Lasting tribute to a true local hero

Medal of Honor Monument dedication for Charles Johnson set Nov. 11 in Millbrook

By Curtis Schmidt

An independent group of long-time Millbrook residents and members of Millbrook VFW Post 9008 are planning to unveil a new Medal of Honor Monument honoring Army Private First Class Charles R. Johnson of Millbrook on Veterans Day, Nov. 11.

The dedication event will take place in the Tribute Garden at the entrance to the Village of Millbrook and will immediately follow the Post's annual Veterans Day ceremony at 1 p.m.

Special guests will include four soldiers from U.S. Military Academy at West Point providing a color guard and ceremonial rifle detail and Lieutenant Colonel Sam Kriegler and Sergeant Major James Smith from Fort Stewart, Georgia. Invitations have also been extended to Congressman Pat Ryan and Dutchess County Executive Sue Serino.

For his actions over two days in 1953 where he sacrificed his life defending injured troops, Johnson received the Medal of Honor. Johnson's actions saved the lives of as many as 10 U.S. Soldiers during the conflict in the Korean War.

Johnson's sister, Juanita Mendez, accepted the award from President Joe Biden on her brother's behalf during a ceremony at the White House on Jan. 3, 2025. The Pentagon subsequently inducted Johnson into its Hall of Heroes, the following day.

"Charlie Johnson was a true American hero, and it's important that his courage and sacrifice are never forgotten. As a lifelong member of the Millbrook community, I'm proud that we can honor one of our own with a memorial at Tribute Garden. My hope is that future generations will learn Charlie's story and understand the meaning of his sacrifice. This memorial is our way of making sure his legacy lives on," said Millbrook resident Dominic Molella.

He added that a special thank-you goes to the Tribute Garden Foundation for their cooperation and generous financial support, as well as Skip Ciferri for his work in preparing the site for the monument's installation. Jeff Moseman, VFWPost 9008 Commander, said the Post is assisting with this ceremony by providing the sound system, podium and chairs.

Johnson's legacy

A bronze statue near the Wall of Remembrance at Arlington High School depicts a soldier rescuing an alumnus of the school, Pat Don Dingee. The Soldier, another Arlington graduate, is PFC Charles Johnson. The statue shows Johnson pulling Dingee's outstretched body to safety.

DCHS to show rare local films from WWI at Upstate on Veterans Day

A very personal look at WWI veterans

By Bill Jeffway

The Dutchess County Historical Society (DCHS) is showing extraordinarily rare local films from 1918 and 1919 at, and in partnership with, Upstate Films' Starr Cinema in Rhinebeck, on Wednesday, Nov. 11, Veterans Day, at 5 p.m.

The films have not been seen in 107 years. Recently discovered and restored, they illuminate the unprecedented involvement of the men, women and children of Dutchess County in support of the two million Americans who were in Europe by the end of World War I.

The effects of the war and the simultaneous flu pandemic were devastating; yet the films also show

Movie clips from top, from Rhinebeck, hundreds of school children emerge for a public event. The band plays while marching down Chestnut Street. Middle row: Boy Scouts roll a ball and a carriage with four white horses as they parade in front of the Beekman Arms. Bottom row: It is less surprising at the end of the war to see a woman in the turret of a tank being demonstrated at what we today call the fairgrounds. County to host Veterans Appreciation Day and Resource Fair on Nov. 7

Free community event will celebrate local veterans' service, connect them to resources, feature 'Veteran of Distinction' ceremony

Dutchess County Executive Sue Serino and the County's Office of Veterans Affairs invite veterans, military families and the community to attend the County's Veterans Appreciation Day and Resource Fair on Saturday, Nov. 7 at the Franklin D. Roosevelt Presidential Library and Museum's Henry A. Wallace Visitor and Education Center, 4079 Albany Post Road in Hyde Park. This free event, which takes place from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m., is open to the public; no registration is required.

The community event will bring veterans and their families together to celebrate their service and connect them with 22 local organizations and resources available to support them. The County's November "Veteran of Distinction" ceremony will take place at 1 p.m., recognizing the life and legacy of U.S. Army First Lieutenant Henry Bialosuknia, a Poughkeepsie native who served with honor during the Vietnam War.

Serino said, "Our veterans have done so much for us, and we can never thank them enough for all they have given to our country. But we can always find ways to show them how much they mean to us. This special day is a chance to come together, celebrate our veterans, help connect them with valuable resources and remind them and their families that their Dutchess County neighbors are here for them. We welcome everyone to join us as we show our veterans just how much Dutchess County cares."

In addition to the "Veteran of Distinction" ceremony and informational resources tables, the event will feature presentations from the following speakers to educate and assist veterans and their loved ones on relevant topics:

11:30 a.m.: Joe Horesky, Director of Veterans Programs at Mental Health America (MHA) of Dutchess County

11:45 a.m.: Lisa Kopp, Manager for Consumer Outreach & Special Programs for Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corp.

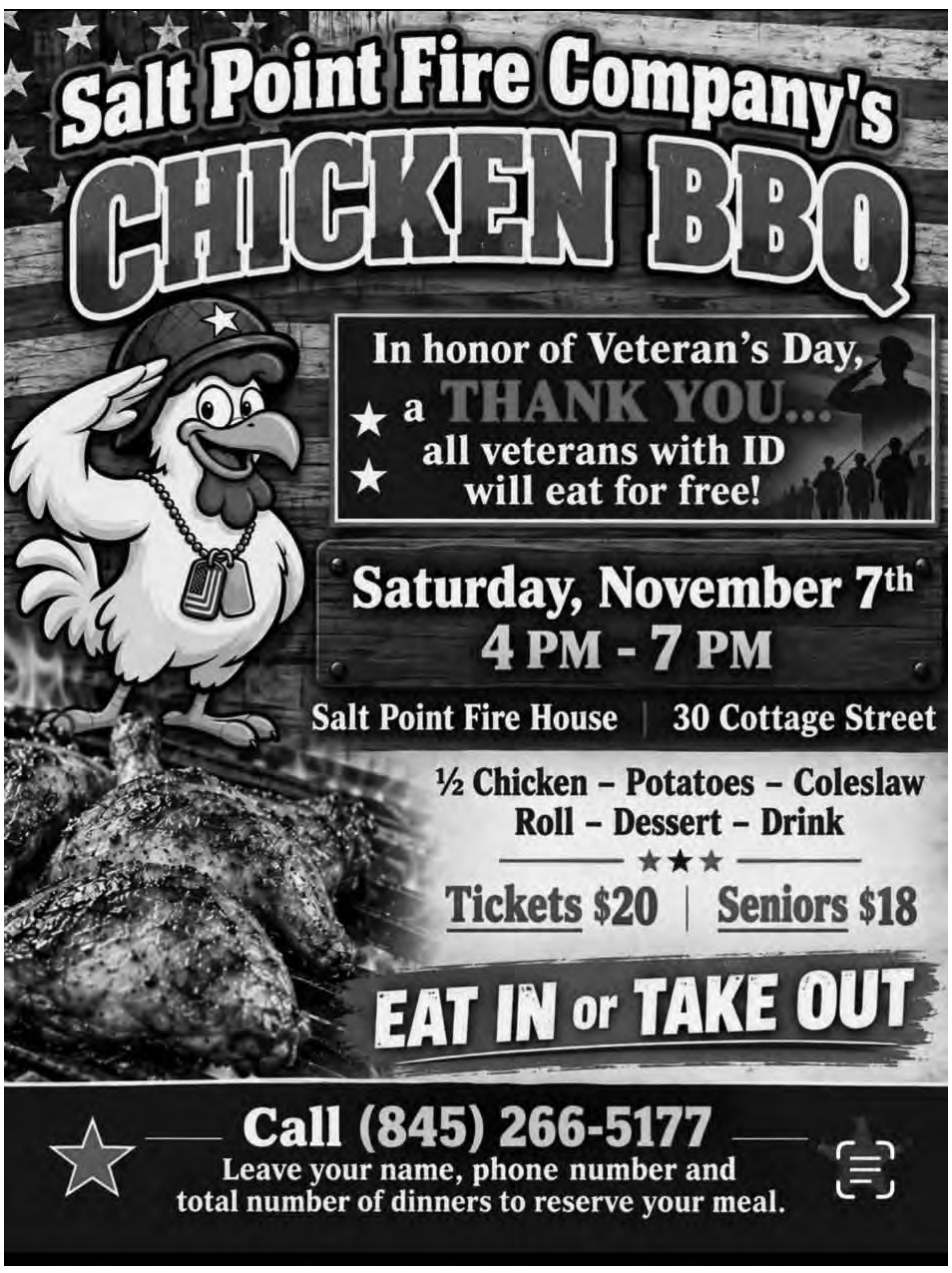

Noon: Chris Fontana, Recovery Coach with the Dutchess County Department of Mental Health

12:30 p.m.: Wayne Slaughter, Home Mortgage Consultant

Adam Roche, Director of the Dutchess County Office of Veterans Affairs, reminds our neighbors that honoring veterans means more than thanking them for their service. It means making sure they and their families feel valued, supported and connected to the community they served.

Dutchess County's Veterans Appreciation Day and Resource Fair is just one way the County is showing its respect to its heroes in November. County Executive Serino and Director Roche invite residents to gather on Wednesday, Nov. 11, at 11 a.m. to honor the courageous men and women who have defended our nation's freedom. Dutchess County's annual Veterans Day ceremony, held at the Dutchess County War Memorial in Poughkeepsie, provides a meaningful opportunity for the community to come together in gratitude for the service and sacrifice of the Americans who have served in the military.

More information about both events is available by contacting the Dutchess County Office of Veterans Affairs at 845-486-2060 or veterans@dutchessny.gov.

Excerpts from an article by Joe Lacdan, Army News Service, from January 17, 2025 describe Johnson's acts in saving the lives of his fellow soldiers.

"On June 11, 1953, large numbers of Chinese troops attacked and wounded Johnson and his unit at Outpost Harry, South Korea.

"During the battle, despite suffering wounds from artillery fire and a grenade, Johnson quickly treated his fellow injured amid direct enemy fire. He pulled the bodies of wounded soldiers to safety while engaging the enemy in combat.

"Johnson, a rifleman, risked himself again to search for weapons and ammunition. Johnson then stepped out of the second bunker facing the barrage of enemy bullets and put his body between the injured and the enemy. Johnson promised he'd hold the enemy off as long as he could. He stood his ground and engaged the hostiles until he suffered a mortal wound.

"Johnson's sister, Geraldine, urged him to join the Army Band when the service drafted him in 1952. But Johnson resisted, saying if other soldiers had to fight, he should too."

In 2025, Johnson's nephew, Trey Mendez, said, "It's just so great to hear his story being told to the broader nation at large and hopefully inspire everyone the way it's inspired us in the family over all these years."

Investigation of a certain topic, in this case, the flight of Arthur Haen, can sometimes prompt a flurry of "discoveries" when the topic is mentioned, and that is very much the case here. Clockwise from top left: A well-preserved copy of the Rhinebeck Gazette, courtesy of the Rhinebeck Historical Society. In the movie you will see Tracy Dows holding a still camera, a movie clip of Haen, the Dows still photo of Haen, Haen's personal effects trunk. joyous small-town celebrations, the breakthrough of women gaining the right to vote, and the 1919 inauguration of the Rhinebeck fairgrounds as the home of the Dutchess County Fair, which has been held there ever since.

Often overshadowed by the more recent World War II, this war was so devastating, and so unprecedented in scale, that at the time it was called the "Great War," and the "War to End All Wars."

The films show Boy Scouts, Junior Red Cross girls, aging Civil War veterans, families, politicians and community groups. All segments of society endured the hardships of a war that saw women breaking barriers out of necessity, and children raising money and helping on farms, because so many men and women were abroad or at domestic camps at home. On top of this, at the height of the fighting, the world encountered the horrors of a global flu pandemic.

The making of this movie has prompted other discoveries. A resident has come forward with the trunk of the man you will see flying a biplane, Lieutenant Arthur Haen of Rhinebeck, who died from the pandemic three months after the films were taken. The Museum of Rhinebeck History brought forward the propeller broken in his forced landing at Springbrook Park. Rhinebeck Bank shared the ledgers naming the individuals we see giving to the bond drives in the films.

We were able to take full advantage of the Rhinebeck Historical Society's incredible stewardship of the Rhinebeck Gazette, including both original copies and its searchable fully digitized library.

There is a small transaction fee to secure tickets through Upstate Films' website for Starr Cinema. You'll find more information at www.dchsny.org/rhinebeck-rises.

Hudson River Patriots Alliance expands support for veterans and civic life across Hudson Valley

Hudson River Patriots Alliance, Inc. (HRPA), a 501(c)(3) nonprofit founded in 2025, is strengthening support for veterans, active-duty military personnel, and their families while building civic engagement and community connection throughout the Hudson Valley.

As a companion organization to Red Hook Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 7765, HRPA raises funds, pursues grants, and develops programs that respond to veteran needs and benefit the broader community. The organization works in partnership with VFW Post 7765 and other local groups while maintaining an independent, region-wide mission. HRPA is built on the belief that veterans and their communities are stronger together. Its purpose includes providing direct programs, financial assistance, and community-based services for veterans, active-duty personnel, and their families; encouraging volunteerism and civic participation; and preserving the military and historical traditions of the Hudson River Valley.

Unlike organizations limited to veteran membership, HRPA welcomes adults age 18 and older who share a commitment to patriotism, service, and community belonging. Veterans, family members, and other community members can participate through membership, volunteering, donations, and support for local initiatives.

"Through HRPA, we are extending the long-standing community support of Red Hook VFW Post 7765 across a wider network of people, organizations, and communities," the organization stated. "By bringing together veterans and neighbors who value service, we can strengthen assistance for those who have served while building a more connected Hudson Valley."

Members may contribute their time and skills to support veterans, preserve their history, and honor fallen service members. Tax-deductible donations help HRPA advance its charitable programs and pursue resources for the people and communities it serves. Annual HRPA membership is available for a $50 donation. Life memberships are available at $400 for active or former military personnel, $400 for individuals age 65 or older, and $700 for all others.

Membership privileges include use of the VFW bar/canteen, member pricing for special events, and member pricing for golf simulator use. For more information about Hudson River Patriots Alliance, Inc., membership, volunteer opportunities, or donations, visit https://hudsonrpa.org/ or contact Thomas Sullivan at 845-758-2194 or tom@vfw7765.org.

Serino presents 2027 Executive Budget, emphasizing essential services

From County reports

Dutchess County Executive Sue Serino presented her 2027 Executive Budget to Dutchess County Legislators and other county leaders on Friday, Oct. 30, outlining a spending plan that protects essential services, avoids layoffs and stays under the property tax cap with a 4.5% property tax rate reduction.

The full County Legislature is expected to vote on the Budget in early December.

Serino said, "Despite tremendous fiscal pressure from ever-increasing state and federal mandates and rapidly rising costs, we are delivering a 2027 budget that includes no cuts to services and no layoffs. This plan protects what matters most for our neighbors and ensures Dutchess County remains strong and stable for the future."

Facing a nearly $90 million gap between projected costs and revenues at the start of the budget process, Serino emphasized that the budget required difficult decisions, strategic prioritization, and a collaborative effort among County leaders, department heads, and staff. The 2027 budget plan prioritizes fiscal stability, while continuing to invest in public safety; support for the County's most vulnerable residents, including youth, veterans and older adults; health and mental health; housing; emergency medical services; community programs and more.

The $722 million budget proposal keeps the overall spending increase to less than 1% (excluding increases attributable to state mandates, the New York State First 3 Childcare grant program and sales tax revenue provided to municipalities). The property tax levy stays under the New York State property tax cap, and with an 8% growth in true value assessments, the average County property tax rate will go down 4.5% from $2.11 per $1,000 in assessed value this year to $2.02 next year.

The budget proposal reflects the financial challenges facing county governments across New York State from state and federally mandated costs, which dominate 70% of the County budget. Those costs continue to rise every year, including this year's change to the federal Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP) administrative cost formula, an impact of $1.8 million. Other rising costs for personnel, health care, and other essential operations continue to place fiscal pressure. To ensure the necessary recurring revenue to fund the programs and services that neighbors count on, the budget plan adjusts the County sales tax rate to 4% in June 2027, with the sales tax exemption on clothing and footwear items under $110 each staying in place.

While there are no layoffs in the budget, the plan eliminates several vacant positions and adds only four essential positions, for total net position reduction of 4 positions. Additionally, 14 positions will be held vacant in 2027.

The Community Benefit Fund, the five-year set-aside created by County Executive Serino in 2024 using remaining American Rescue Plan (ARP) funds, will be used to fund $3.75 million in key initiatives while helping reduce the tax burden. Additionally, the 2027 Executive Budget uses $28.5 million in general fund balance to limit the impact on taxpayers.

Key priorities in the 2027 Executive Budget include:

• Strengthening EMS with the launch of a Community Paramedicine Program, offering 60 hours of weekly in-home assessments, follow-up care and connections to medical resources, as well as exploring telehealth programs to help low-acuity 911 callers find the most appropriate care.

• New York State's $22 million "First 3" childcare pilot program that will begin enrolling children ages 0-3 next year with the goal of more than 1,000 new childcare slots over the next three years.

• $3 million in support for the Dutchess County Drug Task Force, including over $1 million for local police agency partners.

• $1 million investment in the County's Housing Trust Fund to expand the local housing supply.

• Addition of three new street outreach positions to assist those experiencing homelessness.

• Construction of the HOPE Center, a modern, state-certified emergency shelter.

• Combating food insecurity by supporting food pantries' staff training and investing $45,000 for programs expanding access to fresh, nutritious food.

• Expanding youth career pathways, supporting the successful Youth and Police Initiative (YPI) and launching a new initiative to help fathers strengthen their families.

• Partnering with Community Action Agency to help residents apply for SNAP benefits through a dedicated SNAP Navigator.

• Construction of a modern, countywide radio system to improve communication and coordination among emergency responders during emergencies and disasters.

• Enforcing the County's ban on kratom products while expanding public education through opioid settlement funds.

• Using $1.5 million in State funding for free private-well PFAS testing and rebates up to $10,000 for water treatment or public water connections.

• Supporting older adults with expanded transportation, in-home care, caregiver support and social activities while strengthening efforts to prevent elder abuse and scams.

• Expanding veteran outreach to connect veterans and families to housing and financial assistance, peer support and transportation to help veterans access essential services.

• Marking the 200th anniversary of slavery's abolition in New York State with mini-grants to support historical and educational programs.

• Strengthening animal welfare enforcement by adding a Humane Law Enforcement Officer to investigate cruelty, neglect and abuse.

Dutchess County Democrats: Republican budget hits families at home, at the register, and in the bank

From Dutchess Democrats

The Dutchess County Democratic/Majority leadership in the County Legislature responded to the Republican 2027 budget presentation by County Executive Sue Serino with the following statements.

"Over a decade of fiscal mismanagement by County Republicans has led to this day of fiscal crisis," said Assistant Majority Leader Kristofer Munn (D- Red Hook). "We're faced with a huge budget gap, a drained rainy-day fund, and a troubling economic outlook thanks to Republican mismanagement at the national level."

"Families are facing higher prices, higher costs, and need county services more than ever," Munn continued. "Instead, Republicans have squandered the county's savings on election-year tax gimmicks, and now they're sending families the bill."

The Democratic statement said the Republican budget raises spending by nearly $70 million, more than 10%. It pays for it by raising the property tax levy about 3.5%, raising the county sales tax to 4%, and taking another $28.5 million out of reserves. That's every tool at once: higher taxes at home, higher taxes at the register, and less in the bank.

Republicans call this "conservative fiscal management at work." Their own handout lists the sales tax hike as a "budget highlight." It never mentions the $28.5 million drawn from savings.

The sales tax hike would push the total rate to 8.375% on nearly everything families buy, hitting working families and seniors hardest. And Republicans are betting the budget on Albany approving it, the same gamble that failed two years ago and blew a hole in the 2024 budget.

Republicans will tout a lower tax rate. That's only because assessments went up. The total property tax they collect still goes up. And staying under the tax cap means little when you're also raising the sales tax and spending $28.5 million in savings. The cap limits one tax, not all of them.

Albany is sending Dutchess $28 million more in state aid this year. Washington Republicans are cutting $3 million, including SNAP support for families who need help putting food on the table. Even with Albany's help, county Republicans still can't balance this budget without higher taxes and another raid on reserves.

This crisis is the Republicans' own making. For a decade, they cut the tax levy to protect a talking point while costs kept growing, and covered the difference with savings. Last December, every Republican legislator voted for a 2026 budget that drew $34 million from reserves, $7 million more than even their own County Executive proposed. She warned it would leave a very large gap for 2027. Republicans passed it anyway. Every Democrat voted no. Counting this year's proposal, Republicans have budgeted more than $60 million in savings in just two years.

The Democratic majority repeatedly asked to work with the County Executive on this budget and was turned away each time. Republicans chose to write it alone, and they own every tax increase in it.

Democratic Chair Yvette Valdes Smith (D- Fishkill), responded to the budget address by stating, "I was hopeful this year that we [Legislature and County Executive's office] would engage in a more collaborative process to create a budget for 2027 that reflects the real priorities of Dutchess County residents, but the Legislature was completely shut out of the process. The Legislature is now waiting to receive this budget so that we can begin our work. The Democratic majority in the Legislature will go through this budget line by line, protect the services residents depend on, and put Dutchess on a path where recurring costs are paid with recurring revenue. After a decade of Republican mismanagement, that's what this county needs."

The full County Legislature is expected to vote on the Budget in early December.

Skilled Trades Fair set at Bulkeley Middle School Nov. 10

Dutchess County Executive Sue Serino and New York State Senator Michelle Hinchey are partnering with the Rhinebeck Central School District to connect students with hands-on career opportunities at this fall's Skilled Trades Fair, taking place Tuesday, Nov. 10, from 6 to 8 p.m., in the Bulkeley Middle School gymnasium, 45 North Park Road in Rhinebeck.

This free community event invites residents of all ages to explore a wide range of skilled trades career paths available throughout the Hudson Valley. Attendees will have the chance to meet with representatives from local trade organizations and businesses, ask questions, and discover pathways to future training and employment. No registration is required to attend. The event is also open to adults looking to pursue new career opportunities.

"I know from experience that charting a future career is never a one-size-fits-all process. I started my Skilled Trades Fairs in the Wappingers Central School District during my time with the State Senate and I am so proud to partner with Rhinebeck Superintendent Albert Cousins and Senator Michelle Hinchey to bring this popular event to Rhinebeck," said Serino. "Providing opportunities to explore a wide range of career pathways remains one of our highest priorities in Dutchess County and I encourage residents of all ages to join us to learn more about the many, varied pathways available in skilled trades industries."

Hinchey said, "I'm so proud to once again be co-hosting the Skilled Trades Fair this year at Bulkeley Middle School in Rhinebeck. As we've seen in past years, this fair is an exceptional opportunity for Dutchess County students and other job seekers to learn more about the skilled trades and explore the many career possibilities they offer. There's a multitude of rewarding pathways to be found right here in the Hudson Valley, and there's no better way to see if a profession is right for you than to speak directly with someone who's already part of it. We hope to see many students, families, and community members on November 10 in Rhinebeck. It's going to be a great night!"

Rhinebeck Central School District Superintendent Albert Cousins said, "We're proud to co-sponsor this initiative, which will bring value to the Rhinebeck community and northern Dutchess County. We're committed to giving students this opportunity to explore apprenticeship programs, educational pathways, and promising career options, while also helping local businesses connect with the next generation of skilled workers. We encourage everyone to come out and learn more about the opportunities in the skilled trades."

Local trade organizations and businesses interested in having a free vendor table at the event, can register online at dutchessny.gov/RhinebeckTradesFair. Hundreds of students and their families attend these events looking for more information about possible careers in the skilled trades.

High school students interested in teaching can take courses at DCC soon

New agreement signed with Today's Students, Tomorrow's Teachers

High school students interested in teaching careers will soon be able to take courses at Dutchess Community College (DCC). The College recently signed an agreement with Today's Students, Tomorrow's Teachers (TSTT) allowing students to earn college credits at DCC while still in high school, receive academic support and preparation for transfer.

Schools throughout New York state, including Dutchess County, are struggling to keep classrooms staffed. According to a fall 2026 report from the New York State Comptroller's Office, the state expects it will need 180,000 new teachers over the next decade.

"Meeting the need for qualified teachers requires more than simply recruiting educators. We must begin building that workforce earlier, introducing young people to the profession and providing the support they need to succeed," said DCC President Dr. Peter Grant Jordan. "As a community college, DCC is uniquely positioned to connect our regional school districts with higher education and create pathways that help students pursue meaningful careers in the communities they call home."

The agreement was formally signed by Jordan and Perkins during a ceremony at DCC's main campus in Poughkeepsie on Tuesday, Oct. 27. The event included remarks from Wappingers Central School District Superintendent Dr. Dwight Bonk and DCC student Veronica Green, and a letter of support from SUNY Chancellor John B. King Jr.

"As we continue to address the critical shortage of teachers, we are creating new pathways that strengthen classrooms and communities across Dutchess County and beyond," said TSTT Founder and CEO, Dr. Bettye Perkins. "We are proud to welcome SUNY Dutchess as the fourth community college partner in our Community College Partnership Initiative, helping students earn Teacher Assistant certification, complete an Associate Degree in Education, and ultimately become certified teachers. This partnership is more than an investment in education; it is an investment in the future of our communities. We invite school districts, higher education institutions and community leaders to join us in building the next generation of educators and ensuring that every student has access to excellent teachers."

Students participating in TSTT will have access to DCC's existing college-in-high-school opportunities, and those who continue to attend DCC after high school will funnel into a degree program that leads toward Teacher Assistant Certification and providing them with transferable credits toward a bachelor's degree.

TSTT students will also have access to robust resources as outlined in the agreement, according to the press release from DCC. That includes an admissions representative to assist with applications and financial aid, and an academic mentor who will meet with participating students regularly, it was stated in the release. TSTT will provide additional mentoring, academic support, career development workshops and teacher preparation activities.

Together, DCC and TSTT will help students navigate the transition from high school to college and toward careers in education. TSTT brings more than 30 years of experience supporting students interested in teaching careers. The organization reports a 90% teacher retention rate among its program graduates who enter the profession, demonstrating the potential long-term impact of sustained mentoring and preparation.

'Mac the Disc Dog' author from Wappingers Falls celebrates award during National Family Literacy Month

As National Family Literacy Month kicks off this November, a local canine with an extraordinary talent is helping Hudson Valley families discover the joy of reading together while learning valuable lessons about self-acceptance.

Mac, the disc-catching Border Collie who stars in the bilingual children's book "Mac the Disc Dog / Mac El Perro De Disco Volador," was recently honored with the prestigious Ella's Way Award. The accolade recognizes stories that promote kindness, individuality, and inclusion among young readers.

Written by Wappingers Falls author Ivette O'Sullivan, a former ATHENA Leadership Award recipient, and illustrated by Nubia Lorenzana, the book follows Mac on a journey of self-discovery. Rather than following the traditional path of herding sheep, Mac discovers his true passion lies in catching flying discs. Through his adventures, young readers are encouraged to embrace what makes them different, build self-confidence, and persevere through challenges.

For O'Sullivan, who brings a rich background in social work and community advocacy to her writing, the recognition comes at a perfect time to highlight the importance of reading at home.

"Receiving the Ella's Way award is a surreal honor that beautifully reflects my original dream: to touch the lives of children and bring families closer together through storytelling," O'Sullivan shared.

Written in both English and Spanish, the book serves as a vital bridge for local multi-generational literacy, offering parents and children an accessible, shared reading experience where bilingual families see themselves represented.

To mark Family Literacy Month this November, O'Sullivan is celebrating the journey Mac's message has already taken across local programs, libraries, and community organizations, combining the excitement of Mac's high-flying talent with the rewarding world of books.

"Mac the Disc Dog / Mac el Perro de Disco Volador" is available online on Amazon and Barnes & Noble. Schools and organizations interested in hosting an author visit or family literacy event can contact the author at ivetteosullivanbooks.com.

Dover boys soccer takes down Rhinebeck in Class B title game

By Matthew Fetzer

In an overtime thriller, the Dover Dragons came out victorious against the Rhinebeck Hawks, 2-1.

Played on a neutral site in Goshen, Jason Miguel scored both Dover goals, which featured the overtime winner. The winning goal was scored with 12:39 remaining in the first overtime period.

Dover had lost to Rhinebeck during the regular season and in the Mid-Hudson Athletic League semifinals. They refused to go down a third time. This is Dover's first Section IX soccer title in the school's history. The Dragons will continue their playoff run Nov. 4 against Mahopac in the regional round.

Arlington knocks out John Jay in football - After the Arlington High School football team beat the Patriots, 28-7 on Oct. 16, this quarterfinal round game was a highly anticipated matchup.

Arlington slotted in the tournament as the No. 1 seed, while No. 8 John Jay was the final team in. The Patriots had to be as hungry as ever if they wanted to win this game.

However, going into a packed Arlington home game is never easy. With rushing touchdowns scored by Troy Mondelli and Mikey Fortuna, the Admirals found a way to win the game, 14-7. The Patriots end their season with a 2-7 record. Arlington moves on to play Scarsdale in the semifinals.

Arlington girls win Section 1 title in soccer - Drawing in as the No. 2 seed in the tournament, the Arlington girls soccer team had a lot of expectations on how they would perform. Those expectations were met as the team won the section title, at Arlington, against No. 1 Albertus Magnus.

After two scoreless halves, and no overtime winner, the team won in the second round of the penalty shootout. Goalkeeper Ireland Murphy saved a crucial penalty kick in the second half, as that translated to the shootout, keeping Arlington in the game.

Isabel Ren was the one who scored the game winning penalty kick for the Admirals. Arlington advances to the regional round.

The No. 5 boys team won their first-round matchup against No. 12 Spring Valley comfortably, handing them a 2-0 shutout loss. Three days later, they stormed into No. 4 North Rockland and won on the road. Tied 1-1 in regulation, the Admirals got the better of their opponent in penalty kicks, outscoring them 4-1. In the semifinals, they faced a powerhouse No. 1 Mamaroneck, which had just previously beat John Jay in the quarterfinals. Arlington lost 3-0. They finish their season with an 8-9-4 record.

FDR girls cross country win MHAL Championship - The Presidents got it done at the Hudson Valley Sports Dome, as five of their runners finished inside the top 12 in the girls 5K. Those five runners included freshman Julia Turner (19:45.30), senior Cameron Toro (20:37.80), senior Lily Broomhead (20:48.70), freshman Aryana Robinson (21:14.60), and junior Madeline Tester (21:16.00). With an average time of 20:44, FDR was able to beat out Rondout Valley, who finished a close second.

Arlington girls cross country win Section 1 Northern Counties Championship - The Arlington girls cross country team also found a way to win, with the final decision between them and Mahopac being a nail-biter. Mahopac had the better average, but the Admirals won off the spread. This was largely due to senior Emilia DeLorenzo (19:27.00), senior Isabel Pool (19:30.30), sophomore Taylor Romanovsky (20:01.50), and senior Molly Pool (20:25.10) all finishing inside the top ten. It was the Admirals' fifth consecutive Northern Counties Championship title.

New 19-member commission to provide guidance on NYS Holocaust Memorial in Albany

Gov. Kathy Hochul announced on Wednesday, Oct. 28, the establishment of a new advisory commission consisting of 19 members that will provide guidance on the creation of a permanent New York State Holocaust Memorial at the Empire State Plaza in Albany. This group comprises educators, historians and community leaders.

The memorial will commemorate the six million Jewish people murdered during the Holocaust and millions of other victims of Nazi persecution. It will recognize the resilience of survivors and their families, while serving as an enduring site of remembrance and resistance against antisemitism and all forms of hate.

Through stakeholder engagement and a collaborative design process, the New York State Holocaust Memorial Advisory Commission will help shape the memorial's vision, educational goals, and commemorative elements. The advisory commission will provide critical input on interpretive programming and ensure the final site serves as both a place of solemn remembrance and a dynamic resource for public education. The New York State Office of General Services will facilitate the project's development, providing logistical and administrative support throughout the memorial's planning.

It was stated in a press release that the establishment of this advisory commission builds on Hochul's ongoing efforts to combat antisemitism and other forms of bigotry throughout New York, as well as provide continuous support for Holocaust survivors and their families.

Dynamic duo for Special Olympics!

Poughkeepsie police officer, Red Hook teacher love community aspect of bringing everyone together

From NY Special Olympics

She's a police officer in the Town of Poughkeepsie, working to keep the streets safe. He's a teacher in the Red Hook Central School District, educating teenagers.

Individually they are making a difference in their communities.

Collectively, the married couple of Sarah and Joe Raco provides incredible impact across the Hudson Valley through their jobs and their ever-growing roles in support of Special Olympics New York.

"It's a great organization to be a part of," Sarah Raco said. "The community aspect brings everyone together. I've enjoyed the torch runs and the polar plunge for years and it's just a really good time."

Sarah Raco graduated from the Dutchess County Law Enforcement Academy in mid-2019 and joined the Town of Poughkeepsie police force. She began participating in Law Enforcement Torch Runs (LETRs) in 2016 and more recently started plunging into the icy waters each winter to raise funds for the athletes of Special Olympics New York.

Not satisfied to stop there, Sarah has taken on additional duties this year. She now oversees all four annual Hudson Valley polar plunges, and in early November she will be attending the International LETR Conference in Michigan for the first time.

"I enjoy running with all of the law enforcement and the police escort down the road," Sarah said. "It's pretty special carrying the flags, the torch, and in this area doing the Walkway Over the Hudson portion. I'm looking forward to going to Michigan and meeting everybody and learning more about the history of the torch run."

Sarah will be in good company as a contingent of 19 active and retired law enforcement officers from across New York state are expected to attend the Michigan conference. Like Sarah, nine other attendees from New York will be first timers at the conference.

While Sarah travels to expand her expertise, husband Joe Raco stays closer to home to continue building the unified sports program at Red Hook High School. Raco said the unified basketball program started several years ago with just 8 or 9 kids, but now dozens are playing together. There are unified bowling and bocce teams too, and even the middle school started a unified physical education program.

Raco said he loves basketball, and he's seen a lot of success as the Red Hook assistant varsity basketball girls coach over the years. His enthusiasm for the athletes and partners in the unified sports programs may be just as intense as a full-court press from his girls' basketball teams.

"I really enjoy the community engagement that we have, Red Hook has been amazing," Raco said. "I enjoy the practices and games but also the hallways at school too. To see the kids in the hallways get psyched up, even though we don't start unified basketball until March. The kids already are asking me when practices start, it's really exciting to see that."

Raco noted that the lacrosse and other Red Hook sports teams often attend the unified basketball games. Those students cheer on their classmates and participate in the halftime festivities that usually involve hula hoops and dancing to keep everyone entertained.

Whether dancing with hula hoops or jumping through hoops to advance their careers and to support their community, this dynamic duo seemingly does it all for Special Olympics New York. But there's still at least one more box to check.

"I haven't actually done the polar plunge yet," Joe Raco admitted recently as Sarah sat by his side grinning. "I've always been the guy to pass out the towels. Now that Sarah's running the plunges, I might have to finally get up there and jump too."

DC Sports Hall of Fame honors Donaldson, Behnke and Ostrom

By Morgan E. Maier

The 45th class of sports legends was inducted into the Dutchess County Sports Hall of Fame on Nov. 1, representing the best in athletic leadership, local talent and community pride. The legacies built by Barbara Donaldson, Jeff Behnke, and Billy "The Kid" Ostrom were celebrated by friends, family, former athletes, and generations of admiring individuals.

"To be honored for something you love doing, it's pretty neat," said Behnke, whose soccer coaching career at Roy C. Ketcham High School spanned 45 seasons. Behnke was part of a group that established the soccer legacy of Dutchess County that has since produced national names in the sport, including U.S. Men's National Team captain and Wappinger native Tyler Adams. His connections in Europe brought athletes to Germany to compete against high-level international talent, exposing players to experiences beyond the bounds of their hometowns.

Billy "The Kid" Ostrom was a Poughkeepsie baseball giant, turning heads in semi-professional leagues, notorious for hard hits and high averages. He was an MVP in the New York-New Jersey Baseball and Interstate Baseball leagues. In his MVP year, Ostrom's .561 batting average led the team to a regular season title.

The posthumous award was accepted by Ostrom's niece, Johanna Ringwood, who looked up to the chapel rafters to tell her uncle, "You hit another home run," as she held his plaque. It was one more honor in a series of milestones for Ostrom, who is and will forever be, synonymous with baseball in Dutchess County.

Barbara Donaldson was a champion of sport throughout her career, opening doors for generations of girls interested in sports, but lacking opportunities to participate. Her work for decades at the Wappingers Central School District promoted grant money to renovate facilities, establish programs, and leave lasting legacy as a physical education teacher, a mentor, and a coach.

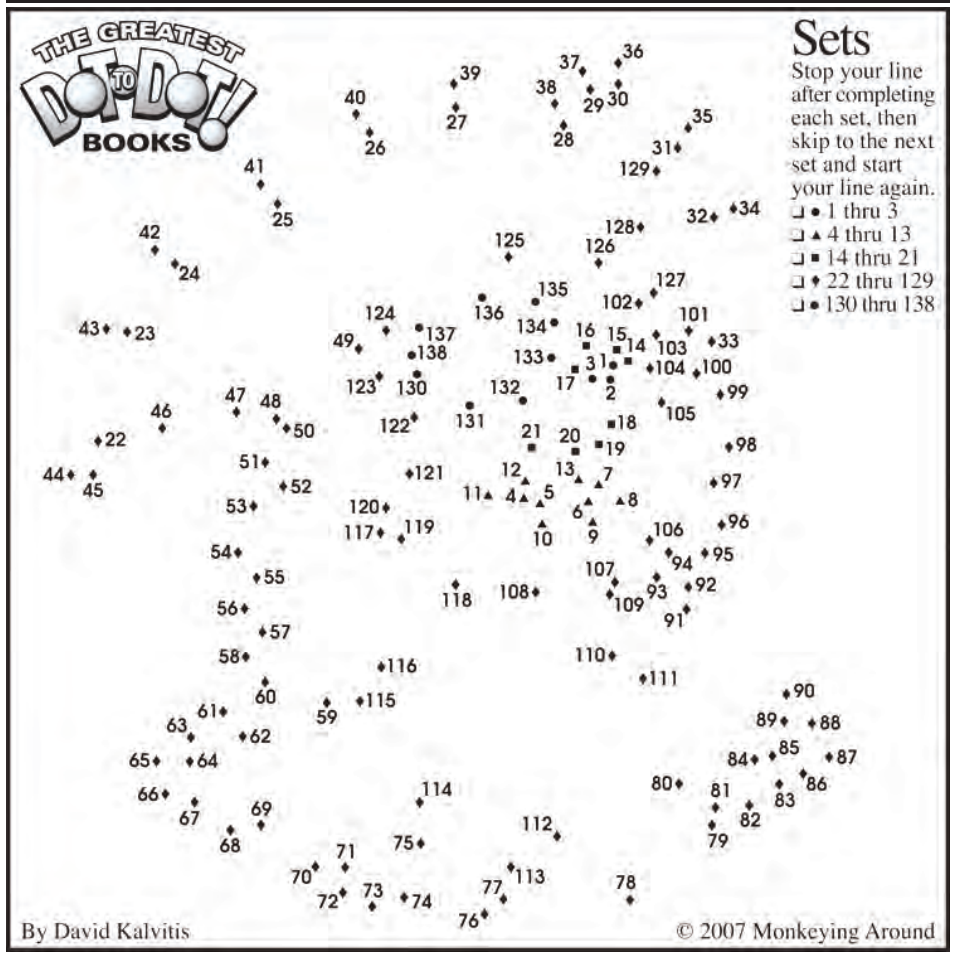

Many credit her for their success and passion for sports, lifelong involvement, confidence, and commitment to others. Donaldson credits them the same. For decades, she was able to pursue her passion, grow the sports she loved, and advocate for her athletes at every turn of her career.

"Thank you Hall of Fame Committee, and thank you all for being part of my life," said Donaldson, receiving her plaque before a filled room that was on its feet, applause reverberating through the room.

Local turkey for Thanksgiving

Mark shares some history behind two legendary local farm families.

Joyce and Sal Quattrociocchi will sell 600 turkeys by Thanksgiving, all raised on their own farm, affectionately known as "Quattro's," on Route 44 and Tinkertown Road east of Pleasant Valley. All kinds of poultry roam around the farm, free-range – chickens, ducks, geese, pheasants, broad breasted white turkeys and Bourbon Red turkeys, a heritage breed that's a bit more flavorful than a traditional turkey. When I visited Joyce at the store last Saturday, heritage turkeys were still available for Thanksgiving, but by the time I caught up with her the next day at Rhinebeck Farmers market, they were sold out. Only a few of the larger (above 22 pounds) broad breasted whites are unclaimed.

Quattro's started off as a live poultry market in Yonkers before Sal's father Frank moved it to Poughkeepsie. When Frank married Carmella Fanelli in 1953, he "inherited" her family's chicken farm on Tinkertown Road.

Meanwhile, the Migliorelli family was relocating from the Bronx to Red Hook. Interstate 95 was constructed right through the middle of Angelo Migliorelli's vegetable farm. Family lore has it that the bulldozers came to a halt while Angelo harvested his last crop of dandelion greens. Joyce Migliorelli grew up on the new farm, working in the fresh Hudson Valley air alongside her little brother Ken. Joyce Migliorelli famously met Sal Quattrociocchi while they were working across from each other at their families' booths at the Union Square (Manhattan) farmers market.

The union of two legendary Dutchess County farm families brought a lot of expertise, passion and love to Quattro's Poultry and Game Farm. Joyce joined her mother-in-law at the store, where Carmella was the heart and soul until her death in 2023 at age 94. Joyce is continuing the legacy, with every bit as much enthusiasm And now daughter Maria is on board.

Chatting with Joyce about her days working on the family farm, which she recalls with a twinkle in her eye even though it was hard work, reminded me of another famous Dutchess County farm family. My father Ralph Adams passed away 10 years ago this month. He was a real farmer, graduating from Cornell with a degree in pomology (the study of apples). He was passionate about the farm. As the retail stores mushroomed, he had less time to spend on the farm, where I think he was happiest, at least if we got enough rain, or not too much rain, or an early frost, or an invasion of woodchucks.

Because we're farmers, Thanksgiving is a big deal for the Adams and Quattro families. And local ingredients are the best part. I hope the rest of the Adams clan doesn't get mad at me, but I'd love to roast one of Sal and Joyce Quattro's turkeys for Thanksgiving.

Sour cream coffee cake - perfect for the 'cozy season'

By the time you read this, Halloween will be over, all my spooky props and Gothic décor packed up and stored away for another year (well, most of it anyway) and all the wicked noshes are gone. Of course, there are more holidays to look forward to just around the corner, but in the meantime, I need a distraction, something to comfort me as I segue back into reality. In other words, I need to bake.

I think of this as cozy season. Soft sweaters, snuggly blankets, hot chocolate and soups all make me happy and ready to embrace the increasing chill in the air. It's a time for filling the house with warmth and the delectable aromas of baking. I especially enjoy baking in the morning once the dogs are all settled and my chores are done. The house is quiet and peaceful that time of day and it's easy to slip into a soothing rhythm of measuring, stirring and kneading.

The real reward comes after, when I take a little of whatever I made, still warm from the oven, to my chair, snuggle in with my dogs and a cup of tea and welcome the day ahead. I have a perfect recipe for that very scenario: a tender, buttery sour cream coffee cake kissed with warm spices.

It is a rare thing for me to have a proper breakfast and when I do it's almost always something savory or a bowl of cereal. In general, I guess I'm not a sweets person, though I certainly do enjoy desserts. And yet there's something about this coffee cake that's tempting and hits me just right. Maybe it's the sense of nostalgia it brings me since it's reminiscent of the Drake's Coffee Cakes of my youth. Because it's cozy season and we're about to enter into the holidays, I really wanted to share it with you so you can share it with the ones you love. It's nothing fancy, just a good, classic recipe to keep on hand.

A quick note: some of the ingredients specify room temperature. Here's why that's important. The butter in the cake batter has to be creamed with the sugar to beat air into the fat, give the cake lift and tenderness and distribute the sugar more evenly. Cold eggs, like cold sour cream, when added to that creamed mixture, would start to resolidify the butter. Also, warmer eggs allow the whites (albumin) to relax and stretch, aerating the batter for a fluffier cake. Now you know! (You probably already did).

SOUR CREAM COFFEE CAKE with Cinnamon Streusel

Just a simple, old-fashioned classic cake to add to your recipe box. Sour cream made it into the name not because it's the main ingredient, but because of what it brings to the table: it makes a moist, fluffy, rich cake that isn't cloyingly sweet. The streusel is both a topping and added to the middle for a ribbon of warm spice. A simple icing is a pretty finishing touch for company, but you can omit it if, like me, you like yours less sweet. A special shoutout to sallysbakingaddiction.com for heavily inspiring this recipe.

STREUSEL

2/3 cup flour
2/3 cup brown sugar, packed
2 teaspoons cinnamon
A pinch of salt
6 tablespoons COLD butter, cut into cubes

METHOD

Combine all ingredients in a small bowl. Use a pastry cutter, fork or your fingers to break the butter into smaller pieces and mix to form small crumbs about the size of peas. Chill while you make the cake.

CAKE

1 1/3 cups flour, sifted
1 teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon baking soda
¼ teaspoon salt
¾ cup sugar
8 tablespoons (1 stick) butter, room temperature
2 eggs, room temperature
2 teaspoons vanilla
½ cup sour cream, room temperature (do not use low fat!)
1 tablespoon milk

METHOD

Preheat the oven, rack positioned in the middle, to 350 degrees. Grease an 8-inch square baking dish or line with parchment.

In a medium bowl, whisk or sift together flour, baking powder, baking soda and salt. Set aside.

In a large bowl, beat butter and sugar together until smooth (if the butter is too cool it will be lumpy so let it warm up a bit more and continue beating). Add eggs and vanilla, then sour cream and milk, beating to combine well.

Add the flour mixture, stir, then beat just to combine. You don't want to overmix. Batter will be thick.

Spoon half the batter into the prepared baking dish. Sprinkle half the streusel mixture evenly over the batter (it seems like a lot but trust me). Spoon the rest of the batter on top and spread it carefully to cover the crumb layer as best you can. Top with remaining streusel.

Bake 35-40 minutes until a toothpick inserted in the center comes out clean. Set aside to cool.

ICING

1 cup confectioners' sugar, sifted
2 tablespoons milk
½ teaspoon vanilla

Whisk together and drizzle over the cake, preferably while it's still warm. Serve with coffee or tea.

I'm the kind of person who always needs something to look forward to. With my favorite night of the year behind me I can now think ahead to the holidays to come and enjoy all the prep that entails. You can be sure I'll be making this coffee cake for friends, family and myself along the way. No matter what the next few months have in store for me, I know I will be surrounded with love and the warmth of family. Happy Cozy Season indeed! Enjoy.

Feel the Beat! Burritt Percussion Group to perform at Stissing Center on Nov. 7

By Curtis Schmidt

The Stissing Center in Pine Plains will welcome The Burritt Percussion Group on Saturday, Nov. 7, at 7:30 p.m. for an exciting evening that brings the power, color and expressive range of contemporary percussion to center stage.

The Burritt Percussion Group was founded by internationally celebrated percussionist, composer and educator Michael Burritt, a visionary artist whose influence has inspired an entire generation of percussionists around the world. The ensemble unites former students who have gone on to distinguished careers as performers, educators, soloists, and chamber musicians - bringing some of today's most dynamic percussion voices together for an unforgettable evening of inspirational, innovative music.

Featuring Burritt's original works alongside bold modern repertoire, the program surges from pulse-quickening rhythms to evocative, atmospheric melodies, revealing the remarkable versatility of percussive sound.

Burritt said his first percussion instrument was the snare drum.

"I used to listen to my father's high school marching band as a very young person. Maybe when I was five or six years old and was infatuated with the drums," he said. "I eventually started to learn, by rote, all of the snare parts from their marching band shows and could almost play them before the age of 10."

He didn't come to love the marimba until he went to college and really started working with some teachers that were musicians that inspired and pushed him in that direction.

"I still love playing everything and many of my concerts feature me doing more than just playing the marimba. Most of my pieces feature lots of instruments and I especially love the immense variety of color, energy, and expression that the percussion instrument family can bring," he said.

Burritt started composing when he was a high school student.

"I had an interest because I had a teacher that was doing some writing and arranging for our school marching band and I found that to be very compelling. After that, I became interested as a young professional in writing marimba and percussion music," he said. "The repertoire in my field was quite small when I graduated from university in 1985, and although I had played a good deal of it, I decided I needed some stuff to play - so I started writing music for myself. That was super fun and it was also very rewarding to see other people take interest in that music."

He added, "I have to say, that writing music has been a very rewarding and important part of my life. It's super fun to share that with my students and, of course, on this concert with this wonderful group performing with me. They are special musicians, and they understand me and my music and bring it to life like no other."

The repertoire for the Stissing Center concert features a variety of styles and, in some ways, orchestrations.

"Of course this is all percussion music, but from within that world, we try to write works that bring variety to this chamber genre," said Burritt. "The work I open with, which is titled 'Spero,' features me on solo drum and Cajon. The percussion writing in this features a lot of keyboards but uses a modal language that is quite different than anything else on this program. In some ways, I think this piece is much edgier and percussive. It also uses piano, which is unique."

The group will follow that up with a new work that Burritt composed this summer specifically for this new group of mine and this occasion. "I title it, 'Chasing Forever,' which is what I feel like I'm doing all of my life," he said. "It is a very demanding work and virtuosic in nature."

They will also perform several pieces that are duos that will be a more intimate experience for the audience. Each piece uses two marimbas and one has some additional percussion.

"I am so excited to bring this program to The Stissing Center, and especially honored to have this opportunity to perform in this beautiful space," said Burritt. "I look forward to meeting everyone and sharing our music in our passion for chamber music in percussion with the audience from Pine Plains."

The Stissing Center is located at 2950 Church Street in Pine Plains. Visit www.thestissingcenter.org for tickets and more information.

In its grand finale, Fall for Art celebrates 30 years of giving

Jewish Federation of Ulster County's signature fundraiser set Nov. 7-13

By Kate Goldsmith

The Jewish Federation of Ulster County is sending off its popular Fall for Art fundraising art show and sale on a high note. After 30 years raising money for the Federation and essential community organizations, the final Fall for Art will take place virtually at www.fallforart.org from 7 p.m. on Saturday, Nov. 7, through 5 p.m. on Friday, Nov. 13 (these times align with the conclusion of the Jewish sabbath and the beginning of the following sabbath, respectively).

Visitors from across the region and beyond can explore and purchase a wide range of visual art by 32 acclaimed Hudson Valley artists (see the sidebar on this page for 2026 participants).

Fall for Art Committee Chairperson Barbara Cohen has been involved from the beginning, initially co-chairing the event with the late Judy Polinsky; when Polinsky chose to remain on the committee in a non-leadership position, Cohen continued to chair.

Cohen explained the decision to conclude Fall for Art.

"We discussed at the 2025 wrap-up meeting that one more year would equal 30 years. This would be the 'right time' to announce this is the Grand Finale," she said. "As we enter our 30th year ... instead of saying goodbye quietly, we are choosing to celebrate – honoring the artists, supporters and moments that made these three decades unforgettable."

This online celebration of the arts showcases high-quality, original works in ceramics, fiber, glass, jewelry, mixed-media, painting, photography, pottery, and more, all from the comfort of your home.

"The Jewish Federation of Ulster County ... has been dedicated to promoting Hudson Valley artists and giving them a platform to show and sell their beautiful artwork," Cohen said.

Proceeds support the Federation, the participating artists, and benefit community nonprofit organizations. This year's beneficiaries include Angel Food East, Circle of Friends for the Dying, Hudson Valley LGBTQ+ Community Center, Jewish Family Services, MyKingstonKids.org, Oncology Support Program, People's Place, R.Y.A.N. House, and Ulster Immigrant Defense Network.

Cohen notes that this support aligns with the Jewish Federation's mission of Tikkun Olam, a concept in Judaism of repairing the world through acts of kindness and support.

During the pandemic, forging ahead with creativity

Although the show has been a six-day virtual event since 2020, for most of its life Fall for Art was a one-night, in-person art sale and cocktail party held at the Wiltwyck Golf Club in Kingston.

"During COVID, it became apparent that we would not be able to have an in-person show," said Cohen. "We became creative almost overnight by rethinking how we could have a successful online show. We hired a talented graphic artist Supattra who created galleries for each artist. Our webmaster Mike Rice created the virtual platform. Their expertise enabled the show to pivot online."

Many artists were interested in being online, Cohen said.

"They had to submit images with detailed descriptions instead of bringing their artwork to a venue," she said. "Good quality photos were key in showing their artwork online."

The virtual format caught on, becoming the standard.

"We decided to keep the show online as you have six days to look and shop instead of a single-evening juried art show, sale and cocktail reception," said Cohen. "There are less distractions for those shopping. We did better financially; and as this is a fundraiser, this made the most sense."

Growing the arts, growing community

Asked to name some of the milestones in Fall for Art's history, Cohen said, "Seeing Hudson Valley artists have the opportunity to meet, especially in the early years when there were not as many arts events."

At earlier events, the Federation would choose a local organization to receive art work to display in their specific space. More recently, several local human service organizations have been selected to receive a monetary donation.

Other milestones:

In 1996, Hudson Valley artist Sara Beames (who is also a Fall for Art committee member) created a sculpture titled "Eternal Flame" that was placed in Kingston's City Hall.

Having 400 attendees at a Fall for Art cocktail reception was a milestone showing community support and recognition.

"Knowing the [artwork purchased] supports and recognizes an artist and is a keepsake for the owner" is gratifying, said Cohen. "Someone said, 'you can take my furniture away but not my purchases from Fall for Art!'"

Thankful

"Having this event for 30 years produces a wonderful list of Thank You's!" Cohen said, starting with "The Hudson Valley artists who have participated in the show [throughout its existence]. Without them there would not be a show."

Next on the list are the sponsors and patrons whose generosity and philanthropy contributed to the event's financial success. And, or course, the purchasers who have supported the artists.

No event on the scale of Fall for Art could be successful without the dedicated volunteers who work behind the scenes. Along with Cohen, the current committee is Sara Beames, Sloane Grubard, Darlene Levit and Sue Worthman.

"The strength of this committee is the ability to work together for the benefit of the Federation," said Cohen. "Everyone has their own strength, and uniting these strengths has been the success of this committee in addition to the friendships."

Others Cohen singled out for credit include:

• Judy Polinsky, of Blessed Memory, who in 1996 conceived the idea of Fall for Art;

• Susan Basch, of Blessed Memory, dedicated committee member, generous donor and artist extraordinaire;

• Lousie Lefkovits, a gifted artist, committee member and participating artist for 27 years;

• Past directors of the Federation Arlene Gould and Linda Hutchinson. Past committee member Franne Entelis, who introduced the idea of asking sponsors to donate;

• Barbara Lane, who chaired publicity and advertising, Marsha Kaufman Rubenstein past committee member, participating artist who suggested many artist for the show; and Elisa Williams, past committee member.

• Wiltwyck Golf Club & The Chateau for being the venues for the cocktail receptions until Fall for Art went online in 2020;

• Katharine McKenna, celebrated Hudson Valley artist, who was instrumental in Fall for Art taking place. Polinsky and Cohen visited McKenna in 1996 to solicit her opinion of having an art show and sale for multiple artists. At that time, many artists worked in their own studios and there were not a lot of artists' shows, Cohen said. McKenna embraced the idea, participated as an artist and introduced artists to participate.

• The Federation's current office administrator and bookkeeper, Grace.

"Join us this year as we mark the culmination of an incredible journey and celebrate art the way we always have: together," Cohen said. "We will regroup, revitalize and refresh."

This struggle is known as the American Revolution. In the process, 18th-century Americans defended their liberties as citizens, protested their second-class political status, organized economic boycotts, established fighting forces and shadow governments, and affirmed their legal bonds with one another. In this whimsical musical adventure, a grown-up prequel to “Peter Pan,” this Tony Award®–winning adventure reimagines the Neverland you never knew. “Peter and the Starcatcher” transforms the classic tale with a wildly inventive origin story of how a nameless orphan became The Boy Who Wouldn’t Grow Up. An ensemble cast conjures more than a hundred characters through ingenious stagecraft and boundless imagination. With music, mermaids, stardust treasure, a spirited heroine, unruly pirates, and a wickedly absurd Captain, “Peter and the Starcatcher” takes flight. Pirates included…plenty of them.

This production features a large community cast of talented performers from across the region featuring: Hunter Booth, Nicole Carson, Jessica Castro, Alec Charriez, Brian Cordella, Lisa Delia, Aileen Lanni, Megan Longwell, Ivy Meehan, Glen Morrice, Eugenio Namarubessy, Dante Nastasi, Jane Petruncola, Kayla Suarez, Scott Woolley, Robert Yarnall, and Irving Zuniga.

Of this production director Crawfis said, “‘Peter and the Starcatcher’ truly touches the heart with its vibrant portrayal of friendship, courage, and family bonds, and where the acting ensemble brings it all to life — creating an immersive world from dancing mermaids to menacing crocodiles.” Crawfis added: “At its core, the show is a heartfelt journey about growing up and discovering your true self, making the audience feel personally connected to every moment.”

Gathering Seeds event set Nov. 15 at Morton Library

Dirty Gaia will host Gathering Seeds: Come for a Good Threshing on Sunday, Nov.15, from 2 to 4 p.m. at Morton Memorial Library, 82 Kelly St., Rhinecliff. The free, all-ages event will celebrate the art and importance of seed keeping through storytelling, hands-on threshing, community seed sharing, and seed-inspired activities for children.

The afternoon will feature K. Greene, founder of Hudson Valley Seed Co., and now with Hudson Valley Farm Hub. Greene will explore the power of seeds and the stories they carry, with a look at native and pollinator plant selection and other seed-keeping projects. Following the presentations, participants can join a discussion and Q&A, then try hands-on threshing, meet a variety of seed-bearing plants, and take steps toward becoming seed keepers themselves.

“Seeds teach us what generous abundance looks like” said Polina Malikin, Program Manager. “Each plant offers a starting bounty in hope for the future. This gathering is a chance to slow down before winter, learn practical seed-saving skills, and celebrate the living inheritance held in seeds.”

Attendees are encouraged to bring plants to thresh or seeds to share. Extra seeds may be contributed to the Morton Seed Library. During the event, the library’s makerspace will be open for children to enjoy seed-related art and hands-on activities hosted by Art A-Go-Go Creation Station.

The event is free and open to all. Community gardeners, experienced seed savers, families, and newcomers who are simply wondering where to begin are all welcome. Seasonal “seedy snacks” will be provided.

Barnes & Noble, UWDOR join forces for Holiday Book Drive

For more than 20 years, Barnes & Noble has run its annual Holiday Book Drive, donating millions of books to thousands of charitable organizations nationwide. This holiday season, Barnes & Noble has partnered with United Way of the Dutchess-Orange Region (UWDOR) for its Holiday Book Drive.

Shoppers who visit one of the three participating Barnes & Noble locations listed below can purchase a book to donate, and Barnes & Noble will give that book to United Way. The donated books will be placed in United Way’s in-office Essential Supply Hub. United Way hosts multiple Days of Sharing each year, when other organizations may come and pick up any supplies, from the Essential Supply Hub, they need to support the families they serve.

The Holiday Book Drive will run through December 15. Participating locations are:

Barnes & Noble – 2518 South Road, Poughkeepsie

Barnes & Noble – 1245 Route 300 (Union Ave.), Newburgh

Barnes & Noble – Galleria at Crystal Run, 1 Galleria Dr., Middletown

*Middletown location opening November 4 at 10 am.

The holiday season is when many families need help the most. UWDOR does its best to make sure every family and child in our community has what they need to enjoy the holidays, and every book donated through the Holiday Book Drive helps bring that goal a little closer.

Obituaries

Richard T. Bialek

RHINEBECK – Richard T. Bialek, a Rhinebeck resident, passed away September 7 at Northern Dutchess Hospital with his family present. He was 92 and had long struggled with the effects of aphasia and dementia.

Born in Buffalo NY, Richard was the son of Louis and Mary Bialek. He graduated from Buffalo Technical High School in 1951 and then enlisted in the U.S. Navy. During his four years of service, he was first a radar operator on the Navy blimps that guarded the U.S. East Coast and later on the air ships that flew the DEW line during the Cold War with Russia.

After his honorable discharge, Richard used the G.I. Bill and part time work to study electrical engineering. He graduated from the University of Detroit in 1962 and then began his 31-year career with IBM. He retired in 1993 having worked at all three IBM locations in the Hudson Valley.

Richard was an avid fisherman, loved gardening and enjoyed travel with his family. A trip to Poland was a very special memory of his. He was a past president of the Hyde Park Swim and Tennis Club, volunteered with the Red Cross and Meals on Wheels, taught religious education at Regina Coeli parish where he was also a member of the parish Eucharistic Adoration team, and later was an active volunteer at the annual Good Shepard Church yard sale. He was also a member of the Secular Order of Franciscans.

He is survived by his wife, Rosemary, and their children, Dr. Stephanie Bialek of Atlanta, Thomas and Susan (Stagnitta) Bialek of Hyde Park, and Jonathan and Emily (Druchunas) Bialek of Gilsum, NH, and grandchildren Sayed Winston of Atlanta, and Samuel and Gabriel Bialek of Gilsum, NH. He was predeceased by an infant daughter, Jennifer Rose, his parents, his brother Msg. Joseph L. Bialek, and his sisters, Clara Choinski and Theresa Morton.

In lieu of flowers, gifts to the following are welcomed: Homes for our Troops, American Red Cross Dutchess County Chapter, and Meals on Wheels of Greater Poughkeepsie.

Funeral arrangements were trusted to Burnett & White Funeral Homes - Rhinebeck, 91 E. Market St. Rhinebeck.

Barbara Thompson

SAUGERTIES – Barbara Thompson, 93, of Saugerties, NY, passed away on Tuesday October 27, 2026. She was born on March 14, 1933, daughter of the late Udell and Vivian (Pinkerton) Young.

Barbara married Henry B. Thompson, Jr., in 1952, they were married for 48 years until Henry passed away in 2001. She was a graduate of the Emma Willard School in Troy and Endicott College in Beverly, MA.

Barbara loved gardening from a very early age. She always found peace and balance when working in her gardens. She passed that love on to her children and grandchildren. In 1969 she ventured into the world of sheep and wool as the family purchased their first sheep, which would grow into a flock of 20. She had always been a knitter but now dove into the world of spinning, weaving and natural dying. She was one of the founders of the New York State Sheep and Wool Festival. She continued weaving and knitting until the end of her life. History and tracing families' genealogy always fascinated her. She was the town of Milan historian and spent many hours archiving materials while volunteering at Historic Red Hook. She authored two books about Milan and the residents of the town.

She is survived by her children, Jeff (Carolyn) Thompson, Henry (Dale) Thompson III, Frances Thompson, Jennifer (Dale) Hobson, Thomas (Kathy) Thompson, her grandchildren, Sarah (Steven) Murray, Michael (Caroline) Thompson, Kate (Rob) Becker, Nate Horowitz, Meg (Tom) Petersen, Amelia (Ryan) Braden, Ellie (Kyle) Marburger, Mark (Marianne) Hobson, Tasha Findley, and Samantha (TJ) Pickeral, 17 great grandchildren, as well as many nieces and nephews.

In addition to her husband and parents, she was predeceased by her sons, James Thompson and Timothy Thompson, as well as two sisters and one brother.

The family would like to thank the fourth floor nurses and doctors at WMC Health Alliance Hospital as well as the staff at Hudson Valley Hospice.

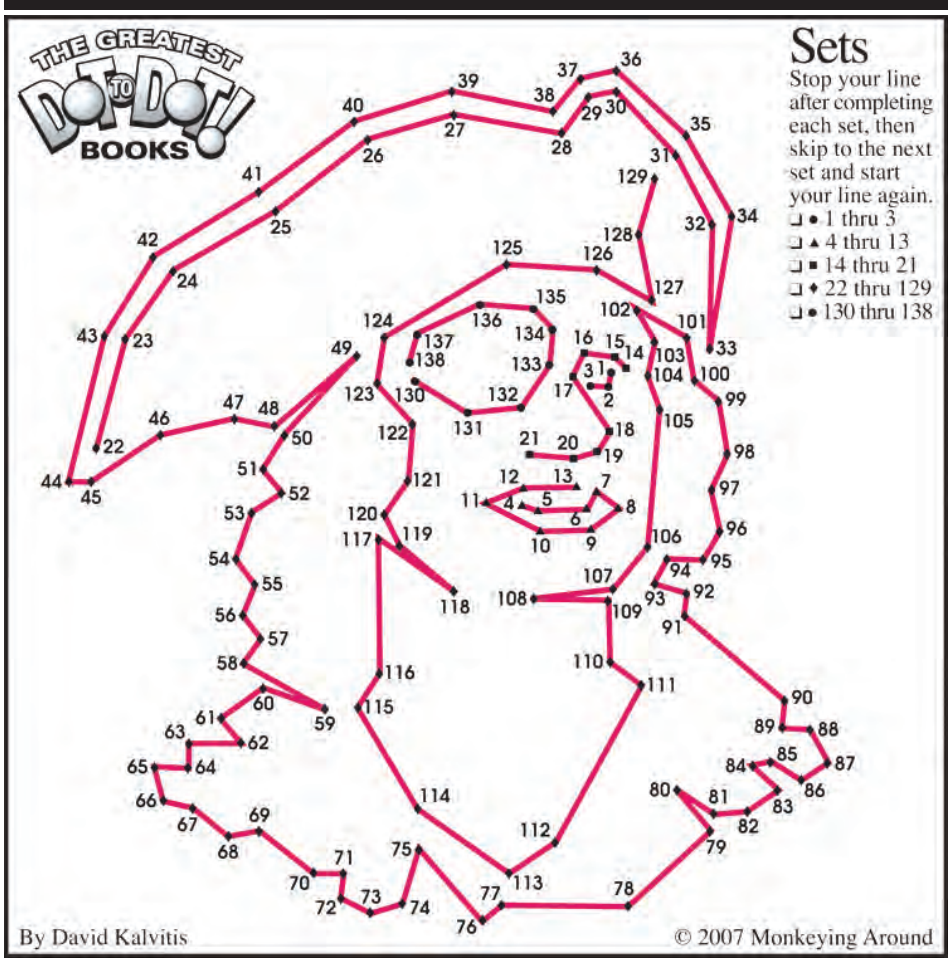

Arrangements are entrusted to Keyser Funeral & Cremation Service, 326 Albany Avenue, Kingston, NY 12401, where family and friends visited on Monday November 2, 2026. A Mass of Christian Burial was celebrated on Tuesday November 3, 2026, at St. Mary of the Snow, 36 Cedar St., Saugerties, NY 12477 with burial following in Mount Marion Cemetery, Mount Marion, NY.

In lieu of flowers, donations can be made to Historic Red Hook at www.historicredhook.org/donate A tribute for Barbara can be found at www.KeyserFuneralService.com, where you may leave memories and expressions of sympathy for her family.

Holiday visits, caregiving, and dementia

We're close to family holiday gathering season; and those who haven't seen older loved ones since last holiday season can be apprehensive about the prospect, especially if the older loved one is experiencing dementia.

It can be a time when caregivers' friends and family withdraw, just when they're needed the most.

It doesn't have to be awkward

When it comes to visiting those with dementia, it's understandable for visitors to worry about what they don't know; but avoiding visits isn't the solution. Dementia may have changed the way a person communicates and makes connections - but it hasn't broken them. The positive emotions from a visit can continue even when details of the visit cannot be retained for long.

As with much of the unknown, apprehension can be addressed through preparation. Ask questions like the following ones of yourself, and of others who may be planning a holiday visit:

• What's the best time to visit, and for how long?

• Are there any topics or questions to avoid?

• How can I respond to repetition, or redirect it?

• What activities work best?

• How can I identify when a person being visited is overstimulated or fatigued?

• Which physical interactions, if any, are most suitable - and which aren't?

If there are significant changes in a person with dementia since the last time family and friends have seen them, those guests can be prepared. The Albany Med Health System offers these tips:

• Your loved one with dementia doesn't always remember what is acceptable or expected;

• Unusual behaviors may occur, such as wandering, hallucinations, eating with fingers, or incontinence;

• The person may not remember guests' names or relationships but can still enjoy their company;

• Memory loss or repetitiveness is not intentional;

• Patience is appreciated; do not interrupt or correct the person;

• Consider safety: Blinking lights and loud noises can confuse or scare someone with dementia, and some decorations can be mistaken as edible; also,

• Gifts should be safe and useful, such as simple puzzles or personal care items.

Preparation can also help with the person being visited, even if dementia has affected their ability to retain information:

• Keep their routine as close to normal as possible;

• Begin showing a photo of the guest(s) to the person a week before arrival and explain the connection; and

• Your loved one may still enjoy company, or they may not. Ask them how they're doing.

2027 OFA Prom Theme: 'A Pirate's Life for Me'

In last week's newsletter, we may have left you hanging longer than we wanted to, as to the theme of next year's OFA Senior Prom … so let's batten down the hatches on that part. Many OFA Senior Prom guests begin preparing for the following year's Prom as soon as the current year's prom ends!

So prepare your eyepatches and your sea shanties for "A Pirate's Life for Me!" The 2027 Prom is tentatively scheduled for Monday, Oct. 18.

One note: if you're planning to bring a parrot, make it a toy bird and not a real-life parrot.

Rabies Vaccine Clinic set Nov. 21 at HVARS clinic

The Dutchess County Department of Health (DCDOH), in partnership with the Hudson Valley Animal Rescue & Sanctuary (HVARS), will host a free rabies vaccination clinic for Dutchess County residents on Saturday, Nov. 21, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the HVARS clinic, located at 9 Barnes Drive in Poughkeepsie. The clinic is open to dogs, cats, and domestic ferrets ages 3 months and older. Advance registration is required at hvars.org.

The vaccination is free for Dutchess County residents and $15 per pet for non-residents. Dogs must be leashed, and cats and ferrets must be transported in carriers. Pets with proof of prior rabies vaccination will receive a three-year certificate; pets without documentation will receive a one-year certificate. Additional services will also be available, including microchipping for $45 per pet and a one-year distemper vaccine for $25 per pet.

Rabies vaccination is required by New York State law for all cats, dogs, and domestic ferrets by four months of age, with regular booster vaccinations required thereafter. Pet owners who fail to maintain current rabies vaccinations may be subject to fines of up to $200.

Residents who encounter an animal behaving unusually should contact their local police agency. If a person or pet is bitten or has contact with an animal that may have rabies, contact DCDOH at 845-486-3404 Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., or 845-431-6465 after hours and on weekends. Health Department staff will investigate and provide guidance on any necessary follow-up measures.

For more information about rabies prevention and vaccination requirements, visit dutchessny.gov/rabies or email ehs@dutchessny.gov.
