Italian village honors Pleasant Valley WWII hero with monument on 80th anniversary of his death

By Jim Donick

Pleasant Valley, New York, and a small village, Migliandolo in the Piedmont region of Italy, are forever linked by the memory of a Pleasant Valley flier who died on a hillside above the town while the Americans were fighting to free the Italy from the Germans in World War II.

Lieutenant Edgar Nelson Peters - Eddie to his family - was flying a P-47 Thunderbolt on a mission to bomb a German controlled rail yard nearby. It was reported that he was struck by flak (anti-aircraft fire) on his second strafing run. Nursing the plane as best he could, he crashed on the hillside above the town.

Apparently trying to make sure the plane didn't hit any houses, he stayed in it too long. He did keep from hitting any houses before bailing out at what was likely too low an altitude anyway. Jumping from a stricken fighter in those days often resulted in the tail of the plane hitting the pilot as he abandoned the aircraft. Eddie Peters' head was hit by the P-47's tail as he bailed out. He managed to pull the rip cord but he was too low for a full deployment of the 'chute. The villagers found him in his parachute beside the wreckage. It's likely the wound to his head from jumping had killed him anyway.

The death of this brave young man made a lasting impression on the people of Migliandolo, and his memory became a moving part of the town's history. Over time with memories, some of the details get foggy. A year or so ago, a young college student from the village, Gaia Grisoglio, decided to research his story. She had heard of it countless times from her great-grandmother, who had been working in a vineyard when the aircraft crashed on the hill above.

The local newspaper, La Nuova Provincia, in covering the memorial events, wrote:

"It is a piece of local history that has been handed down for 80 years and is still so anchored to the territory in which the event occurred that last Saturday it was also officially remembered with the unveiling of a commemorative stone.

"The story of that unfortunate American aviator itself became Migliandolo's story thanks also to the interest of a young university student, Gaia Grisoglio. 'I heard this story for the first of many times from my great-grandmother, Mercolina Maria Valle, who died at the age of 101 a few months ago' - says Gaia - 'It has always intrigued me and so I did research in the military and municipal archives and collected the declarations of the eyewitnesses of the time.' It all ended in a thesis among those awarded by the Astigiani Association in the name of Luciano Nattino, Luigi Raviola, Maria Peglia and Elia Badello, Fiorenzo and above all Paolo Vaccarino were precious witnesses in reconstructing what happened."

Gaia's boyfriend, Paolo Vaccarino, currently serving in the Italian army, also has a deep interest in World War II events in the area and had been covering much of the ground in search of clues where the P-47 actually went down. Together they made the perfect team to learn the story of 1st Lieutenant Edgar Nelson Peters in detail and protect his memory into the future. Their research covered both his background and family in the USA. They learned about his squadron's action in the Italian campaign as well as that of the actual mission that proved to be Eddie Peters' last. The resulting research led to the history award referenced above by La Nuova Provincia. The work also led to a profound tie to the memory of this brave young American.

In the spring of 2024 Gaia and her family came to lay flowers at the grave in the church yard of St. Paul's Church in Pleasant Valley and to become better acquainted with his prewar life and with some of his surviving family. At the same time, she was planning the permanent memorial to be erected in the town where he died. The plans for that memorial

For the fifth time in eight years, the team came up just short.

The Renegades lost in the South Atlantic League chamcame together and the dedication of it took place in Migliandolo on the 31st of August.

Two of Peters' grand-nephews, Tim Moorhead and Mike Shroeder, journeyed to Italy. The events created a moving memory that these men will share with their entire family.

"It was truly, truly wonderful! They made us so welcome and the emotion and care they showed for the memory of my uncle was just amazing," says Shroeder.

There were two events. One, on the 31st of August, unveiled the town's new monument to the memory of Peters. The other took place on September 4th, the 80th anniversary of his death.

Gaia Grisoglio arranged the ceremonies. The one in town, unveiling the monument, was attended by local dignitaries, including the local priest, Don Luigino; the Mayor, Allesandro Balliano; and Sergio Eberabo, the Piedmont's Councilor for the region of Asti. The monument, a base of brick, is topped with a P-47 in flight. It is flanked on either side by the flags of Italy and of the United States.

The memorial on September 4th included the placing of a cross at the site of the crash and Peters' death. This event proved an emotional moment. On that day the cross was decorated, not with flowers, but with the laurel wreath of a hero. A local bugler added to the atmosphere with the haunting notes of Dan Butterfield's moving music, "Taps."

Gaia summed up her reactions to the events.

"They were beautiful and moving ceremonies. Having Mike and Tim here has been truly an amazing thing. Now the story of Edgar Peters is both remembered in the U.S. and in Italy, as he deserves."

Clockwise from top: The dedication of the Peters memorial and flag poles for the Italian and American flags was well attended by many locals in Migliandolo, Italy. The story of the crash is one of the enduring memories the town has of the war. The two flags, flying side by side, are testimony to the enduring friendship between our two countries. Local dignitaries at the dedication included (foreground, left to right) don Luigino, the local priest; Mayor Allesandro Balliano, and Sergio Eberabo, the Piedmont's Councilor for the region of Asti. Red Hook CSD celebrates New York's longest-serving teacher

For more than six decades, the Red Hook Central School District community has known how special it is to have Linden Avenue Middle School (LAMS) teacher Martha Strever in its classrooms.

This fall, the district is celebrating Martha's 64th year of service while taking steps to help the world understand her impact on Red Hook students and faculty.

Martha is the longest-serving active teacher in New York, according to records submitted by school districts annually to the state Education Department, and is the longest active member of New York State United Teachers. Her time at LAMS officially began in 1961, before Red Hook High School or Mill Road elementary were built, though she also was a student-teacher at the school the previous year. In 1971 she became Red Hook's math department chair – the district's first female department head – a position she held for 49 years.

In August, LAMS submitted an application to Guinness World Records to confirm and recognize she is the owner of two records: the longest teaching career in one school and the longest career for a female math teacher. The district expects to receive a response to those applications by December.

Her impact on the school community is immeasurable. A memorable figure for thousands of students who have passed through the district, Martha has been known as a meticulous math teacher with a warm disposition and an expectation students give their all in the classroom, which has set a tone for student achievement in all areas. Many a student has also recognized Martha's style – she's rarely repeated an outfit through the course of a school year and can only be found wearing anything but a dress or skirt on annual field days. She's taught students' children, and students' children's children.

However, the most tangible representation of Martha's career's impact may be in the district faculty itself. More than a colleague whose experience has benefited dozens, if not hundreds, of young educators, Martha herself taught many members of the staff, including Principal Stacie Fenn Smith.

"Martha has made a lasting impact on thousands of students and educators," Superintendent of Schools Dr. Janet Warden said. "We deeply appreciate the commitment and joy Martha brings to the classroom every day."

Now a math teacher for students with special needs alongside co-teacher Christopher Wood, Martha plans to continue making a difference for students for years to come.

Destruction, starvation in Gaza prompts 'cognitive dissidence'

To the editor:

Cognitive dissidence keeps me up at night. On one side, my country preaches human rights and democracy. But at the same time, it sends Israel one-ton bombs to blow up what is left of Gaza.

There is very little left. Two million refugees are huddled under makeshift tents, waiting for food that never comes. Yet our sweet land of liberty keeps sending billions in military aid to keep the Palestinian genocide going. What perverse monster could think of doing such a thing to other human beings? What government bureaucrat would carry out such murderous orders?

The ongoing extermination of two million Palestinians in Gaza isn't hidden very well. Skeletal children are holding out their metal pots for any little scrap of food. They have to drink contaminated water because the electricity is gone and the pipes all destroyed. School for these children is just a memory of long ago. There are no school buildings left, nor any colleges. Nothing but rubble as the Palestinian people prepare their children to die.

I don't want to be a citizen of a country that does that to millions. Our pro-Zionist Congressional representatives get hundreds of thousands from the insanely rich Israel Lobby.

Grace Smith House, DCC partner to bring Clothesline Project to Mildred I Washington Gallery

October is Domestic Violence Awareness Month. Grace Smith House, Inc. is partnering with the Dutchess Community College Mildred I. Washington Gallery on one of the largest exhibitions of the Clothesline Project. The Clothesline Project is a visual display of t-shirts created by domestic violence victims and their loved ones. Every shirt is designed to represent each individual's domestic violence experience. This emotional expression is part of a national movement created to bear witness, help those impacted by the healing process, educate, and raise awareness of the extent of the domestic and sexual violence problem.

The exhibit opens September 30 and closes October 25 with an opening reception Wednesday, October 2 from 5 -7 p.m. There will be a tabling event in partnership with the DCC Counseling Center to contextualize the exhibit and raise awareness about on-campus services at 12:30 p.m. on October 3 in the Gallery.

The Gallery will display hundreds of t-shirts created over nearly 40 years. DCC Communications and Media Arts students produced an emotionally engaging video about the Clothesline Project that will be included in the exhibit. The video includes interviews with domestic violence survivors and presents how the creative process can help survivors deal with a history of trauma.

"Through the Clothesline Project 2024, Grace Smith House is increasing awareness of the devastating impact of domestic violence on families, celebrating the strength and resiliency of survivors, and providing ways to break through the silence that often surrounds domestic violence. Thank you, Dutchess Community College, for hosting the Clothesline Project at the Mildred I.

Washington Gallery. Together we are reaching more community members about the signs of abuse, creating a dialogue on how to stop domestic violence, and uplifting survivors. For details, www.gracesmithhouse.org," said Dr. Branka Bryan, Grace Smith House Executive Director.

Opening its doors in 1981, Grace Smith House has been serving the community for 43 years. For over four decades, courageous, compassionate, and empowered survivors have stepped across the threshold and received the support they needed to stop the cycle of domestic violence in their lives. Their door is open to every member of the community.

The Mildred I. Washington Gallery is open to the public Monday-Thursday 10 a.m. – 9 p.m. and Friday 10 a.m. – 5 p.m. The Gallery is at 1 Gallery Circle, Poughkeepsie, on the North side of the Dutchess Community College Campus.

Some tidbits from the notebook.

OUT FOR FOUR: The Renegades were looking for their fourth championship in team history, having won the New York-Penn League's Nader Cup three times: 1999, 2012 and 2017. Hudson Valley won the 1999 title over Mahoning Valley and the 2012 title over Tri-City at Heritage Financial Park, and the 2017 championship on the road at Vermont.

CHAMPIONSHIP CONNECTION: The last time the Renegades won the New York-Penn League in 2017, their manager was Craig Albernaz. The next season, Albernaz guided Bowling Green to its first Midwest League championship with a roster featuring 18 members of the 2017 Renegades. From 2020-23, Albernaz served as the Bullpen and catching coach for the San Francisco Giants, where he was joined on staff by current Renegades manager Nick Ortiz.

GRAND SLAMS: In a 2-2 game in the fifth on Tuesday, a grand slam by Omar Martinez helped lift the Renegades to a win in an elimination game. The Martinez blast was the fourth grand slam for the Renegades since August 13, after they had just one all season up until that point.

FOES FROM LONG AGO: The Renegades and Hot Rods played for the first time since late April. Hudson Valley played Bowling Green nine times in the first month of the season. Both teams won the second half in their respective divisions.

HOME BODIES: Hudson Valley completed their regular season with a 47-19 (.712) record at Heritage Financial Park this season, the best home record of any team in Minor League Baseball this season.

Renegades come up short in three-game series

both teams were held scoreless through the first three frames, but Bowling Green struck in the fourth. Mac Horvath singled and scored two batters later on an Aidan Smith RBI double. Smith came home in the next at-bat on a Noah Myers bunt single to make it 2-0 Hot Rods.

Trent Sellers finished his season with a career-high five innings, allowing two earned runs on six hits. The right-hander allowed two runs in the fourth but pitched a scoreless fifth to finish his outing. The Renegades cut the lead in half in the sixth. Brendan Jones led off the frame with a single, and with two outs George Lombard split the gap in left-center for a double, driving in Jones.

In the seventh Garrett Martin doubled to lead off the inning as the tying run. However, Owen Wild retired three straight Hudson Valley batters to keep Bowling Green in front. A Myers single and Tatum Levins double in the ninth put runners at second and third. The next batter, Raudelis Martinez, lined a two-run double to right to extend the Hot Rods advantage to 4-1. Drew Sommers set down the Renegades with a 1-2-3 ninth, sealing Bowling Green's third South Atlantic League Championship.

The 'Gades lost the opener, 5-1. Roc Riggio started the game with a bang, cracking a leadoff solo home run off Brody Hopkins to put the Renegades in front 1-0. But that was all Hudson Valley could muster.

In the bottom of the first Bowling Green answered against Baron Stuart when Colton Ledbetter walked, stole second, and scored on a Horvath double to tie the game. Horvath touched up Stuart (0-1) for a solo home run in the bottom of the third to give the Hot Rods a 2-1 lead. The right-hander finished his day after 2.1 innings, allowing two runs on seven hits, walking two and striking out four, exiting after being struck on the hand by a comeback line drive from Noah Myers.

Bowling Green extended its lead to 4-1 in the fifth when Horvath tripled before Smith hit a pinch-hit two-run homer off Joel Valdez.

The Renegades won the middle game by the score of 6-2.

Spackenkill girls soccer victorious over Marlboro with 8-1 win

POUGHKEEPSIE – The Spackenkill High School girls soccer team exploded all over Marlboro in a Mid-Hudson Athletic League game last week.

The Spartans were victorious, 8-1.

Maia Viggiano had three goals in the first half for the winners.

MILLBROOK – Put a victory in the win column for the Millbrook High School football team for the first time in almost five years.

The Blazers won their first game since 2019 as Kole Tempestelli threw a 47-yard touchdown pass to Collin Hay with 41 seconds left to beat Ticonderoga, 46-38, last Friday.

It was the home opener for Millbrook.

The dry spell with no victories is a bit misleading. The Blazers did not return to the football field until 2023. Since 2020, the program experimented with eight-man football as well as a merger with Dover.

Tempestelli rushed for 120 yards Robert Smith ran for 177 yards and three touchdowns.

GENERAL MANAGER Q & A

'Many great successes,' need to address failures

The Hudson Valley Renegades have a first-year general manager in Zach Betkowski. He sits down with reporter Rich Thomaselli every week to share his thoughts on the Renegades and minor league baseball.

The franchise took it as far as it could go in the South Atlantic League. Your thoughts?

I think that there is a lot to be proud of. From a business aspect, you just want to make sure that things are running smoothly, but I watched almost every pitch of the playoffs as a fan.

You said last week you guys might have to win it all to leverage a championship. But can you still promote and market successfully?

We just want to give the staff some free time. We'll probably dive into next year sometime in October. We'll take it department by department. We'll talk about best practices. We learned a lot this year. We had many great successes, but we also had a few failures we need to address.

Any early thoughts on next year and ideas to publicize the franchise without some of the things like the 30-year anniversary?

There's not necessarily going to be a theme for next season. At least there's not one right now unless we come up with one at our October meeting. I think we'll just look at each game as an opportunity to celebrate somebody's opening day. There's always going to be first-time fans in the ballpark on any given day.

Schlittler, Sellers 'both deserving of honors'

By Rich Thomaselli

WAPPINGES FALLS -- After a great second half, the postseason accolades should come rolling in.

Hudson Valley Renegades pitchers Trent Sellers and Cam Schlittler were named 2024 South Atlantic League All-Stars as starting pitchers. Schlittler was named Pitcher of the Year in the league, becoming the second straight Hudson Valley pitcher to garner that honor.

"Cam and Trent are both extremely deserving of these honors," said Renegades pitching coach Spencer Medick. "Cam had an incredible sophomore campaign in pro ball. He really dedicated himself to training last offseason and put himself on the map as a prospect this year. He's got an MLB fastball with a ton of pitchability. I still think he's underrated as a prospect and his breakout this year is only the beginning. He didn't miss a beat after his promotion to Double-A and has been dominant in Somerset as well."

Schlittler, 23, enjoyed a breakout season in 2024, vaulting into the ranks of the Yankees top pitching prospects with a fantastic season. In 17 starts with the Renegades, Schlittler went 6-4 with a 2.60 ERA in 86.2 innings, striking out 108 batters and holding opponents to a .191 batting average.

He joins Drew Thorpe, who was named 2023 South Atlantic League Pitcher of the Year, as Renegades pitchers to win a major postseason award in the Yankees era.

"Trent had one of the greatest stretches I've seen out of a pitcher," Medick said. "He was a part of as many no-hitters as he allowed runs in the second half – and from where he was to start the year to how he finished, he's really beginning to make a name for himself as a non-drafted free agent."

Broadcaster Jim Cerny is now the voice for the HV Venom

The Hudson Valley Venom, the area's hockey version of professional sports akin to minor league baseball's Hudson Valley Renegades, have a new voice.

Veteran broadcaster Jim Cerny has been named the official Voice of the Venom. Cerny, who brings three decades of professional hockey experience, will serve as the lead play-by-play broadcaster for the team's inaugural season.

In addition to his broadcasting duties, he will create exclusive content for the Venom's website and social media platforms, including interviews, insider blogs, and stories that will bring fans closer to the action.

The franchise is set to play its inaugural season as the Venom in Newburgh. They were known as the Vipers last year and played at the Civic Center in Poughkeepsie.

"As a New York kid, it's been an incredible experience working for both the Rangers and Islanders," said Cerny in a statement. "But to be able now to help build something brand new and special with my hometown hockey team in the Hudson Valley is an incredible opportunity, one that's got me fired up for our inaugural season. Venom fans can count on me to not only paint a clear, professional picture of the game action, but bring everyone closer to the players and coaches through storytelling, interviews, and content creation on our broadcasts, website, and social media channels. I'm super excited to get going and thank the Manning's for welcoming me into the Venom family. Let's drop the puck!"

The franchise is partly owned by former New York State Assemblyman Patrick Manning, who was instrumental in helping to bring the Hudson Valley Renegades here 30 years ago.

Cerny's career includes notable roles as the radio play-by-play voice for the New York Islanders and digital content producer/in-house beat reporter for the New York Rangers. He also contributed to Rangers broadcasts alongside sports-caster Kenny Albert, covered hockey for The New York Times and Sporting News, and was managing editor for NHL.com.

Cerny co-hosted NHL Live on Sirius/XM with radio personality Don Lagreca. Currently, he serves as Executive Editor and lead content creator for Forever Blueshirts, a website covering the Rangers.

"We are building the Hudson Valley Venom into a championship team from the ground up, so it makes sense to bring aboard one of the best in the industry to be the Voice of the Venom," said Pat Manning, President. "Jim Cerny is the consummate professional, and we are proud to have him join the Venom family."

Ruge's Automotive opens new Subaru Service Center, plans to expand workforce

Ruge's Automotive has announced that it has opened the doors to a 30,000 square-foot state-of-the-art service center at 3718 Route 9G. Executives from Ruge's report that they intend to expand their workforce as a result of this news. Applications are now being accepted for positions such as service technicians, service receptionists, porters and lot assistants, and shuttle drivers.

The Subaru Service Center property, which was formerly home to the STAMP machine shop, has recently undergone a full transformation by Ruge's - complete with construction of a brand new building that houses an 18-bay service garage, a comfortable customer lounge, and offices. The two-story center also stocks parts for all Subaru vehicles and offer retail parts sales.

Ruge's President and CEO Kristin Hutchins said, "We are very excited about all that our new service center has to offer - and the fact that we now have a larger space to accommodate a higher volume of vehicles on any given day. And in addition to traditional vehicle services, we are also offering express oil changes, tire rotations, and inspections; those express options do not require an appointment. Our customers lead busy lives and we want to provide the ease and convenience that they need and deserve."

The customer lounge is expansive, and includes one area designed specifically for children, along with coffee stations, televisions, and Wi-Fi. As has always been the case at Ruge's, a service advisor is assigned to each guest to process any necessary paperwork, provide status updates, and resolve questions. Kristin Ruge Hutchins explained, "We also have a shuttle service to bring our customers back and forth to the village if they wish to optimize their wait time to enjoy shopping, dining, or running errands."

Scott Hutchins, Vice President of Ruge's, explained the extensive research that went into design, construction, and outfitting of the facility - and how they will sustain the ongoing focus on customer service which has always been at the root of Ruge's business model. "Our goal is the highest-level experience for the customer --- whatever we can do to make it the ideal experience for them." He added, "If you have a heated garage at home, in the winter, you can get in your car, drive into a heated environment, wait in the lounge, have your car delivered to you inside, and go home without putting a coat on or going outside."

Also notable is the company's effort to incorporate eco-friendly practices. "Waste oil will be directed to storage tanks and used to fuel the two 500 BTU waste oil burners to heat the facility in the winter. In the service area, the innovative environmental recovery system exchanges air constantly, eliminating the need for exhaust pipe hoses and vents."

GOLDEN LIVING

THIS WEEK IS FALL PREVENTION WEEK

How many of you have used a kitchen chair as a step stool? Seriously, don't do that.

If there's one factor that causes life-threatening injuries among older adults more than any other, it's accidental falls. This week is Fall Prevention Week, which coincides with the beginning of autumn.

According to the Dutchess County Medical Examiner's office, in 2023 there were 97 cases referred to their office in individuals 60 or older in which the manner of death was determined to be accidental. Of those 97 cases there were 47 deaths in which a fall contributed to the death – almost half. Falls are the largest category of accidental death in the 60+ age group.

Using a step stool is a safer option, but better still is to minimize the need to climb in the first place. Are there items around your house that are stored too high only because that's the way they've always been stored? Now's the time to try arranging your living space so that commonly used items are within grasp level, no higher than one's shoulder. Leave the higher spaces for rarely used and less bulky items that could be reached with a grabber.

Having reduced the need to climb, it's hard to eliminate the need entirely. There's one key household item, for example, that needs to be installed in a higher location: your smoke detector. It's encouraging to know that new smoke detectors in New York State must be sold with ten-year batteries or be hardwired, both of which save you from having to climb to swap out batteries whenever there's a Daylight Saving Time switch.

OTHER SMOKE DETECTOR TIPS

- If a member of your household has difficulty hearing, consider a smoke detector that produces flashing lights and/or vibrations in addition to a loud noise.

- Detectors should be installed outside each sleeping area; inside any bedroom where the door is typically shut (recommended); and on every story of the house, including the basement.

- Install wall-mounted smoke alarms 4 to 12 inches from the ceiling, and ceiling-mounted models at least 4 inches from the nearest wall.

- Test units once a month.
- Use a vacuum cleaner's brush attachment to clean detectors. Use a lightly damp cloth to wipe off any built-up kitchen grease.

LIGHTING IN ROOMS WITH HIGH CEILINGS

How many ladders does it take to change a light bulb? (Not a light bulb joke, we promise.)

The answer is none, in most cases. Even high ceilings can be accessed with the help of a light bulb changing kit that mounts on a pole. Instead of climbing a ladder and risking a fall, you stay on the floor and use the changing kit to remove the old bulb and install the new one. Check with your local hardware store.

Serino announces new fly car grant opportunity to help support EMS crisis

Dutchess County Executive Sue Serino recently announced that applications are now being accepted for the county's new grant opportunity that would provide life-saving equipment to fire departments, rescue squads and ambulance corps for their "fly car" vehicles.

"When it comes to a medical emergency, seconds count, and as the communities across Dutchess County face challenges with emergency medical services, we're committed to creating out-of-the-box solutions to address this crisis," said Serino. "Fly cars are often the first to respond to an emergency scene and can provide life-saving medical services to stabilize patients until an ambulance arrives, which can make the difference between life and death. I encourage our first responders to apply for this new initiative and look forward to continuing to work alongside them to grow our EMS resources."

Dutchess County fire departments, rescue squads, and ambulance corps will be eligible to apply for up to $20,000 grant awards for life-saving equipment for their fly car vehicles. Eligible equipment expenses include equipment required by Title: Section 800.26 Emergency Ambulance Service Vehicles other than an ambulance. Other appropriate life saving equipment includes devices like the Lucas Chest Compression System, a portable mechanical device that provides automated compressions to help manage cardiac arrest.

Grant applications are now available online via the Dutchess County's online grant portal and will be accepted until Friday, October 11, 2024. Award announcements are expected to be made in November 2024.

In exchange for the equipment, the fly cars will feature branded, unified recruitment messaging on portions of the vehicles to encourage residents to consider career and volunteer opportunities. The branding will also include a centralized web address that will provide more information about the EMS field, including the paramedic program at Dutchess Community College.

Instructions and guidance for the grant application is available online: go to www.dutchessny.gov, select Government – All Departments – Emergency Response, and scroll down to EMS Fly Car Opportunity. Applicants must ensure compliance with Dutchess County's Procurement Policies and Procedures.

For more information on the grant program and application process, contact the Department of Emergency Response at (845) 486-2080.

Rhinecliff Chili Cook-Off: Fun for all

Submitted by Cynthia Baer

The Rhinecliff Volunteer Fire Co & Rescue Squad hosted its 13th Annual Chili Cook-Off and Field Day on Saturday, Sept. 21, at Firemen's Field in the Hamlet of Rhinecliff. The weather offered a perfect day for a community get-together that has become a staple to the end of summer and beginning of Fall.

This year, new children's games, a cornhole tournament and community Tug-of-War rounded out the field activities, with free hot dogs, chips and soda leading up to the main event.

The Chili Cook-Off and Pie Contest were, of course, the highlight of the day. This year there were 13 chili entries rich in tastiness and diversity. Each contestant named their chili with enticing titles like Chili Royale (Sharon Roy), Beef Churizo, No beans! (Brian DelPizzo), NoRhi Chili (Leo Polan) or just plain Venison Chili (Mariah Smalley) and Surf & Turf Chili (Carl Utz). Chili judges, Sandy Bartlett, Chad Klietch, Paul Butler and Ivan Mentzke deliberated for nearly a half hour while the crowds lingered in anticipation to try all the interesting choices.

In the end, first place $100 prize was awarded to Joe Baer, a longtime resident of Rhinecliff and re-occurring winner, for his Chicken Taco Chili with Savory Rice. Second place went to Luis Gison for his Beef and Bean Chili, and 3rd place went to Christopher Dorsey for his Sweet Corn Chili. The crowd also weighed in on the judging with a People's Choice Award which went to Ari Pomerawtz of Rhinebeck for his Short Rib Chili.

On the other end of the field, pie judges Rudy McGuire, Tim Hermans and Tim Henke were busy test-tasting a selection of 9 fruit pies equally diverse. There were traditional entries of pumpkin (Jean Jaeger), Blueberry (Marita Sturken), Mini Apple pies (Charlie DelPizzo), and more exotic including Grilled Peach Slab Pie, (Eric Stritt), and Pineapple Mango Pie (Luis Gison). The winning circle for pies included Lauren Kingman, 1st place, for his Patriotic Mixed Fruit Lemon Cream Pie, Kate Cox, 2nd Place, for her Berry Pie, and 3rd place, Lisa Gitelman for her Cherry-Rhubarb Pie.

After the verdict was in, Judge Rudy commented, "Honestly, I never imagined this would be so difficult."

The event ended with a new addition which brought animated excitement to the day: a Tug of War between North and South Rhinecliff. Joe Baer officiated the best of three pulls competition. Said Baer, "It was a fierce competition. In the second pull, North Rhinecliff almost overtook the South. But in the end, the South surged and won it fair and square."

Rhinecliff Fire Company is always looking for volunteers. Wherever your interests lay, we have a job for you! To volunteer visit rhineclifffirerescue.org. For more information, call Cynthia Baer (845) 876-5738.

Big Read 2024 to honor 60th anniversary of Civil Rights Act

This year, the Big Read will run from Friday, Oct. 4 through Sunday, Nov. 3. Every year the Big Read program celebrates the power of literature and gathers the community around a book selection. This year's selection for the annual 2024 Big Read honors the 60th anniversary of the Civil Rights Act with "The Sun Does Shine: How I Found Life, Freedom, and Justice" by Anthony Ray Hinton, the true story of a man who spent 30 years on death row for a crime he didn't commit. Hinton will speak about his book at the keynote event on Saturday, Oct. 19 at 2:30 p.m., at the Lateef Islam Auditorium.

"I believe that Anthony Ray Hinton, in his book, showed the power of change," said Ernest Henry, a Common Council Member of the First Ward of Poughkeepsie, and a panelist for "Let's Get Personal: Stories From Black Leaders in Our Community," who works with formerly incarcerated people and hosts the podcast "Voices Beyond the Wall," which highlights the views and opinions of the incarcerated, formerly incarcerated, and their families. "Even though he was incarcerated, he showed that he had the power to not be negative. As a result of making the best of what he had, he also changed the entire community there [in the prison], and that just shows the power of one person. One person's thinking can change an entire environment, and that's what he did. He supported those people. He let them know that there was love."

The first event in the Big Read series of programs is Friday, Oct. 4 at 7 p.m., at Christ Episcopal Church (20 Carroll Street) where Tanisha Mitchell, founder of Opera Talks, will perform "Opera Talk & Performance: Marian Anderson, an American Icon." The performance and presentation will look at the cultural icon that is Marian Anderson, whose contralto voice broke through racial barriers in the operatic world, and ultimately, in American society. Her beautiful, illustrious voice is most memorable for her controversial recital on the steps of the Lincoln Memorial in 1939, and her Metropolitan Opera debut in 1955. This presentation by the opera singer and arts librarian will include an audiovisual look at Marian Anderson's career, as well as a live aria.

Following the performance, the 2024 Big Read continues on Sunday, Oct. 5 at 4 p.m., with the annual Paul M. Sparrow Lecture hosted by the FDR Presidential Library, "Foundations of a Movement: Black Americans, Civil Rights, and the Roosevelts." The talk will be presented at the Henry A. Wallace Center by Basil Smikle, PhD, and will focus on the Roosevelt-era foundations of the Civil Rights Movement. Smikle is a political strategist and policy analyst, and a Professor of Practice at Columbia University School of Professional Studies, as well as a library trustee.

On Thursday, Oct. 10 at 6:30 p.m., Sadie Peterson Delaney Library will host Dr. Jen Brown, Esq., where she will lead a discussion, "Redlining In Poughkeepsie," about the local history of redlining, the discriminatory practice of denying services like mortgages and loans based on race or ethnicity, the first in a series of "Thursdays at Sadie."

On Wednesday, Oct. 16, at 6:45 p.m.,

Boardman Road Branch Library will host a screening of the documentary film "John Lewis: Good Trouble." Come and view an intimate account of legendary U.S. Representative John Lewis' life, legacy, and more than 60 years of extraordinary activism – from the bold teenager on the front lines of the Civil Rights Movement to the legislative powerhouse he was throughout his career. All ages welcome.

Easing into ‘spooky season’

Halloween is approaching!

I've been good. I really have. I have refrained thus far from saying anything about the spooky season that is to come, which is my favorite. For me, Halloween is the only holiday I crave year-round (and, yes, I'm one of those people who include some eerie elements in my décor all year); so not to mention it at all after the first chilly night of the year – especially when I've been gearing up for it since, oh, late June – means I have, indeed, been good. I didn't want to impose my excitement for it on you before it was properly time. But I can't wait any longer! It's time to get a little wicked.

If you've read this column for any length of time, you probably know how crazy I get for Halloween. I decorate my house inside and out, create themes, plan menus, create special cocktails with a spooky twist and always, always dress up. I know I'm not entirely alone – lots of people are Halloween crazy these days. This season I'd like to start a multi-part series to get us all in the spirit because it's good to have a plan and be ready, right? Right?!? Don't worry; we'll start out slow and ramp things up as we get closer to October 31st. I think I have the perfect place to start.

I'm reminded of a book I read in elementary school, "The Halloween Tree" by Ray Bradbury, which may have been where my true love of the holiday took flight. It's a tale of eight trick-or-treaters who travel through time with the wonderfully sinister Carapace Clavicle Moundshroud to learn the origins of Halloween traditions and of their costumes in an effort to save the soul of their beloved friend Pip. Among their destinations are the tombs of ancient Egypt, the Druids in Britain, witches in the Middle Ages, the gargoyles at Notre Dame Cathedral and the cemeteries of Mexico on The Day of the Dead (Dia de Los Muertos), all of which can be seen as the earliest manifestations of Halloween. The marvelous gothic haunted house in the story, with its enormous eponymous tree, branches hung with blazing jack-o'-lanterns, is forever ingrained in my mind and representative of the season.

I mention the book (and NOT the animated film version) because it evokes my thirst for understanding all things Halloween and embracing the traditions – some still going strong (albeit much changed), others all but forgotten – that make this time of year so special and unique. To understand the 'why' of these things thrills me and adds depth and meaning to how I celebrate; and I look forward to sharing my love of this holiday with you, traveling through time to shed light (and a little darkness) on the origins that culminate in Halloween.

To me, it's sad that Halloween is mostly now an excuse to eat copious amounts of overpriced candy and buy plastic props, when it's so much more than that. With origins spanning centuries and continents, woven together over time, cultures celebrating death as a way to think about what it is to be alive, all woven together in a rich tapestry, Halloween is the sum of its many parts meant to honor those that came before to acknowledge the common thread that binds us all in the end.

Make no mistake: Halloween is, above all, a celebration centered around death. No matter how far back you go, the theme is basically the same. It's the end of the harvest, a time when the earth is readying for the cold, dark "death" of winter when things no longer grow, and also the time ancient Celts believed the veil between the living and the dead blurred and spirits could return to our world. It was important for these people, who were dependent on the growing season to survive, to appease and honor these spirits to ensure future crops would be bountiful. This was the celebration of Samhain (pronounced Sow-en), during which hearth fires were extinguished and bonfires were lit to burn crops in sacrifice. They would wear costumes of animal skins and predict fortunes, relighting their hearth fires from the dying bonfire as protection for the long winter.

Ancient Romans conquered much of the Celts' territory, and over time their festivals became entwined with the Celtic tradition of Samhain. One late October festival commemorated the passing of the dead while another honored Pomona, the Roman goddess of fruit (pomology is the science of growing fruit). Some believe this may be the origin of bobbing for apples! By the 9th century Christianity had spread into Celtic lands, further blending cultures and rites. Catholics moved their feast of All Saints Day, also known as All Hallows Day, from May to November 1st; and the night before, which was the traditional night of Samhain, became All Hallows Eve and, eventually, Halloween. The Catholic church also made November 2nd All Souls Day to honor the dead, possibly as a way to replace the Celtic festival of the dead with a church-sanctioned holiday. Interestingly, it, too, was celebrated with bonfires, costumes and parades (but no fortune telling).

Jump ahead to colonial America, where its southern states took to Halloween earlier and more quickly than the more rigid Protestant New England states. As more Europeans and other ethnic groups arrived, their customs merged with those of Native Americans to become uniquely American celebrations centered around the harvest with stories shared of the dead (ghost stories), mischief-making, dancing and singing.

By the late 19th century, America was flooded with immigrants, many of them Irish fleeing the Potato Famine, bringing their Halloween traditions with them. (Fun fact: jack-o'-lanterns were likely first made by the Irish out of turnips! When they arrived here they used native pumpkins instead, and thus a tradition was born). Costumes and going from house to house asking for food or money (the origins of trick-or-treating) became common, as did parties for both children and adults, which focused on games, seasonal food and fun. Death, superstition and religion took a back seat to family- and community-oriented celebrations with parades and town-wide Halloween parties becoming popular.

You can't keep the mischief out of Halloween, though, and soon vandalism and mischief in general showed up to the party. By the 1950s such things were no longer tolerated; and the holiday evolved yet again into one geared mainly toward children. Classroom and town parties and trick-or-treating seemed a good way for both children and communities to stay safe and keep kids occupied and entertained, at the cost of many of the origins and history and segueing into the commercial boon it is today.

And I suppose that's where this comes in. I'd like to think some of the old ways are coming back as more and more people throw themselves into Halloween. I love seeing the 12-foot skeletons, animatronic witches and lawn ghosts everywhere. It gives me hope that at least some of what was sacred is resurfacing, that the tie-in to death and the harvest is once again on the rise and with them the honoring of what – and who – once were. It's important to understand where we came from in all its many facets, because that's what makes us who we are and ties us all together in a mystical, wonderful way.

Perhaps Moundshroud said it best in "The Halloween Tree:"

"Night and day. Summer and winter, boys. Seedtime and harvest. Life and death. That's what Halloween is, all rolled up in one. Noon and midnight..."

"And you begin to live longer and have more time, and space out the deaths, and put away fear, and at last have only special days in each year when you thought of night and dawn and spring and autumn and being born and being dead."

"And it all adds up. Four thousand years ago, one hundred years ago, this year, one place or another, but the celebration all the same..."

So I hope you'll join me in celebrating this amazingly complex holiday with its rich history, many-cultured layers, its darkness and its light and embrace the true spirit of Halloween. I hope I've piqued your interest and that your hunger for more will bring you back.

Ready, set – BOO!

‘Titans of Industry’ topic of talk at PV Library

Author, musician and historian Alex Prizgintas returns to the Pleasant Valley Library on Monday, Sept. 30, at 6 p.m., for Part Two of his "Riverside Moguls: Wealth and Power in the Hudson Valley's Gilded Age" lecture series. Where Part One focused on five industrialists tied railroading industry, Part Two, titled "Titans of Industry," focuses on other arenas of the Gilded Age.

From Rockefeller's Kykuit Estate in Westchester County to the elaborate estates of Tuxedo Park, the Ogden-Mills Staatsburgh Estate, the Colonel Oliver Hazard Payne Mansion now operated by Marist College, and Orange County's two Spanish-Italianate Estates owned by Charles E. Rushmore and the Robert Goelet, Prizgintas combines rich information with photographs, embedded videos, and audio quotes from noted biographies to trace together this extravagant and complicated era of the Hudson Valley's history.

A graduate of Marist College with degrees in Hudson River Valley History and Public Administration, Prizgintas has been published in the Hudson River Valley Review, New York Archives Magazine, and Orange County Historical Society Journal on topics including Hudson River railroad history, Orange County's dairy farming history, and the region's early settlers. He serves as president of the Woodbury Historical Society in Orange County, N.Y.

The Pleasant Valley Library is at 1584 Main St. (Route 44) in Pleasant Valley. To register for the program and for more information, call (845) 635-8460 or visit <https://pleasantvalleylibrary.org/>.

Alex Prizgintas will discuss the "Titans of Industry" in his Sept. 30 lecture, including John D. Rockefeller, whose Kykuit estate (above) is now a historic site in Westchester County. Courtesy photos

Marijuana growers are making the switch

Exciting alternatives to the latest ‘cash crop’

Marijuana is so boring. All my friends, and me, lost interest in growing marijuana as soon as it became legal. Now we’re on to bigger and better things. Jesse Eldrid is making a fortune selling giant sunflower seeds on eBay. I’m raising 85,000 poinsettias. And Craig Domonkos is growing figs.

Back in the day, Craig was a world famous breeder, crossing homegrown with Afghani hash plants to create the first hybrid that would reliably mature in the Hudson Valley. On top of that, Craig is an incredible musician, a champion at video games, (remember “Centipede”?) and he holds a world’s record in stunt flying radio controlled airplanes. We went to Live Aid together, saw Van Halen, Metallica, and the Rolling Stones in 1981 – (We almost didn’t go because we thought they were too old). Craig and his wife Loretta own the Hobby House on Route 9 in Poughkeepsie.

Now Craig is devoting all his considerable energy into growing 18 varieties of figs. Last week Craig hosted a fig tasting at my house, in conjunction with one of our Sunday pool parties. We tried seven different varieties:

- Chicago Hardy – The most widely grown fig in the Hudson Valley. Yields up to 70 figs on each bush. This is the first one that Loretta gifted to Craig, 10 years ago, in an attempt to get him to stop growing anything illegal (it worked). Delicious nutty flavor.

- Brown Turkey – Also weathers the cold, at least down to 10 degrees. Deep burgundy color with contrasting pink center. Perfect for snacking straight off the tree.

- Napoli – From Mount Etna in Sicily. Fairly cold-hardy, bears lots of small to medium size fruit.

- Violet de Bordeaux – Deep purple, almost black skin when ripe with a red flesh giving berry and honey notes. Its smaller tree size makes it ideal for containers.

- Nero 600 M – This is a variety Craig found thriving at 600 meters in the Italian alps. So it should make it through the winter in our climate (more on this later). A favorite among our participants.

- Pop-pops – Craig’s friend George from the Smoke Haus in Hopewell Junction gave him a cutting from a fig that his great-grandfather smuggled over from the old country in his shoe. It turned out to be an incredible, flavorful heirloom.

- White Triana – This is a huge fig, pale on the outside with a rich rosy center. It won our taste competition, maybe because it’s so unusual. And tasty.

Craig has a forest of figs covering his driveway. Loretta complains that she has no place to park.

I asked Craig what he does with the hundreds of figs he harvests every day, besides give them to friends and to customers at the Hobby House. He makes jam:

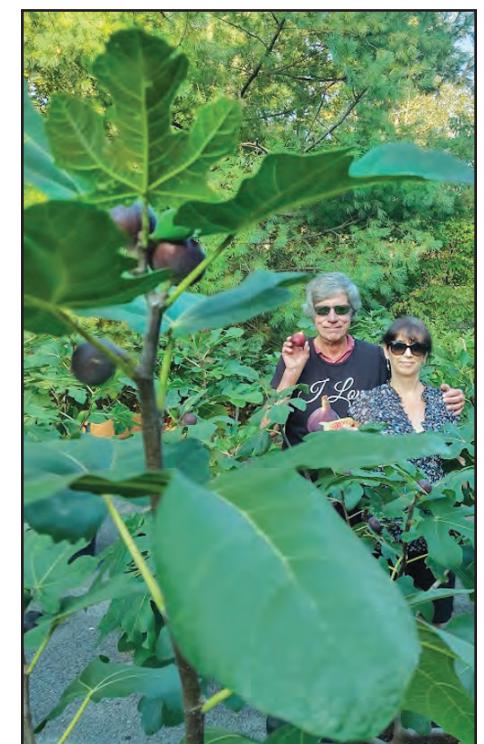

2 pounds of figs with a little water, lemon zest, honey, cinnamon, nutmeg, a pinch of salt. Boil, mash with a potato masher, simmer for one to two hours until thick. Then pack them into sterilized jars, and process them the traditional way, in a boiling water bath.

Craig is not Italian, but I am, so I should be raising fig trees they way they do it on Arthur Avenue in the Bronx. Those guys down there, when they’re not tending their racing pigeons, dig a long trench and bend the fig trees down into the trench, covering it with soil. This provides winter protection. Craig prunes his trees to a manageable size and grows them in 10- to 15-gallon buckets. For soil, he uses half Coast of Maine Lobster and Crab compost, and half Coast of Main Bar Harbor Blend.

5-5 or 3-3-3, for example. When the fruits appear, cut down on the nitrogen. Leave the potted fig trees outside until we get a hard frost, maybe until Christmas. The leaves will fall off. Then move them to an unheated garage, keeping them slightly moist until spring time.

One more thing – Craig tells me that a fig is not a fruit, it’s a flower. He’s selling a dozen different varieties at the Hobby House, 2290 South Road in Poughkeepsie. He shared his phone number for anyone who wants information about growing figs: (845) 723-4163.

Daniel R. Edwards

LAGRANGEVILLE-Daniel Robert Edwards, born June 3, 1951, in Scranton, Pennsylvania, passed away peacefully in his home on September the 14th, 2024. As the beloved husband to Alita Edwards, the two spent 40 wonderful years together in marriage. Daniel was a devoted father to five children: Daniel R. Edwards Jr. (Bonnie), Heather Meagher (Tim), Samuel Edwards (Jaime), Abigail Cummings (Raymond III), and Christian Edwards. Daniel’s love for his family was the cornerstone of his life, taking immense pride in being grandpa to Michael, Gabby, Jack, Sadie, Zack, Jesse, Caleb, Elliana, Ray IV, Archer, and Sawyer.

Daniel was born to Jean Edwards and the late Willard Edwards, and is survived by his brothers: Chris Edwards, Scott Edwards (Patty), along with Gordon Edwards (Lori). As the eldest of four brothers, Daniel’s fraternal role meant everything to him. He cherished the bonds forged with his siblings and their families forever.

A proud Trojan, Daniel graduated from North Pocono High School in 1969 then went on to achieve his Associate’s Degree from Keystone College. Professionally, Daniel dedicated his life to all things mechanical. From tractors to industrial equipment to heavy duty machinery, his hard work and expertise left a lasting impact not only in the domestic/international marketplace, but in the impressionable lives of the many young men he provided both mentorship and employment to. His commitment to his profession mirrored the same dedication he displayed toward all those who needed assistance, as well as someone to call dad.

An avid fan of the New York Yankees (a love provided to him from his much-admired Uncle Bob) Daniel shared his passion for baseball with his sons, creating cherished memories that have lasted a lifetime. His enjoyment for the Chevrolet Corvette and for all things motorized was only outdone by his deep faith in his savior Jesus Christ who guided him throughout his life, empowering him to endure trials as well as serve as a source of strength and inspiration to those around him.

Daniel will be remembered for his father-like heart, his generosity, and his unwavering devotion to family, friends, and faith. His legacy of love will continue to resonate in the hearts of all who knew him.

A celebration of Daniel’s life was held on Saturday, September 21st in the sanctuary of the Gathering at Faith Assembly in Poughkeepsie, N.Y. His friends and family shared their memories and honored a remarkable man who touched so many lives.

In lieu of flowers, the family asks for donations to their benevolence fund to support families in need: <https://onrealm.org/FaithAssemblyGo/give/Benevolence>

The Town Board acknowledges that it is vitally important to use the taxes of the Town of Pleasant Valley in a fiscally responsible manner and it is necessary to keep the tax levy of the property taxpayers to a minimum amount, especially in economically hard times. The Town Board has reviewed the proposed budget, the appropriation requests of the Town Department Heads and the financial position of the Town. The Town Board has determined that the Fiscal Year 2025 Budget will require a tax levy increase that is greater than that allowed by General Municipal Law §3-c. It is the intent of this local law to override the limit on the amount of real property taxes that may be levied by the Town of Pleasant Valley, County of Dutchess, pursuant to General Municipal Law § 3-c, and to allow the Town of Pleasant Valley, County of Dutchess, to adopt a Town budget for Town purposes and any other special or improvement district governed by the Town Board for the fiscal year 2025 that requires a real property tax levy in excess of the "tax levy limit" as defined by General Municipal Law §3-c.

Red Hook Library construction project begins

The Red Hook Library's construction project was set to begin on Sept. 23, starting with the front porch. According to Library Director Alex Geller, this phase is expected to last two weeks, followed by the stucco work.

During construction, the Library will remain open. All programs will continue as planned and Library holds can still be picked up. However, there will be a few changes:

- The front porch and front entrance will be closed, starting Monday, until further notice. The back entrance and parking lot will remain open.

- The Library's drop box will be moved to the north side of the building by the driveway during the porch work. You can still return Library materials (unless otherwise marked) in the drop box 24/7.

- After the porch work is complete, scaffolding will be installed around the building. That may require moving the drop box again to accommodate the scaffolding, but patrons will be informed if that's the case.

In the Library's weekly e-newsletter, Geller said, "This project has been years in the making. We want to send a special thank you to Senator Hinchey and her team for supporting this effort to ensure that our Library remains a safe, accessible, and special place for our community. And during this work, we will be launching a few new special programs within the Library and around our community."

Visit <https://redhooklibrary.org/> for updates and information about programs.

Little Library gets home on Violet Avenue in Hyde Park

C.S. Lewis once said, "Eating and reading are two pleasures that combine admirably," and now you can do both at Nana's Ice Cream and Grill in Hyde Park. The owners of the establishment gave the Hyde Park Library permission to install the Little Library gifted by the Hyde Park Rotary.

Library staff member Mike Sikula installed the Little Library and filled it with books. Feel free to drop off a book you've finished, as well, to share with another visitor. The Library thanks Mike for the install, Nana's Ice Cream and Grill for the space to set it up, and the Rotary for their donation.

Nominations wanted for Banned Books Awards

The Eleanor Roosevelt Center at Val-Kill seeks nominations for its 2025 Banned Books Awards. Nomination forms are at <https://ervk.org/nomination-form/>.

During her life, Eleanor Roosevelt fought passionately for literacy, the role of libraries in a democracy, and the universal right to intellectual freedom. As more books are being banned than at any other time in U.S. history, the Eleanor Roosevelt Center honors authors with the Eleanor Roosevelt Award for Bravery in Literature.

This year, nominations are open to anyone who cares about the impact of book bans. Whether you're a student, a reader, or a concerned citizen, use the nomination form to suggest a living author whose book promotes human rights and has faced challenges or bans.

The Eleanor Roosevelt Banned Book Awards Ceremony will take place in the Spring of 2025. More information about the award ceremony will be announced soon.

To learn more about the Eleanor Roosevelt Banned Book Awards, visit ervk.org/banned-books.

Farmland Cycling Tour set Sept. 28 in Red Hook

Scenic Hudson will host the Farmland Cycling Tour on Saturday, Sept. 28, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m., at Poets' Walk Park, 776 River Road in Red Hook. The event offers a great way for 400-plus bicyclists to connect with fields and orchards on farms conserved by Scenic Hudson and partners. These family-run operations play a vital role in supplying fresh, nutritious food to residents of the Hudson Valley and New York City and help preserve the region's natural beauty and agricultural heritage.

After registering at the park, cyclists can enjoy fresh cider donuts and local apples before riding marked 10-, 20-, or 40-mile routes past protected farms and orchards. Upon their return, they will enjoy a free lunch and live music. An information hub will encourage engagement with various Scenic Hudson environmental protection campaigns, including its work to support sustainable, diverse and healthy farms, soil health, and food systems.

Register at www.scenichudson.org.
