Ryan announces funding for area fire depts.

Congressman Pat Ryan delivered $1.4 million in federal funding to the Rifton Fire District, Tivoli Fire Department, Arlington Fire District, Kripplebush Fire District, and Beacon Fire Department in a ceremony in Poughkeepsie on Monday.

Ryan also celebrated his nominations of the City of Poughkeepsie Fire Department, the Port Jervis Fire Department, and the Arlington Fire District for federal Community Project Funding for Fiscal Year 2025. Ryan joined with leaders from the fire departments to celebrate the announcement.

"Our firefighters are heroes, working around the clock with the sole focus of protecting others - that's why, every single day, I'm pushing to make sure they have the resources they need and deserve to keep both us and themselves safe," said Ryan. "From fighting tooth and nail for every last dollar of Community Project Funding to overhaul the firehouses for Tivoli and Rifton to securing landmark funding for state-of-the-art equipment for Beacon, Kripplebush, and Arlington, when our fire departments are fully equipped, we are all safer. I'll keep fighting to deliver for all of our first responders."

"The safety of Dutchess County residents is a top priority, one that we at every level of government - local, county, state and federal - share and take very seriously," said Dutchess County Executive Sue Serino. "Strengthening our local fire departments with this federal funding will enhance these departments' ability to respond to emergencies, and we appreciate Rep. Ryan's efforts to secure these grants."

"We greatly appreciate Congressman Ryan's efforts to secure this important funding," said

DCAS Education Program takes agriculture into local schools

By Jim Donick

The Dutchess County Agricultural Society (DCAS) may be best known for presenting the annual Dutchess County Fair. They do much more. Their mission is "the promotion of agriculture, horticulture, mechanical and domestic arts, fine arts, and allied sciences through education, instruction, display, and competition." They promote every aspect of agriculture - from neighborhood backyards to family farms and commercial enterprises.

One of their most important projects is delivered by Cassie Messina, the DCAS Agriculture Educator. Messina, with help from any number of local farmers, has created a program to take agriculture and agricultural experiences from the farm into the classroom.

This amazing program was kicked off in 2018 with visits to a number of schools in the area. Then, as Messina notes, "Covid put a little wrench into our program and we had to go remote. Now, with that behind us, we have been building back."

Now they are back in the classroom and that means regularly visiting schools in five different school districts. The variety of programs she brings to the schools is simply amazing. In the course of a year's travels around the county (and sometimes to Westchester), she manages to cover nearly every aspect of the agricultural business.

Examples range from the creation of an in-class farmer's market where students explore the considerations of a consumer and a producer by playing the role of each, to an exploration of the genetics of watermelon and other crops. The lessons engage students through problem solving and real-life experiences.

In other lessons, students learned about lambs with a visit from a bottle baby lamb and then made small objects from their wool. When learning about the dairy industry, they have been visited by a calf from Stormfield Swiss, a local dairy farm. During this visit, students handled the calf, met with the farmer, learned about the milking process, and then designed their own brand of ice cream, which they used in their in-classroom activities the next month.

AgriVenture at DC Fair is all about farm-to-table experiences

The AgriVenture Scavenger Hunt involves a variety of farm scenes and hands-on experiences with the mission of teaching children and adults about the benefits of agriculture. Courtesy photo

AgriVenture is back for the 178th Dutchess County Fair on Aug. 20-25.

AgriVenture made its debut in a 10 x 20-foot tent at the 2016 Fair. This interactive hands-on display offers farm-to-table educational experiences and was originally geared toward children.

Organizers quickly discovered that just as many adults came through the tent and in 2018 AgriVenture moved into a 66 x 80-foot tent. New displays and experiences were added to help educate fairgoers of all ages as to where their food comes from and the importance of agriculture in our lives. Agriventure was reintroduced in its new location in Building E in 2023 where it found its permanent home.

Making its debut in this year's AgriVenture Farm is a virtual reality tractor! The tractor will offer participants the opportunity to "experience" driving a tractor and harvesting a soybean field through a VR headset.

"The primary purpose of the Fair's education mission is that the Hudson Valley is still an agricultural community, but it's changing and many people are not directly involved in agriculture," said Samantha Gulak, coordinator of AgriVenture. "Local FFA (Future

Poughkeepsie Mayor Yvonne Flowers. "Making structural repairs to the Hooker Avenue Fire Station is essential, and this money would go a long way to achieving the goal. This funding also would enable the city to bring energy efficiency to a century-old building. I thank Congressman Ryan for fighting for these funds and for understanding the importance of putting resources into helping our first responders do their jobs to protect the community."

"The City of Poughkeepsie Fire Department is extremely grateful for the assistance in our application to get the proposed repairs done to Station 7," said City of Poughkeepsie Fire Chief Joseph Franco. "This is a firehouse that first opened in 1929, and it is truly the Community's station. In particular, the City Team starting with former Acting City Administrator Ron Knapp, City Engineer Rich DuPilka, Deputy Fire Chief Vincent Parise, Finance Commissioner Dr Brian Martinez, and City Public Works Commissioner Chris Gent all got together to form a plan and submit the application to our Federal government partners. The assistance of US Senator Gillibrand and Congressman Pat Ryan cannot be understated. Congressman Ryan's office has been in contact with us and has moved this application to where it is today. They have gone the extra mile to make this happen. These repairs, when all are completed, are expected to give us another 40-50 years of service out of this fire station."

"We are extremely grateful for the nomination to receive this community funding," said City of Poughkeepsie Deputy Fire Chief Vinny Parise. "This funding will help with much needed repairs to the 96-year-old Hooker Avenue firehouse. The Hooker Avenue firehouse built in 1929, is the oldest active firehouse in the city, and provides a large portion of the south side of Poughkeepsie with fire protection. When constructed, this firehouse was built like many others of its time. We are very fortunate to have had this building stand up for nearly 100 years. Over time, the infrastructure has deteriorated and though the city has made improvements to the building, the larger repairs to the main construction of the building is in critical need of repair. With limited vacant land to construct a new facility, it is crucial that we make the necessary repairs to this historic building on the Southside of Poughkeepsie. With funding allocated for this project, the residents of Poughkeepsie will continue to receive the high level of emergency service the fire department provides. After these critical repairs to the Hooker Avenue firehouse are completed, this firehouse will continue to provide fire protection to the residents of Poughkeepsie for another 30 to 40 years."

"This grant will help two very different, but equally critical programs within the Arlington Fire District," said Arlington Fire District Chief William Steenbergh. "Our Rochdale firehouse was built nearly 70 years ago as a volunteer station and simply does not meet the needs for a station that is staffed by a crew of on-duty firefighters and paramedics 24/7. We are preparing to undertake a renovation to the facility to make it better prepared for today's use. This grant will jumpstart that by equipping the station with a new sprinkler system that will offer vitally important protections to keep our personnel safe while on duty. This grant will also allow us to continue to train and refine our skills in the highly specialized and often dangerous area of technical rescue.

we have responded across the Hudson Valley to assist local departments when these infrequent, but highly complex incidents occur. This grant will allow us to train more of our responders and provide them with critical skills to both safety and effectively operate at technical rescue incidents. Together, this grant will help keep both Arlington firefighters and Hudson Valley families safer."

"Since the Tivoli Firehouse endured a devastating fire years back we have been dedicated to rebuilding both in growing our volunteer department to now one of the largest in the region and expanding our training and mutual aid," said Tivoli Fire Chief Marc Hildenbrand. "The commitment that our Congressman Pat Ryan has made by prioritizing the firehouse in his Community Funded Projects is one more essential step forward in realizing our expansion to not only support our entire service area but to invest back in these incredible volunteers donating countless hours that our families, neighbors and friends rely on each and everyday."

"The City of Beacon Fire Department and Beacon Professional Firefighters are proud to announce the receipt of a FEMA Assistance to Firefighters Grant," said Beacon Fire Department Chief Thomas Lucchesi. "With help and support from Congressman Pat Ryan and other elected officials, City of Beacon Fire Department has received over $67,000 for the purchase of new radio equipment. The new radios will enhance our firefighters' safety and operational capabilities while protecting the citizens."

Rolison to hold free paper-shredding events for 39th Senate District residents

State Sen. Rob Rolison, 39th District, announced on Aug. 1 the return of his free paper-shredding event at two locations. In partnership with Hudson Valley Credit Union, a Legal Shred mobile shredding and disposal vehicle will accept documents and other paper products at these locations on the following dates: John Jay High School, 2012 Route 52, Hopewell Junction on Saturday, August 17; and the Newburgh Mall parking lot, 1401 Route 300, Town of Newburgh in Orange County, on Saturday, Aug. 24.

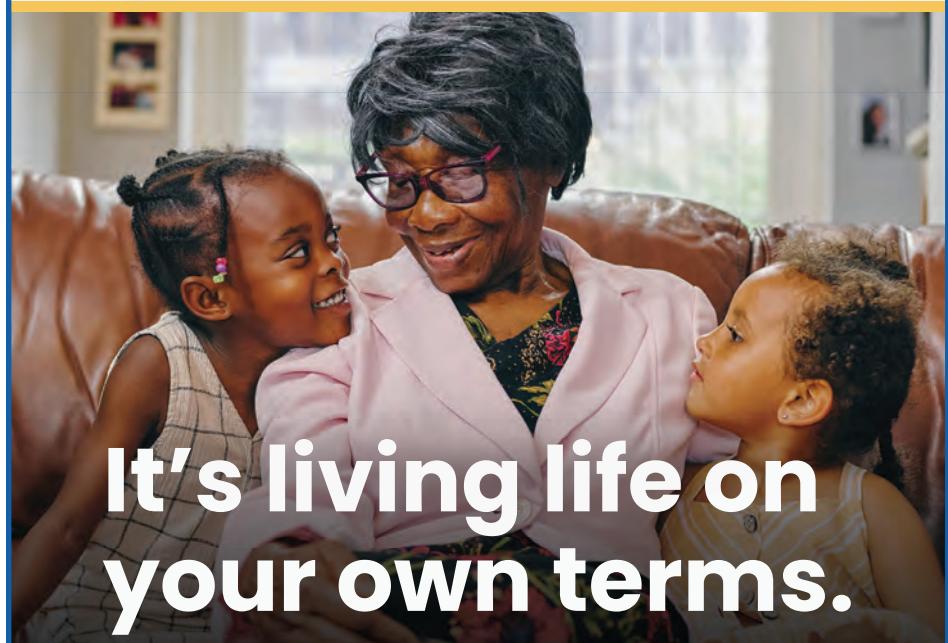

Both events are free and run from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Items are accepted on a first-come, first-served basis, or until the truck's capacity is reached. Participants are asked to bring no more than three boxes of documents with dimensions of 18" x 12" x 10" at a time; those with more than three may be asked to line up again in order to provide ample opportunity for all to dispose of their documents.

These events are limited to residents of the 39th Senate District. Check your eligibility at <https://www.nysenate.gov/find-my-senator>.

"This is a great opportunity to dispose and recycle the document waste we all accumulate," said Rolison. "I hope you'll join us again at these free shred events on August 17 and 24. Let's do our part to reduce landfill refuse while removing clutter in our home. See you in Newburgh and Hopewell!"

Hinchey and Serino announce $1M for DPW equipment

On July 30, New York State Senator Michelle Hinchey and Dutchess County Executive Sue Serino announced $1 million in state funding for new heavy-duty road maintenance equipment for the Dutchess County Department of Public Works (DPW). This includes a caterpillar excavator, wood chipper, roadside mower, snow plows, and sanding trucks. Former Senator Serino initiated the state grant during her tenure, and Senator Hinchey advanced it to fulfillment this year.

Hinchey said, "Our local roads and infrastructure matter, and updating them directly improves the safety and quality of life in our Hudson Valley communities. I'm proud to have worked with County Executive Serino to deliver this significant investment so that our local crews can get the tools they need to keep roads safe and in good shape across Dutchess County."

"Dutchess County is grateful to Senator Hinchey for her support in finalizing this $1 million grant for the Department of Public Works for critical road maintenance equipment," said Serino. "The safety of our local residents remains a top priority, and the equipment purchased will go a long way in ensuring our local roads are well-maintained and accessible."

Robert Balkind, Commissioner of Dutchess County Department of Public Works, said, "I wish to thank both County Executive Serino and Senator Hinchey for their efforts to secure this grant. Keeping our fleet of heavy equipment in good order is essential to the Department of Public Works' ability to deliver the vital services we provide to our community. On behalf of our DPW team and the community we serve every day, thank you both for your work to provide this funding to Dutchess County."

is so important because most kids today are so removed from agriculture. It's teaching them where their food comes from and they will remember this for years to come. The excitement they have when they can actually pet the calf and ask questions about her is so great."

As a regular part of the dairy program, they bring wooden cows with an artificial udder of sorts to allow the kids to try their hand at milking. DeForest said, "When they milk the wooden cows, they realize how hard it would be to milk by hand. This allows us to explain how we milk the cows with a machine and even robots are used now for optimum milk quality."

Messina shares recollections of this event with an anecdote: "The most often asked question is 'does chocolate milk come from brown cows?'"

DeForest notes that "a lot of the kids have no idea that food has to come from someplace to get to the grocery store. Up until they get into one of these sessions, many have never even thought about where the food actually comes from."

The program focuses on grades K - 12 and the older students get exposed to an even deeper understanding of some of these topics. Messina organized an opportunity for Dutchess BOCES students to take a field trip to a farm. Students met with veterinarians from Millbrook Equine and Rhinebeck Equine, as well as Kent Feeds Sales Manager, Mackenzie Chauncey.

Dr. Paul Mountain showed students a bit about imaging through x-ray, viewing a horse's back and identifying the different bones within the lower leg. He also brought along a skull from a horse that had a tumor that ate through the sinus cavity. Millbrook's Dr. Cyra Erwin scoped a horse, showing the students the start of the digestive tract through to the stomach.

The programs, in all of their variety, are provided to the schools free of charge. In-class activities follow a well developed lesson plan and can extend over multiple days or even weekly visits from time to time. Those in-class sessions encourage the students to consider the details of their topic, whether it is planting seeds and watching them grow until time to take them home and plant them in a garden, or doing actual dissections to see how the animals' bones and sinews work together as well as other systems in the animal.

The teachers who bring this program into their classrooms offer great reviews. Here are a couple: "The only regret I have is that I didn't have you in the classroom sooner! I think this is valuable experience for students and they would look forward to your visits." "The lessons and experience were fantastic. I loved the use of graphic organizers and visual supports. The hands-on experience was awesome."

DeForest shares her own view as well.

"It's also teaching them how to interact with people. They open up and tell us about their pets and other animal experiences."

How can you get your school involved? Messina enthusiastically offers the following:

"Lessons are provided at no cost and are available for grades K-12, geared appropriately for the age and grade level. If you are an educator, parent, PTA member, or administrator interested in this free resource, please reach out as we are accepting a few additions to our schedule this year!"

Contact Messina at dcasaged@dutchessfair.com. Programming can be designed to fit within existing curriculums, or bring in something totally new and exciting.

Historic Vassar-Warner Home to close in fall – after 153 years

After a storied history of serving the needs of senior citizens in Dutchess County and the greater Hudson Valley for 153 years, Vassar-Warner Home, located at 52 S. Hamilton Street in the City of Poughkeepsie, has announced it will close its doors this fall.

Following plans filed with, and approved by, the New York State Department of Health, the county's only nonprofit senior living home is working diligently to relocate its 35 residents on or before October 14, 2024, to available facilities that will best meet their needs.

"It is with great sadness and regret that I share this news," said Ericka Von Salews, executive director of Vassar-Warner Home. "Vassar-Warner Home has been a beloved part of our community and a much-needed resource locally. We will remain open until every resident has been placed in their new home and we will do everything possible to make this transition smooth for our residents and their loved ones, as well as the compassionate team who work here."

Despite repeated efforts to recruit help privately and on the state and local levels, Vassar-Warner Home cites unsustainable Medicaid reimbursement rates, occupancy challenges, and rising costs as barriers that have made it impossible to remain operable. The facility, listed on the National Register of Historic Places, comprises 58 private rooms. Currently, it accommodates 18 individuals in independent living and 17 adults in assisted living and offers respite care services.

"Our Home Board of Trustees and Foundation Board would like to thank the 34 dedicated staff members who provide excellent, award-winning care to our residents, including Executive Director Ericka Von Salews, who has led Vassar-Warner Home successfully for the past eight years," said Vassar-Warner Home Board of Trustees President Ellen C. Smyth.

RENEGADES ROUNDUP

Series sweep over Jersey Shore moves Renegades into 2nd place

By Rich Thomaselli

What a difference a week makes. It was a great return home for the Hudson Valley Renegades, and even better to find success against division opponent Jersey Shore.

The team showed great signs of life by sweeping the six-game series at Heritage Financial Park. The six-game sweep was the second-ever for the Renegades, with the last coming July 4-10, 2022 - also against Jersey Shore.

The Renegades have won seven consecutive games and are now 19-16 on the season and just a half-game behind Greensboro in the league standings.

In the series opener last Tuesday, the Renegades earned a dominant win against the BlueClaws, recording nine hits in a 6-1 victory at Heritage Financial Park. Trent Sellers turned in a strong start, allowing just two hits in four scoreless innings while striking out six. He has not allowed an earned run in his last 24.1 innings across eight appearances and has retired 40 of the last 43 batters he has faced.

In the second Antonio Gomez led off with a single. He later scored in the frame on an RBI single by Christopher Familia off Casey Steward (1-1) to put Hudson Valley in front 1-0. Eight batters came to the plate for the Renegades in the fourth with two runs coming home. A Josh Moylan single and Garrett Martin double put runners at second and third with one out. After a walk to Familia loaded the bases, a Kiko Romero RBI single scored Moylan from third.

In the next at-bat, Brenny Escanio drew a bases-loaded walk to extend the Renegades lead to 3-0. In the fifth, Hudson Valley brought two more runs home. After Gomez was hit by a pitch and Moylan earned a walk, Familia ripped a two-run double to right, driving in Moylan and Martin. Familia was 2-for-3 with a double and three RBI and a walk.

In the second game of the series and on the last day of the month of July, with a four-run ninth inning the Renegades earned a remarkable 6-5 walk-off victory over the BlueClaws on Camp Day. Josh Moylan sent the crowd home happy with a walk-off single for his second walk-off knock of the season. Kyle Carr notched his third consecutive strong start. The southpaw allowed just four hits and two earned runs across five innings with six strikeouts. In his last three starts, Carr has allowed just three runs and seven hits in 15.0 innings with 15 strikeouts.

It was much closer on Thursday, but still a 4-3 victory for Hudson Valley. The Blue Claws took the lead in the first. After reaching on an error to begin the game, Trent Farquhar scored on an Andrick Nava double to put Jersey Shore in front 1-0.

In the second Familia led off with a walk. Gabrielson drove him home with an RBI double to tie the game, his 12th two-bagger of the season. Still tied at 3-3 in the bottom of the fifth inning, Brenny Escanio doubled to lead off the frame. He advanced to third on a groundout and came home on a sacrifice fly by Avina. There was no scoring the rest of the way, as the Hudson Valley bullpen was stellar behind Blane Abeyta. Mason Vinyard, Joel Valdez and Matt Keating combined for 4.2 scoreless innings. Keating earned his third save of the season with 1.2 scoreless frames.

On Friday night, the team weathered a rain delay that was three minutes short of two hours and posted a 7-1 victory. Cam Schlittler was stellar again for Hudson Valley, allowing just one run in five innings, while matching a season-high with nine strikeouts. He now has a team-leading 108 strikeouts in 86.2 frames this season. Hudson Valley took the lead in the top of the second when Garrett Martin reached on an error and stole second. He later scored on an RBI single by Anthony Hall to make it 1-0 Renegades. Schlittler was able to escape a bases-loaded, one-out jam in the fourth without allowing a run. Jersey Shore was just 2-for-10 with runners in scoring position and left eight on base. In the bottom of the fourth Kiko Romero ripped a solo home run to right off Mitch Neunborn, his sixth of the season. Romero finished 2-for-3 with two runs scored, a triple, a home run and one RBI.

Hudson Valley made it a season high for consecutive victories by winning 8-3 on Saturday. Hudson Valley took a 4-0 lead in the bottom of the fourth inning and, as it turned out, that was all the offense the Renegades would need.

On Sunday, Sellers continued his dominance on the mound, tossing four perfect innings while inducing six groundball outs as the Renegades won their seventh straight game by a score of 7-5.

Hudson Valley is on the road this week with six games in Brooklyn.

Kiko Romero ripped a solo home run on Friday night, his sixth of the season. He finished the game 2-for-3 with two runs scored, a triple, a home run and one RBI. Photo by Dave Janosz

GENERAL MANAGER Q & A

Focusing on community events and gearing up for start of school

Editor's note: The Hudson Valley Renegades have a first-year general manager in Zach Betkowski. He sits down with reporter Rich Thomaselli every week to share his thoughts on the Renegades and minor league baseball.

Is there a change in philosophy or a new emphasis now that school is starting up fairly soon?

We've talked about this before - but with the season winding down, how does the management help new players get acclimated?

To be honest, we try not to interfere too much out of respect for the Yankees. Most of our interaction with the players comes from community events. We're very community minded. The Yankees are very community minded. There's always a sign-up sheet in the clubhouse. It's a daily thing. But we also try to give the players and coaches their space, so they can focus on the job at hand. We concentrate on the business side of things. But a lot of the overlap does come in those community events.

Finally, the team is red hot. I know you said you focus on entertainment and other things, and that the baseball is secondary. But do you find yourself peeking a little bit?

Sure. Of course. You always want the players to have that postseason experience.

Parisi: Poughkeepsie man sentenced to 10 years in prison following menacing incident with City of Poughkeepsie Police

Dutchess County District Attorney Anthony Parisi announced on July 31 that a Poughkeepsie man has been sentenced to 10 years in prison and 5 years of post-release supervision for a menacing incident with the City of Poughkeepsie Police occurring on August 20, 2023. Leopoldo Duarte Palacios, 38, pleaded guilty to Criminal Possession of a Weapon in the 2nd Degree, a Class C Armed Violent Felony in April, according to a press release from Parisi.

District Attorney Anthony Parisi said, "Today's sentencing underscores my office's commitment to protecting those who protect us. Pointing a gun at law enforcement officers is a grave offense that jeopardizes the safety of our entire community. I commend the officers involved who acted swiftly to neutralize the threat and ensure public safety while putting their own lives on the line. Today's sentence holds the defendant accountable for his actions."

The District Attorney said this incident occurred in the City of Poughkeepsie at approximately 8 p.m. near 632 Main Street. After receiving a call for service, the City of Poughkeepsie responded and at that time, Duarte Palacios pulled the firearm from his pants pocket and pointed the gun at a City of Poughkeepsie Police Officer. Duarte Palacios attempted to load a round into the chamber as he struggled with a member of the City of Poughkeepsie Police, according to Parisi. Another officer discharged his firearm striking Duarte Palacio in the arm. Duarte continued to refuse to release the firearm during the struggle. Officers were eventually able to recover the illegal firearm and render aid to Duarte for his injuries.

The case was prosecuted by Deputy Unit Chief Aviv Segal and Senior Assistant District Attorney Heather Ryan.

Lawler voices opposition to plan allowing boys to compete on girls teams in HS

By Rich Thomaselli

A U.S. Congressman who represents part of Dutchess County has objected to a rumored plan that the New York State Regents is considering allowing boys to participate in girls high school sports.

Congressman Mike Lawler reacted after news broke that the New York State Board of Regents is considering a sweeping change to allow boys to compete in girls-only sports and compete for spots on their teams.

This has been a nationwide issue for virtually all of this decade.

"I am deeply disturbed by recent reports that indicate the New York State Board of Regents is considering a move that would effectively eliminate girls-only sports as we know it," said Lawler (NY-17). "As a girl dad, I can definitively say this is the last thing that New York State should be doing. It's absurd. ... Allowing high school boys to compete against girls in sports will destroy fair competition, take away scholarship opportunities for girls, and put girls at a higher risk for injury. ... I condemn the NYS Board of Regents for considering this and urge them to expeditiously reverse course – anything less is a total slap in the face to tens-of-thousands of girls competing in high school sports across the state."

Lawler represents New York's 17th Congressional District, which contains all or parts of Rockland, Putnam, Dutchess, and Westchester counties.

NEWS FROM THE RHINEBECK GARDEN CLUB

Garden tours, outdoor meetings

In July, The Rhinebeck Garden Club's monthly meetings moved outdoors. We visited some of our members' gardens and had private guided tours of two public ones: The Beatrix Farrand Garden and Wethersfield.

Membership continues to grow as we welcomed seven new members.

We are very proud of the job we did this year designing the Dough Boy Statue garden on East Market Street. Make sure to visit it if you haven't already done so. The club designs the beds, purchases and plants the flowers in time for the Memorial Day Parade. Many of our members contribute a week each season to water and weed it. We also have a spring garden on Huntington Road, although less visible, it shouldn't be missed.

Our annual bake and plant sale of perennials, shrubs, herbs, and houseplants is September 28 at The Rhinebeck Reformed Church. Selection is always varied and priced competitively. Contact us if your perennials or small shrubs need dividing, and you would like to donate them to the sale. A member may be able to help dig and pot if you are unable.

Meetings are usually held at the Rhinebeck Village Hall at 10 a.m. on the fourth Wednesday of the month. Members are expected to participate in the Club by volunteering for or chairing a committee; suggesting or arranging a speaker or trip; presenting horticulture topics; serving on the board; signing up for refreshments; or opening their garden for member viewing.

For information, call club president Hannah at 914-263-5298, or log into Facebook.

Marathon of creativity set Aug. 10 in Kingston

On Saturday, Aug. 10, The D.R.A.W Studio in Kingston will be open to the public for its fourth annual DRAW-A-THON, a 12-hour extravaganza where from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. all-age visitors can drop in to respond to prompts and engage creatively.

The DRAW-A-THON is run by the studio's youth workforce, who serve as project creators and design engaging drawing experiences for the public throughout the day. Last year's participants made comics, zines, exquisite corpse collaborative drawings, pet portraits, and more.

This year's theme is "Under The Sea," so you can expect projects involving pirates, sea life, and of course, octopuses. The floors and walls will be covered with drawing surfaces - free for all to draw on at will.

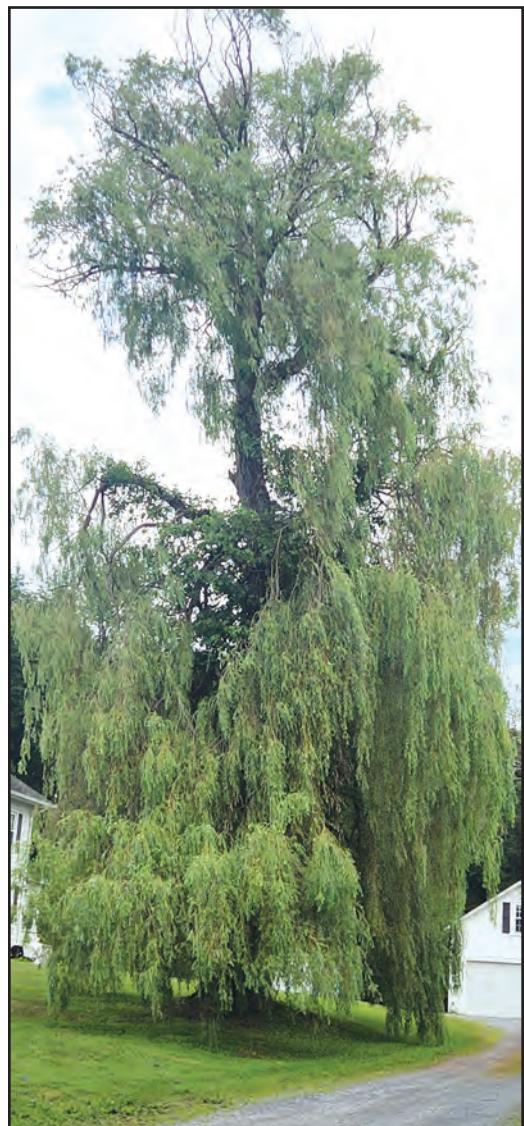

The results of the DRAW-A-Thon will remain in the gallery as an exhibition, and will be open to the public through August 28.

The gallery is at Energy Square, 20 Cedar St., Kingston. Visit <https://madkingston.org/> for more information.

August is Aspirin's anniversary

The ancient Egyptians and Sumerians used bark from willow trees to treat pain; Hippocrates wrote that both the willow's leaves and its bark relieved fevers. The ancients didn't know why the plant matter worked, but later researchers were able to isolate the key ingredient. By the mid-1800s salicylic acid was identified. In fact, salicylic acid can be found in the genus Spiraea, or meadowsweets, a group of about 100 species of shrubs in the family Rosaceae. These include jasmine, beans, peas, clover and certain grasses and trees.

DUTCHES COUNTY WILLOW FARM

grows Salix purpurea because it is hardy and mostly pest-resistant. She also grows other types of willow for variety in her weaving projects. (She can be found at <https://www.willowvale.farm/>)

THE TREATMENT COULD BE WORSE THAN THE CURE

Before August 10, 1897, if salicylic acid was administered to patients by itself, it could cause nausea, vomiting, and coma! It wasn't until that date that German chemist Felix Hoffmann created the compound acetylsalicylic acid, which had the anti-inflammatory properties of salicylic acid, but also buffered the effects of the acid on the stomach. (Coincidentally, August may also be the month that parents take fewer aspirin and teachers take more, but that is just conjecture.)

Hoffmann's discovery helped alleviate his father's rheumatism and positioned his employer, Bayer, to compete with other growing pharmaceutical concerns of the 19th century such as Merck, GlaxoSmithKline, Pfizer, Eli Lilly, and Squibb. Bayer sold acetylsalicylic acid in tablets called aspirin, a name derived from a combination of acetyl and Spiraea.

A BITTER PILL KEEPS PREDATORS AWAY

Interestingly, salicylic acid is used not just by people, but wildlife, as well. Viceroy caterpillars, which look like bird droppings, feed on trees which produce the herbivore-deterring compound. Once the Viceroys metamorphose into butterflies, they are mimics, once again. Their orange and black markings resemble those of Monarch butterflies.

As butterflies themselves, the Viceroys still contain salicylic acid due to fact that they fed on willows while in the larval stage. This acid not only causes the Viceroy to taste bad but makes whatever eats it sick.

ASPIRIN: WONDER DRUG, BUT DEADLY FOR SOME

Aspirin is a potent medical treatment with uses beyond the common "school-days headache." It can be used in treating cardiovascular conditions and cancer! It blocks the production of prostaglandins, which are hormone-like compounds which influence many reactions in the body.

Aspirin stops mild inflammation and pain by blocking prostaglandins which cause them.

However, prostaglandins function as part of the body's way of dealing with injury and illness. Prostaglandins can both constrict and dilate blood vessels, open or close airways, contract or relax muscles, alleviate or cause pain. Aspirin does not differentiate what type of prostaglandin it is blocking. To aspirin, the only good prostaglandin is a dead prostaglandin.

While aspirin blocks prostaglandins that cause pain, clotting, narrowing of blood vessels and inflammation, it also blocks prostaglandins that protect the stomach lining. This can cause stomach bleeding. Nonsteroidal anti-inflammatory drugs, or NSAIDs like ibuprofen (Motrin, Advil), naproxen (Aleve), and Aspirin all can cause stomach irritation. Aspirin is the most toxic to the stomach, but also the most versatile pain reliever.

But aspirin is not for everyone. Certain conditions make taking aspirin dangerous. There are several illnesses related to blood clotting factors and platelets, such as hemophilia, which make taking aspirin ill-advised.

The heavy lines indicate areas, called cages, from one to five squares in size. Fill each cage with unique digits, counting up from 1. So for example a 2-square cage contains the numbers 1 and 2; and a 5-square cage contains the numbers from 1 to 5. Adjacent (touching) squares, even ones that touch diagonally, may never contain the same number.

DECODING DUTCHESSESS PAST

By Melodye Moore

Editor's note: This is an incomplete, "snippet view" of an article from the 2023 DCHS Yearbook, vol. 102, "Farming in Dutchess County." You will find the whole article at www.dchsn.org/yb-2023 or by purchasing a print copy at amazon.com (search books). If you have any questions, contact Bill Jeffway at bill.jeffway@dchsn.org. Melodye Moore is a DCHS Trustee, Chair of Collections, and Co-Chair of Interpretation.

During the second quarter of the nineteenth century the agricultural economy of New York went through a period of profound change. The 1825 opening of the Erie Canal had made available more fertile western lands and eastern New York farmers were forced to diversify. While wheat remained the most important cash crop until after 1850, it began to be displaced by corn, oats, barley, rye, hay, dairy products, sheep and wool and fruit orchards. As farming became more and more competitive and complicated, farmers soon realized that they needed more skills and there was a concurrent rise in interest in improved machinery and in scientific agriculture.

In her book "The Nature of the Future: Agriculture, Science and Capitalism In The Antebellum North," Emily Pawling explores the active scientific community thriving in New York in the years preceding the Civil War that was interested in agricultural improvement. One of the "improving agriculturists" she cites is the Ward family of Pleasant Valley that included Alson Ward.

Pawley points to entries included in Alson Ward's diary, now part of the collections of the Dutchess County Historical Society, that describe the Wards improving their soil with plaster, ashes, and stable manure, their use of a water-powered corn -sheller, a threshing machine, and an automatic hog feeder.

On October 18, 1844 Alson records "father spent his time fitting a hive of bees in my bedroom for experimenting &c." Presumably the bees remained there through the winter for on Mary 6, 1845. Alson shares "We have fed the bees for a few days in the following manner by placing honey in a flat square tin pie dish with a floating board filled with holes that they may eat readily in the middle of which we placed a bottle of honey prepared with a stimulus sufficient for them. Today they used two bottles of honey the eleven hives which consist our stock."

The Wards were also working on a design for a machine that would brush their peaches in order to remove the then characteristic fuzz on the outside of the peach. Presumably this design was a forerunner to the 1851 patent granted to Joshua O. Ward for improvement in machines for peeling and cutting peaches.

The Ward family, originally from England, was among the early settlers of Pleasant Valley and owned a mill and farmlands 2 1/2 miles from the village on what is today Traver Road. Despite the success of their milling operation, the Wards saw themselves as farmers and self-identified as such in census records. The "1850 United States Selected Federal Census- Non-Population Schedule" provides an overview of the agricultural production on their 81-acre farm. Valued at $6,000, the entirety of the farm is listed as improved and seems similar in size and worth with others in the nearby vicinity. The farm's livestock, valued at $500 included 3 horses, 5 milch cows, 1 other cattle, and 10 swine. The field crops enumerated in the schedule included such staples as wheat, rye, Indian corn and oats. Other produce worthy of mention was 500 pounds of butter which the diary records as being marketed in Poughkeepsie, and 15 pounds of beeswax. Numerous diary entries from 1844 – 1847 describe the Wards' apple orchards and provide great detail about the labor-intensive work necessary for the successful cultivation of peaches, so it is surprising that column 97, Value of Orchard Products in dollars is empty.

Starting in the spring of 1844 Alson's diary entries reveal what was required annually in order to create and maintain the family's peach orchards as follows:

"April 9: Went to Poughkeepsie to see about getting some peach trees. April 11: Went to valley on foot in evening to get help to work in orchard. April 13: To Poughkeepsie to engage peach trees, engaged 300 of Daniel Beadle at 10 cents, bought those, inoculated last fall, the inoculating just starting. April 15: Put ashes around peach and apple trees."

On April 17th Alson describes in great detail how their new peach trees were planted: "Spent most of the day planting peach trees. The method followed by us was by placing a large scoop shovel full of manure on top of the ground where the hole was intended and also a quart or two of unbleached ashes, also dug up the ground with a stubbing hoe in order to loosen it well and get the manure and ashes well mixed with the ground, then made a hole with a spade or shovel for the tree. Place the tree in and partly fill the hole with the dirt and after they were all set in this way we put half a pail of water on each tree and pulled the remaining dirt around the tree."

The rest of the summer, in addition to other farm chores, there was always weeding and hoeing around the peach trees, and by August it was time to inoculate the trees.

Very little diary space is given to the harvesting of the peaches but on September 16th of 1844 Joshua set off to the State Fair in Poughkeepsie with some of his peaches.

The remaining years of Alson's diary record the same monthly sequence of peach orchard related tasks... Please visit www.dchsn.org/yb-2023 to read the full article.

Deer in the headlights

Pop's remarkable power of persuasion

My father can be very persuasive. He has a certain charisma about him. I call it the deer in the headlights syndrome, whereby he is the headlights and you are the deer. One time in particular, his powers of suggestion were in full display.

My parents have three apartment buildings on the property that we lived on. The basement apartments are half underground and there were always problems with flooding and mildew. Pop decided that the foundation drains needed to be replaced and we were going to do it ourselves over our summer break. By we, I mean me and my brother Vinny.

Over the course of a week, Pop poked and prodded around the apartments. When he was done, he explained to me and Vinny what we were going to do. We were going to rent a backhoe, dig out the area next to the apartments, seal the exterior walls, lay in new perforated pipes, pour gravel on top of the pipes, spread new topsoil over the top of the gravel and plant new grass seed. Three buildings, should take us a week. As he spoke to us, he looked us in the eyes and almost hypnotically. We believed we could do exactly what he was telling us.

Piece of cake. Oh, did I mention that I was 20 and Vinny was 17?

So we started on a Monday. The backhoe arrived. I had first crack at learning how to use it. Yup, you guessed it: I never used a backhoe in my life. I got on and started playing with the controls. It was like a yellow mechanical bull of death. After about a half-hour of playing I finally got it so I didn't quite kill myself. Yup, this was going to be great.

I approached the first building, riding the yellow mechanical bull of death. I sank the teeth of the backhoe into the ground and started to dig. Though it took me longer than it should have, I got the first trench dug out in about two hours. Meanwhile, Vinny parged the outside of the foundation wall with black tar and started laying the pipe, while I started digging the trench on the other side of the building with the yellow mechanical bull of death. Slowly, Vinny and I worked our way around the building, laying pipe, filling in with gravel, spreading topsoil and planting seed. At the end of the second day, we finished the first building.

Pop came to inspect our work and told us he was pleased.

Day three began with rain. Pop told us to try to work through the rain, but the backhoe was slipping and sliding in the mud, and we were having trouble keeping the trench from caving in. Slowly, methodically, we made our way around the building until ... I dug in too deep and found the water main. Suddenly, thousands of gallons of water started pouring out of the hole. I don't know how I figured it out, but I managed to find the shut off and get the water turned off.

I called the restaurant and spoke to Pop, who was not too happy. He came home to see what was going on. We carefully dug out the pipe and luckily, I only shifted the pipe at the joint. All we had to do was realign the pipe and screw it back together.

At this point the rain was coming down in buckets and there was thunder and lightning. Pop told me to get in the hole and get the pipe put back together because the apartments were without water. The deer looked right into the headlights and got into the hole.

Suddenly, as I was putting the pipe back together, my hair stood up, I felt a tremendous jolt, saw a flash of light, heard a loud crack and boom and felt what I thought was a giant hammer across my hands. I got blown out of the hole and was laid out flat outside of the trench and out cold. When I came to, my father was screaming at me, slapping my face, "Luigi!!! Luigi!!! Say something!!! You OK!!!!"

Again, the deer looked into the headlights. I nodded my head and said I was OK. I looked at my hands and saw a burn mark in my palm and on the back of my hands. Pop said I had been blown out of the pit by a bolt of lightning.

I was in a bit of a fog. Everything was moving slowly. Pop kept asking me if I was OK. Slowly my wits came back and finally I told Pop I was good. He asked if I was sure.

Again the deer looked into the headlights. I nodded my head and said. I was OK. Pop looked me in the eyes and said OK, get back in the hole and finish the job.

As I said, Pop was very persuasive. So ... the deer looked into the headlights and ... got back into the hole and finished the job. Did I mention it was my birthday? July 26th.

That night, Mom made me and Vinny grilled chicken with lemon and mint with this pasta that was better than anything I had ever eaten. Maybe it was the hard work or maybe it was the deer in the headlights, but that was probably the best meal I ever had.

Wallace Center to screen 'The Vow from Hiroshima'

The Pare Lorentz Film Center at the Franklin D. Roosevelt Presidential Library and Museum and the Gillespie Forum will host a screening of the award-winning documentary film, "The Vow from Hiroshima," at 2 p.m. on Sunday, August 11, in the Henry A. Wallace Center at the FDR Presidential Library and Home.

A question-and-answer session with filmmakers Susan Strickler and Mitchie Takeuchi will follow the screening. This is a free public event, but registration is required. Visit fdrlibrary.org to register.

"The Vow from Hiroshima" is a poignant documentary that delves into the life of Setsuko Thurlow, a remarkable survivor of the atomic bomb in Hiroshima. At just 13 years old when the bomb devastated her city in 1945, Setsuko's harrowing experience is vividly captured in this intimate portrait. The film chronicles her enduring friendship with second-generation survivor Mitchie Takeuchi, offering a moving narrative of resilience and determination.

Setsuko's story is one of tragedy and triumph, as she recalls being pulled from a burning building after the bomb's impact, unable to save her 27 classmates who perished in the flames. This pivotal moment shaped her lifelong commitment to ensuring that no one else would suffer the same horrific fate.

Through decades of tireless activism, Setsuko's journey culminates in a powerful milestone -- the realization of her dream with the establishment of a Treaty on the Prohibition of Nuclear Weapons (TPNW). The International Campaign to Abolish Nuclear Weapons (ICAN) won the Nobel Peace Prize in 2017. Setsuko made the acceptance speech in Oslo, Norway.

Susan Strickler has directed over 700 hours of daytime television for The Young and the Restless, Guiding Light and Another World. She won a DGA Best Director Award and a Daytime Emmy Award. THE VOW FROM HIROSHIMA is her first documentary film. The film won the Audience Award at Ojai Film Festival and BEST FEMALE FILMMAKER DOCUMENTARY at Reading FilmFest. Currently, THE VOW FROM HIROSHIMA is being broadcast on Public Television and is shown in high schools, colleges and community groups around the country. In Japan, the film has been widely released in 19 cities and appeared on Wowow TV.

Mitchie Takeuchi is originally from Hiroshima and a long time New York City resident. She has been a social entrepreneur, a writer and a filmmaker. Her grandfather, Dr. Ken Takeuchi, was the director of the Red Cross Hospital in Hiroshima when the city was leveled by the first use of an atomic bomb and he and her mother, Takako, survived. Wanting to share what really happened under the mushroom cloud, Mitchie produced and co-wrote THE VOW FROM HIROSHIMA, interweaving the life story of Hiroshima survivor and activist Setsuko Thurlow, intergenerational activism and the historic negotiations of The Treaty on the Prohibition of Nuclear Weapons.

After the film had a successful year-long theatrical run in 19 cities in Japan, Mitchie received the 2021 Japan Film Renaissance Conference Peace Film Award.

OBITUARIES

William Budai

SALT POINT - William "Bill" Budai, 80, passed away most peacefully on Monday, July 29, 2024, at home, in Salt Point, NY.

Born in Poughkeepsie, NY, on April 2, 1944, he was the son of the late Michael and Geraldine Budai. He spent his entire life in Mid-Hudson Valley; his wife Susan Budai grew up there as well, and together they raised their family.

Many in the area knew Bill for his skills as a Master Mason. He was the long time owner of B&D Mason Corp. Bill built hundreds of homes and buildings in Hudson Valley. He mostly worked alone and was respected in the masonry community, his peers gave him the nickname "The Legend" which he truly is to this day.

Community was always part of Bills' life. He was an honorary member of the Salt Point Firehouse and an avid supporter of Heart of the Catskills. Bill also had a passion for less fortunate children by supporting St. Jude's Children's Research Hospital and Shriners Hospital for Children. Bill was a man of great wisdom, but few words...except during breakfast hour at the diner in Pleasant Valley, where he and Susan were regulars, catching up on the local happenings.

Bill fought mightily against his diagnosis of Parkinson's Disease. Susan and Bill explored and tried every available remedy to battle Parkinson's.

Bill rarely sat idle...be it spending time working around the family farm "Brookside" in Delhi, NY, maintaining various rental properties, playing with the family dogs, or just poking around his own yard, he was always active. When not working, Bill, Susan and the family spent time in Aruba. Family was always paramount to him. From helping with home improvements to attending grandchildren's ball games, he was always there.

Surviving are his loving wife Susan; son Michael Budai and wife Jamie; daughter Lori Budai; daughter Billie Joanne West and partner Robert West; grandchildren Brandon and Sierra West, Michael and Austin Budai; great granddaughter Rudi Lou Budai; and faithful companions Tuxedo and Camber.

In accordance with Bill's wishes, there will be no visitation or memorial service. Private burial of his cremated remains will be at the convenience of the family. Donations in Bill's memory may be made to: Heart of the Catskills, 46610 State Hwy 10, Delhi, New York 13753 or online at:

<https://www.heartofthecatskills.org>.

Arrangements are under the direction of Sweet's Funeral Home, Inc., Rte. 9, Hyde Park, NY.

Condolences may be left for the family at www.sweetsfuneralhome.com.

GOLDEN LIVING

GROW YOUR BRAINPOWER WITH OFA VOLUNTEERING

You may have heard of the legendary navigation skills of "black cab" taxi drivers in London, England. To get an operator's license, cabbies must pass a test known as "the knowledge." They're grilled on the entire city map within 6 miles of central London, and the shortest ways to get from one point to another within the city, without the help of navigation aids. "The knowledge" covers 25,000 streets and 20,000 landmarks. That's all the restaurants, all the hotels, pubs, pharmacies, florists, tailors, cemeteries, laundromats, plenty of work zones ... everything. Neuroscientists have studied London cabbies' brains and found that while cabbies have rarely pursued higher education, their brains grow as they learn their way around the city, regardless of age, whether they were born and raised in London or emigrated from the other side of the world.

In other words, older brains can learn new tricks.

LIKE LIAM NEESON, YOU HAVE A VERY PARTICULAR SET OF SKILLS

If you can navigate the back roads of Dutchess County without Google Maps; if you've found the perfect way to load your dishwasher; if you've planned your garden so that it looks its best without being too appetizing to the local deer, you've got the kind of brain OFA needs. You'd be an excellent candidate to help your fellow older adults navigate the complexities of Medicare, through the Office for the Aging's non-sales-oriented Health Insurance Information, Counseling and Assistance Program (HIICAP).

Have you ever seen one of those celebrity-driven Medicare ads on TV and wondered "wait – what on earth does Joe Namath know about Medicare?"

Congratulations: You're in the right frame of mind to become a volunteer HIICAP counselor.

HIICAP counselors are continually trained on the OFA version of "the knowledge": the changing aspects of Medicare, along with the programs that work together with Medicare. It can seem challenging at first, but it's worth it once your first HIICAP client walks out the door, relieved to know they had the opportunity to make the best possible decision for their health insurance needs going into 2025. In addition to helping Dutchess County's older adults get their insurance needs sorted, your ongoing HIICAP training also has the potential to keep you mentally flexible as you age, just like those London cabbies.

If you're on the fence about becoming a HIICAP volunteer, consider this alternative: HIICAP can also use your skills in clerical assistance. We work with hundreds of HIICAP clients every open enrollment season, and as we enter Medicare's busiest season your organizational skills will come in handy.

You can read about the full slate of OFA volunteering options at www.dutchessny.gov/ofavolunteer, which includes a printable volunteering form. You can also reach out to us using the contact information below.

'MEDICARE 101' AT ADRIANCE LIBRARY (Thu 8/8)

Turning 65 and attempting to navigate the Medicare world? Our upcoming "Medicare 101" presentation on Thursday, August 8th at Adriance Memorial Library in Poughkeepsie (93 Market St.) provides enrollment information for those new to Medicare and struggling to pick a plan.

You'll receive hands-on training, using the Medicare website to find information about Medicare Prescription Drug Plans and Medicare Advantage Plans. This free, in-person class at the library's Marcotte Computer Lab (main floor) is led by volunteers and staff from our Health Insurance Information Counseling and Assistance Program (HIICAP). Space is limited and registration is required; call the Library at 845-485-3445 x3380 to reserve your spot.

There will be many more Medicare 101 classes as we move into Open Enrollment season in the fall.

UPCOMING 'FRIENDLY CALLS' ORIENTATIONS

If you'd like to learn more about the Friendly Calls program where volunteers are connected with older adults in Dutchess County who are at risk of social isolation, you can use this link: www.dutchessny.gov/friendlycalls, AND you can sign up as a volunteer to take part in one of the upcoming Friendly Calls orientations here at OFA headquarters in Poughkeepsie (114 Delafield St.):

Tuesday, August 13th – 10:00 am

Monday, August 19th – 3:00 pm

For details, contact OFA Friendly Calls Outreach Coordinator Linda Edgar at ledgar@dutchessny.gov or call OFA at 845-486-2555.
