record present-day interpretations of songs central to the Black American experience and compose originals relevant to the pressing calls for change of our time. Community roundtable discussions help inform how these songs are interpreted and written. Project co-directors, Trey Carlisle and Todd Mack, were recently honored as 2022 CNN Champions for Change.

After more than a year of development in the wake of the killings of Breonna Taylor, Ahmaud Arbery, and George Floyd, The Black Legacy Project kicked off in September 2021 in the Berkshires of Western Massachusetts. The Project has since traveled to Los Angeles, the Ozarks of Northwest Arkansas, and Denver, and will launch in the Mississippi Delta, Atlanta, and Boise in 2023. In each community the Black LP travels to, songs addressing a theme connected to the local community are reimaged and composed. The Project is funded by a long list of local, regional, and national partners including the U.S. Department of Homeland Security's Center for Prevention Programs and Partnerships.

To date, 15 songs have been recorded for the project, 12 of which will be released on The Black Legacy Project, Vol. 1 on April 3, 2023 - the 55th Anniversary of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.'s "I've Been to the Mountaintop" speech. King was assassinated the next day. A second album, The Black Legacy Project, Vol. 2, is slated for a February 2024 release. The Black Legacy Project, Vol. 1 & 2 will also be released as a double vinyl record in 2024. A docuseries of the project is being produced with a new episode from each of the initial seven communities previously mentioned.

A nationwide call for musicians is being conducted to assemble a band to tour behind the upcoming debut album and subsequent releases. The first tour is scheduled for late May throughout the southeastern United States. Auditions opened in early January and submissions have been steamrolling in ever since. "It's been heartening and inspiring to see the incredible response to the Black LP band," says Music in Common executive director, Todd Mack, "and we can't wait to bring this moving and powerful show to audiences across the country."

Interested musicians can audition online at www.theblacklegacyproject.org/audition and are encouraged to do so sooner rather than later. Auditions will close on Feb. 15 and final band member selections will be made by the end of the month.

The Black Legacy Project is produced by Music in Common, an Atlanta-based nonprofit that strengthens, empowers, and connects communities through the universal language of music. Since 2005, Music In Common has directly served thousands of people in nearly 400 communities across the globe and across religious, ethnic, cultural, socio-economic, and racial axes. The organization was founded by singer-songwriter and producer Todd Mack, in response to the murder of his friend and bandmate, Daniel Pearl, the Wall Street Journal reporter abducted by terrorists in Pakistan in 2002.

County Players, one of the longest-running community theater companies in the area, will present the Terrence McNally comedy "It's Only a Play." Directed by Kit Colbourn, this Main Stage production opens Friday, Feb. 3, and runs through Feb. 18. Performances are scheduled for Fridays and Saturdays Feb. 3, 4, 10, 11, 17 & 18 at 8 p.m., with matinees on Sunday, Feb. 12, and Saturday, Feb. 18, at 2 p.m., and held at the County Players Falls Theatre, 2681 West Main St. in the Village of Wappingers Falls.

The producers, the playwrights, the reviewers, and the stars. A Broadway opening night party in a stylish NYC apartment brings together a cacophony of characters, with an armload of wit, warmth, and winter coats! "It's Only A Play" is a laugh-out-loud love letter to the resilience of live theatre, and an homage to the people that — even when things seem impossible — believe that the marquee will be lit again, and the show must go on. The production features the local talents of Michael Froehnhofer, Griffin Stenger, Emily Boone, Ann Citron, Paul Coleman, Matt Fields, Eric Feeney and Euphemia Olive Sargiani.

Director Colbourn said, "This hilarious and loving send-up of the theatre and its people is a joy. Audiences will recognize many of the names dropped, and the foibles and delicate egos of all who work in this noble art form called 'the theatre.' It's also a testament to the resilience and passion of anyone who loves the theatre, on both sides of the footlights. A perfect midwinter opportunity to laugh."

Note: This production contains adult language.

COVID-19 Policy through March 31: Audience members are exempt from having to submit proof of vaccination and are not required to remain masked during a performance; however, masks are strongly encouraged. County Players asks that any patron who is feeling ill to stay home and utilize its ticket exchange options. Individual ticket options will be limited to mobile/digital (paperless) or print-at-home and available online in advance of the performance dates. Visit the Box Office page of the County Players website (countyplayers.org/tickets/) for up-to-date information on theater restrictions and protocols.

"It's Only a Play" and is produced by special arrangement with Dramatists Play Service. Hudson Valley Credit Union proudly sponsors County Players' 65th Season.

Taylor Hall about her work. April Beisaw, Associate Professor and Chair of Anthropology, met McGloughlin while she was conducting research about the creation of the Ashokan Reservoir, which resulted in the displacement of several villages in the Catskill Mountains.

"As a descendant of those whose homes and businesses were among the first taken for the Ashokan Reservoir, Kate has an intimate connection with the watershed landscape both past and present," Beisaw said. "That connection comes through in her artwork that often depicts the same reservoir that destroyed her family's way of life more than 100 years ago."

A pillar of the festival, the annual Adene and Richard Wilson concert, will feature premieres of works by Richard Wilson and Jonathan Chenette, and new music by Tyson Davis, Aviya Kopelman, and Elliot Carter.

"We are thrilled to highlight many of our faculty and guest artists in this special event," said Professor of Music Christine Howlett, co-director of MODfest.

On Feb. 3 at 7 p.m. in Kenyon Hall, the Vassar Repertory Dance Theatre will perform works selected from the current repertory by faculty, students, and guest choreographers, including a special appearance by Heidi Latsky Dance Company. This is a free ticketed event; reservations for general seating are required. Reserve your tickets at <https://www.tix.com/ticket-sales/vassardance/5731>.

Locust Grove events showcase local history of violets, floriography

The Locust Grove Estate in Poughkeepsie offers the following events for lovers of violets and the Hudson Valley's violet-growing history:

"Violets for your Valentine!" African Violet Sale

A special fundraiser for Locust Grove Through Feb. 3

The Hudson Valley was once known as the "Violet Belt," exporting the delicate blooms worldwide. While today we think of roses on Valentine's Day, violets, grown here, were the traditional flower of the day in the 1890s to the 1920s.

Locust Grove is embracing this history by selling African violets from Adams Greenhouse to raise funds to keep Locust Grove open for the community to enjoy for years to come.

The cost is $20 plus tax for each per 4-inch pot of African Violets. Colors will vary. Colors cannot be reserved in advance. Order violets online at www.lgny.org/calendar or call 845-454-4500 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday-Friday, to order over the phone.

Pick up your plants at Locust Grove on Saturday, Feb. 11, from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

"What Do Your Flowers Say Today?" A fabulous floriography talk and flower readings by author and vice-president of Adams Greenhouses, Sue Adams

Saturday, Feb. 11, 1:30-2:30 p.m.

Admission $15/person

Floriography, the language of flowers, was popular during the Victorian-era as a means of communication in which flowers were used to send coded messages, allowing individuals to express feelings which otherwise could not be spoken. Go back in time and not only enjoy the beauty of flowers, but also their meanings, and learn how flowers can help us in our everyday lives.

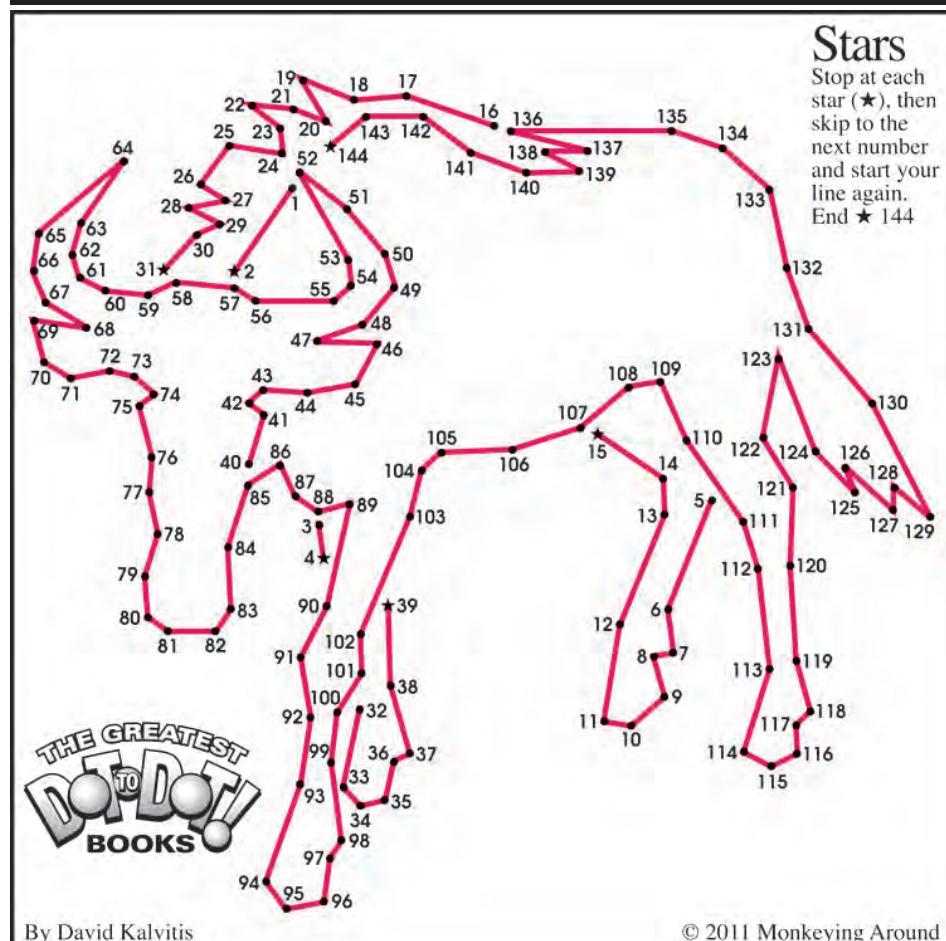

After a brief lecture, Sue Adams will conduct flower readings for a lucky few raffle winners (every ticket holder will get a raffle ticket at the door).

Sue Adams is vice-president of Adams Greenhouses, a five-acre operation in Poughkeepsie. She is an award-winning container designer, graduate of Cornell University, president of New York State Flower Industries, serves on the New England Floriculture Board.

Her book, "What Do Your Flowers Say Today?" will be available for sale at $25, with profit to benefit Locust Grove.

Jeffrey M. Miranda

Jeffrey Michael Miranda, 45, passed away peacefully at home on the morning of January 21st after a three-year battle with pancreatic cancer. His wife, Leslie Hill, the love of his life, was close by his side. A longtime resident of the New York hamlet of Rhinecliff, Jeff was active in the community and beloved by his friends and neighbors. The eve before he went in for his first bout of chemo, a motorcade of fire trucks, ambulances and dozens of friends drove by his and Leslie's home, sirens ringing & horns honking, to show the love and support of all who knew him. Jeff loved the natural world and cherished being outdoors. His overflowing bird feeders drew flocks of goldfinches, as well as many other little birds, a tiny rose sprig grew into a flower-laden bush under his care, and his herbs flourished in pots throughout the yard. Passersby invariably got a wave and hello as he tended to his charges, he and Leslie were the consummate hosts. Their porch, overlooking the garden, became a gathering place so well-attended it's now part of the local vernacular: "I was on The Porch last night..." Jeff welcomed everyone as if they were family. To know him was, indeed, to love him. The son of Alfonso and Michele Speer Miranda, Jeff grew up in Brooklyn, NY. He attended Fort Hamilton High School and College of Staten Island, where he flourished in many drama programs —he loved acting. He loved working for a time at the George Cole Auction House where his innate design sense dovetailed with his natural charm. Last July, after a new diagnosis, he and Leslie married in a small ceremony on their lawn with friends officiating. At the reception, Jeff outshone everyone on the dance floor. Jeff will be remembered for his graciousness and kindness, for his strength and generosity, and for his devotion to Leslie, his friends and family. His free spirit and eternal optimism, even in the face of devastating challenges, will live on in the hearts of his family and friends forever. He truly was one of a kind. Jeff is predeceased by his grandparents, Dimitri and Mary David Speer and Alfonso and Zoila Miranda, and his father, Alfonso Miranda. He is survived by his wife, Leslie Hill; his mother, Michele Speer Miranda; his stepfather, Tony Steo; his stepmother, Juliette Miranda; his siblings, Al Miranda, Justin Miranda, and Taylor Miranda, and a large and loving extended family of aunts, uncles and cousins. He will be missed beyond telling. Viewing hours were held Jan. 26 at McLaughlin & Sons Funeral Home, Brooklyn, NY. Burial is in The Greenwood Cemetery, Brooklyn, NY. Memorial hours were planned for Jan. 28 at Dapson Chestney Funeral Home, Rhinebeck, NY. The family asks that memorial donations be made to Hudson Valley Hospice. Arrangements are under the direction of the Dapson-Chestney Funeral Home, Rhinebeck, NY and McLaughlin and Sons Funeral Home, Brooklyn, NY.

GOLDEN LIVING

THE BAD GUYS DON'T STAND STILL

The Dutchess County Sheriff's Office (DCSO) is warning of a new impersonation scam in which callers are pretending to be from the Sheriff's Office and spoofing the sheriff's phone number, then asking suspicious questions of anybody who picks up. Additionally, the Dutchess County Department of Community and Family Services reports a scam where SNAP beneficiaries are told that their benefits have been cancelled, and to call the scammer back to "get benefits reinstated."

"Spoofing" is the practice of altering the way an incoming call's number appears on a recipient's Caller ID. It is legal when used for legitimate purposes. Spoofing becomes illegal when the number is being altered for illegal purposes.

OFA does not cold-call people. If you see an OFA phone number on your Caller ID and you didn't contact us first, that's not OFA calling you. As for law enforcement, DCSO points out that legitimate law enforcement does not attempt to satisfy a warrant or make promises to avoid prosecution by soliciting money. If anyone thinks they may have been a victim of a scam they can contact the Sheriff's Office at 845-486-3800, call the DCSO tipline at 845-605-CLUE (3583), or email dcso@tipsp@gmail.com.

By now you may be thinking of all the other articles you've read about phone scams, and how new technology would enable phone carriers to ensure that calls were coming only from authenticated phone numbers. And yet scam calls keep coming in. What happened?

Scammers adjusted their tactics to stay a step ahead of new laws and technology.

THE BATTLE AGAINST PHONE SCAMS CONTINUES

The Robocall Index maintained by youmail.com shows total 2022 robocall numbers of over 137 million – just for Poughkeepsie. That's roughly 103 calls per person affected. Compared to call numbers of recent years, that number is about in the middle. Some progress, but not enough.

One big problem: the new "STIR/SHAKEN" verification technology doesn't work on calls that come from or pass through older networks, like landline telephone wires. That may be how the DCSO impersonators are getting through to people.

A PROMISING ANECDOTE

For a recent success story, we turn to "Larry and Helen," a couple in their 80s from the central Canadian city of Saskatoon. Their suspicions kicked in earlier this month, as they were headed to an ATM to withdraw money that they would have given to a phone scammer posing as a grandchild in legal trouble. Since they were still in touch with the scammer to arrange the drop-off, they asked for police assistance in hopes of being able to catch the scammer in the act. It worked. Three men from Quebec are now in custody charged with 10 counts of fraud over C$5,000. Authorities say the men had victimized several other older adults before encountering Larry and Helen.

MEDICARE SAVINGS PROGRAM ENROLLMENT CLINICS

If you're covered by Medicare, there's a new eligibility change that could mean considerable savings for you.

Starting this year, eligibility for the Medicare Savings Program (MSP) in New York State expanded to single individuals with Medicare who have a gross income up to $2,107 per month and couples with monthly gross incomes up to $2,839. New York State does NOT look at your assets for this program.

In New York State, MSP helps older adults and people with disabilities living on low incomes by paying their Medicare Part B premiums ($164.90 each month) and enrolling them in Extra Help, the federal prescription drug subsidy program that the Social Security Administration estimates is worth about $5,100 per year. This program lowers prescription costs and gets rid of the deductible and the "donut hole", or gap coverage. The financial assistance can be a lifeline, allowing enrollees to maintain their Medicare coverage, access needed care, and afford other necessities, like food and rent.

If this is the first time you're learning of this, you can find out more about your potential savings. The Office for the Aging is hosting two Medicare Savings Program Enrollment Clinics for Dutchess County resident older adults in early February. Please call ahead to reserve a time to meet with a trained counselor.

- Friday, Feb. 3, 10 am-1 pm at Sun River Health, 3360 NY 343 (East Main St.) in Amenia, about 0.3 miles east of the light in the middle of Amenia. To reserve your spot at this event, call 845-206-7526 (Ed) or 845-475-4159 (Mitzi). Masks are required at Sun River Health.

- Wednesday, Feb. 8, 10 am-2 pm at the Office for the Aging, 114 Delafield St. in Poughkeepsie. To reserve a spot at this event, call OFA during business hours at 845-486-2555.

Both events are subject to cancellation or postponement due to weather and/or community infection prevention measures.

Be sure to bring the following information with you to your appointment:

- Proof of income;
- Proof of age (driver's license and/or birth certificate);
- Your Medicare card;
- If you pay for dental insurance or Medicare Supplement, bring a bill;
- Proof of address, like a current utility bill.

For older adults who are homebound or whose schedules conflict with MSP enrollment clinics, call OFA during business hours at 845-486-2555 and we'll connect you with the resources you need.

STILL SPACE FOR NEW 'FRIENDLY CALLS' VOLUNTEERS

We continue to have excellent response to our request for OFA "Friendly Calls" program volunteers – thanks! If you're just reading about the program for the first time, here's the quick version of how it works:

Volunteers (age 18+ welcome) speak once a week for 20-25 minutes on the phone with a pre-screened older adult participant in the program, with the goal being to re-establish social connections for isolated older adults. Volunteers can speak with more than one older adult, if they have the time to do so.

We're hosting orientations for new Friendly Calls volunteers during the next two weeks at OFA headquarters in Poughkeepsie. More will be scheduled in February and March as needed.

Contact OFA Outreach Coordinator Brian Jones at bjones@dutchessny.gov for more information.

USE "211" TO ARRANGE AARP/TAX-AIDE SERVICES

Since 1968, AARP Foundation Tax-Aide program has helped over 50 million low-to-moderate income taxpayers. As an intricate part of the Coalition Tax-Aide takes the lead in training volunteers and managing over 20 tax preparation sites in Dutchess, Orange, and Putnam Counties. More information here.

PREPARATION PROCESS (Service is provided by appointment only): Appointments are made by calling United Way Help Line 211 or 1-800-899-1479. Appointments can be made from 9 am to 2 pm Monday through Friday. If you do experience a wait time, we encourage you to use the option of leaving your name and phone number for a callback. Important: Appointments cannot be booked through the Office for the Aging or any of the Tax-Aide sites.

Please be patient. Early call volume is very high. Please answer your phone when you are called back. Note: the caller ID may be that of one of our volunteers as opposed to the United Way 2-1-1 call center.

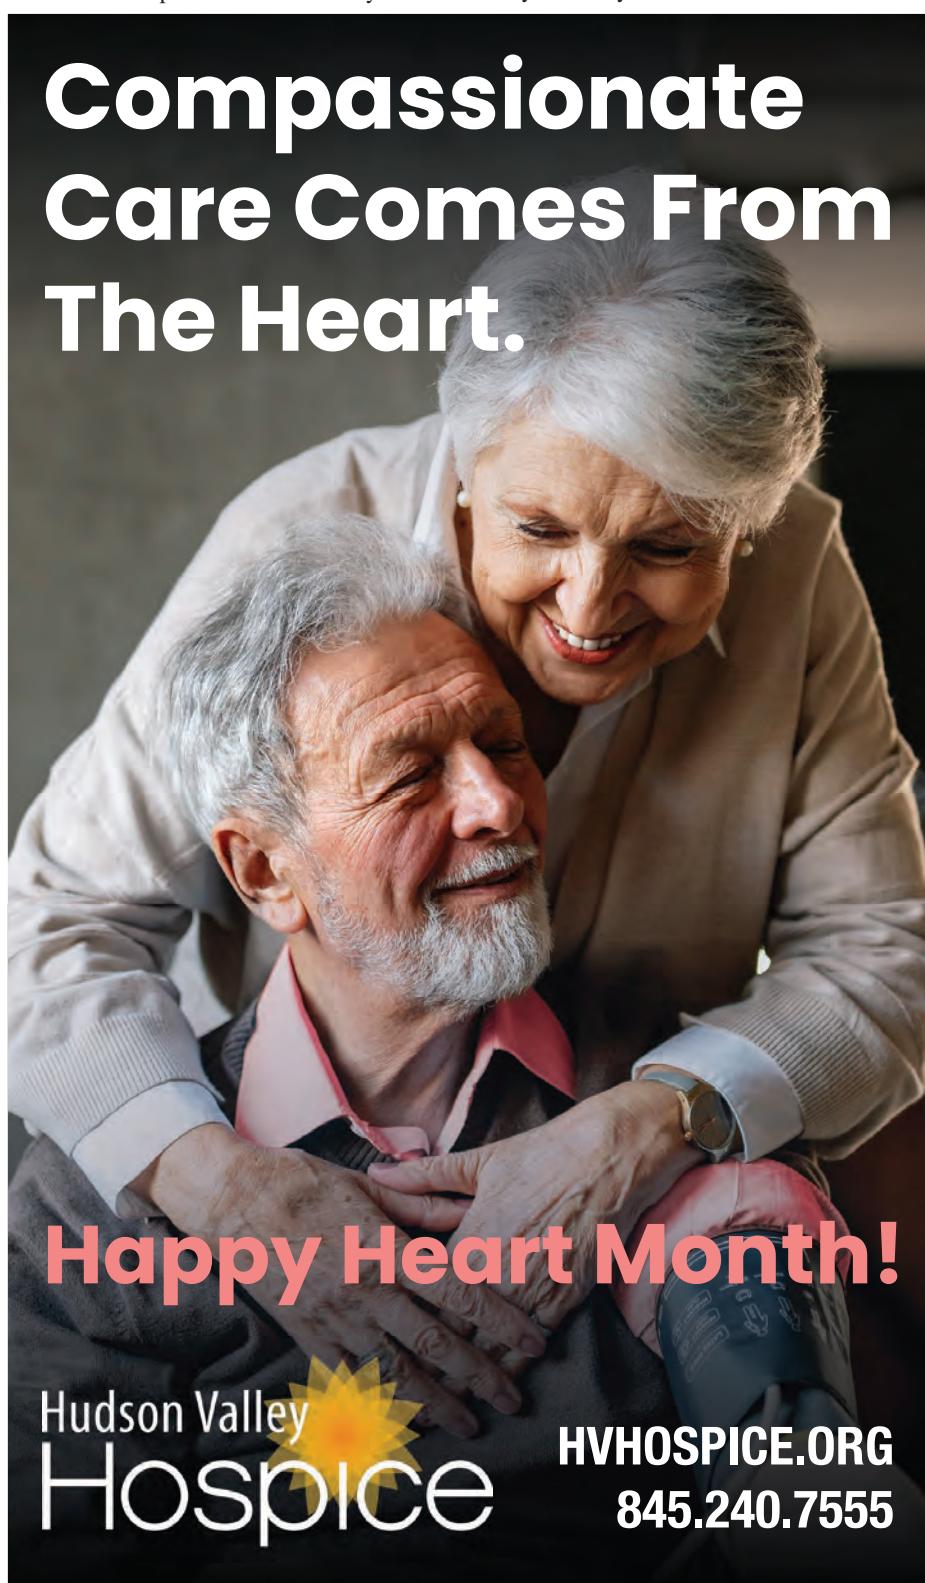

Each filer is required to obtain a Pre-Appointment packet, complete the packet prior to their scheduled appointment and come to the appointment with all required tax documents. Pre-Appointment Packets have a complete listing of documents you are required to bring to your appointment. IRS-certified Tax-Aide volunteers will review your tax documents and complete a short interview using the required IRS intake form. After the interview is complete, the volunteer will input tax information using the software provided by the IRS.

Your tax return will be quality reviewed by another IRS Certified Tax Counselor. Once the return is completed, the Tax Counselor will review the entire return with you and obtain your permission to e-file the return. Filers are required to remain at the tax site location during the preparation process. Please note valuable information you received in your appointment confirmation email regarding additional forms you may need for your appointment.

Printed packets are available at the tax site you are scheduled at during preparation hours. If you have difficulties getting to the site for packet pick-up, contact 875-475-7500.

Golden Living is prepared by the Dutchess County Office for the Aging, 114 Delafield St., Poughkeepsie, New York 12601, telephone 845-486-2555, email: ofa@dutchessny.gov website: www.dutchessny.gov/aging
