Wappingers Junior High School students took time on November 10 to remember a native son of Dutchess County. Major Thomas Francis Trabucco was honored and remembered by the students, staff, faculty and community members.

“Students should learn about major Thomas Francis Trabucco because he is a part of the history of Wappingers Falls. Thanks to his sacrifice, we are able to enjoy our freedoms,” said Heidi Kane, a teacher at the junior high school.

“The Major was a young man with hopes and dreams who joined the Air Corp and died in action in Germany. He was awarded the Purple Heart for his sacrifice,” said Kane.

Trabucco was born on May 8, 1918. He was killed in action on March 1, 1945.

All across the region, candidates in last Tuesday’s General Election weighed in on social media about their wins and losses. While the results are unofficial, most of the races have been called.

It was encouraging to read the candidates’ official statements, most of which reflected grace and civility in victory and defeat.

House of Representatives

District 17

Five-term Congressman Sean Patrick Maloney (D, WOR) lost his bid to represent the new District 17. With almost all election districts reporting, Maloney trailed his opponent Michael Lawler (R, C) by five percentage points, 46.38% to 51.54%. On Nov. 9, Maloney conceded to Lawler, who currently is the State Assemblyman for New York’s 97th District.

Celebrate women’s heart health at the CIA

By Kristine Coulter

The Go Red for Women Celebration will take place at the Culinary Institute of America (CIA) from 11 a.m. - 1:30 p.m. on November 18. The event is what organizers call “mask friendly,” meaning that masks are not required but attendees can wear them if they want.

Monique Corcoran, Director of Operations for the Heart and Vascular Institute of Nuvance Health is the chair of the 2022 Hudson Valley Go Red for Women Celebration.

“We’re seeing that cardiovascular disease is becoming more and more prevalent, and that COVID really accelerated it. The predictions that tell us how many people will develop cardiovascular disease are staggering. Some people are predisposed to cardiovascular disease, but much of it is preventable. There is a lot that people can do, and the Go Red for Women Celebration will give Hudson Valley women information that they can put into action to prevent cardiovascular diseases in themselves and in the women they love,” said Corcoran via email.

Maloney said in a speech that he doesn't like to lose, "but my opponent won this race, and he won it fair and square. And that means something."

In a statement that was emailed to Lawler's supporters, he said, "I cannot thank you enough for everything you've done to make this happen. This victory belongs to all of us, and I'd be remiss not to thank those that joined our movement to save this state."

Lawler cited "the excesses of liberalism and one-party rule" in New York for adversely impacting residents' lives, specifically calling out "taxes, fees, and the staggering cost of living here" as well as "no-cash-bail."

"We're going to restore balance and common sense in Washington to lower the cost of living and make our communities safe, and we're going to do it together," said Lawler. "That's what our victory is all about."

District 18

Pat Ryan (D, WOR), who in August was chosen by voters to fill the unexpired term of former District 19 (and fellow Democrat) Congressman Antonio Delgado, narrowly won the race to represent the new District 18. (Delgado was appointed lieutenant governor by Gov. Kathy Hochul upon the resignation of Brian Benjamin.)

Ryan received 49.35% of the vote; his opponent, Assemblyman for District 99, Colin Schmitt (R, C) received 48.57%. According to media reports, Schmitt called Ryan to concede in the early hours of Nov. 9.

"From day one, we made it clear: our fight is to protect fundamental freedoms and democracy. To deliver relief and results for families," Ryan stated on his Facebook page. "Twice in as many months, we stood together on the side of freedom."

"I am honored to continue serving you in Congress. Thank you, NY-18."

Schmitt posted on his social media, "After a hard-fought campaign the people of our district made their choice and I respect their decision. I wish the best for Pat Ryan and hope he will do great things for our Hudson Valley families."

State Senate

With all districts reporting, current Poughkeepsie Mayor Rob Rolison (R) defeated Julie Shiroishi (D, WOR) to represent the new District 39. The tally is 51.3% for Rolison, 44.84% for Shiroishi.

"Thank you to everyone who voted, knocked doors and made phone calls. I am excited to be the next Senator from the 39th District!" Rolison said on his

Shiroishi said, "While the outcome was not what we hoped, I am proud of all we achieved in such a short time. I have zero regrets and am truly humbled to have received so much love and support."

She noted that on Nov. 10 she called Rolison "to congratulate him and wish him well."

"This is where I am raising my family and I want him to succeed so our communities can thrive," she said.

State Assembly

In District 104, incumbent Jonathan Jacobson (D, WOR) ran unopposed and received 60.59% of the vote.

There was no incumbent running in District 105, as Assemblyman Kieran Lalor had set term limits for himself. With all districts reporting, Anil Beephan (R, C) prevailed over Jill Fieldstein (D, WOR) with 58.9% of the vote. Fieldstein received 38.57%.

"I am humbled by the outpouring of support across the 105th Assembly District. Thank you to every voter, volunteer, and neighbor who placed their trust in me and our message - each of you made tonight's election a resounding victory," Beephan said in declaring victory.

DC Legislature increases veteran tax exemption

Last evening, at the board meeting of the Dutchess County Legislature passed unanimously two local laws to increase the real property tax exemption currently enjoyed by qualifying veterans in Dutchess County.

One law addressed the exemption for Cold War veterans, and the other addressed the standard veteran exemption, legally termed the "Alternative Veteran" exemption. Both exemptions are provided for under New York State Real Property Tax Law 458, which enables counties to set veteran tax exemption levels.

The Dutchess Cold War vet exemption was introduced in 2007, and has never been raised. The Alternative exemption, introduced in 1985, has not been raised since 2005.

Inflation has of course dramatically impacted the value of a dollar since 2005 and 2007. Although the nominal value of these exemptions stayed the same throughout the years, their actual impact decreased year over year because of economic inflation. With these laws, the legislature works to fight the effects of inflation on our residents, and demonstrates its willingness to help our veterans, who have done much to benefit both Dutchess County and our nation as a whole by their military service.

Both laws provide for a staggered increase in the exemption level, with the initial increase to apply as soon as the next tax rolls are prepared, and the second increase to take effect on the tax rolls two years afterward, in 2025. This two-part, staggered increase is intended to minimize fiscal impact on county finances and ensure that our veterans will retain their financial benefit into the future.

Approximately 8,807 residents enjoy the Alternative Veterans Exemption, and 846 enjoy the Cold War Exemption. Both categories will see this exemption increase apply to their property taxes beginning in 2024, in keeping with the Dutchess County tax roll process. Again, the Dutchess County Legislature would like to voice its appreciation for all those who have served to uphold our freedoms and protect our country.

Chairman Gregg Pulver said, "This law is a great idea, and will provide a much-needed adjustment to our veteran tax exemptions. We've had these exemptions for years, but as inflation continues to take a toll on our economy we have to ensure they continue to have an impact. If we did nothing, eventually inflation would make these exemptions lose all practical value. I know I speak for everyone at the legislature when I voice my appreciation for all who've served to defend our country. I hope this exemption raise helps you in your day to day life."

Legislator Diedre Houston said, "These laws were recommended by the Dutchess County Veterans Affairs Committee, and I am proud to put my name on them. I think this is a much needed helping hand to our vets, and I'm happy to do what I can to show appreciation for their service. Inflation takes a toll on many aspects of the economy, and these exemptions are not immune. I'm also happy the law was enacted as a scheduled increase, making certain the exemption will have a larger impact into the future than if we simply passed a standalone, one-time increase."

Fieldstein concedes, hopes opponent will support constitutional amendments

To the Editor:

The results came in on Election Day and I, as the Democratic candidate for NYS Assembly, District 105, came up short of votes. While I am disappointed with the results, I am also filled with an abundance of pride for the honorable campaign we ran, and even more gratitude to the countless dedicated souls who helped me on this journey.

In conceding to Anil Beephan, I wished him great success in representing our district in Albany. As one of his constituents, I am heartened by Anil's assertion made in various publications that he is "an outspoken supporter of each [Constitutional] amendment." I trust this means that Anil will work hard to uphold the First Amendment's separation of church and state and will oppose the efforts of any group, including Moms for Liberty, that seeks to impose their religious beliefs on how our children are taught in public schools.

I also trust this means that Anil will uphold the 14th Amendment's right to privacy and will oppose any efforts to strip away New Yorkers' rights to make choices about our bodies, who we love and how we love. Anil's success in protecting our rights will be a success for us all.

Jill Fieldstein
Candidate for 105th A.D.

In thanking the voters via Facebook, Beephan took a moment to acknowledge Fieldstein.

"A special thank you to my opponent for her civility and for keeping this race focused on the issues at hand."

Fieldstein posted on Facebook, "...while we came up short of votes, we are nonetheless filled with an abundance of pride for the honorable campaign we ran, and even more gratitude to the countless dedicated souls who helped me on this journey. Please join me in sending congratulations to Anil Beephan and wishing him great success in representing our District.

"Be well, my friends, and thank you for all of your support!"

Sheriff

Kirk Imperati (R, C), who has been Acting Sheriff since Butch Anderson's death last year, defeated challenger Jillian Hanlon (D, WOR), a former Deputy Sheriff with nearly four decades of experience in various aspects of public safety. Imperati received just over 58% of the total votes, with Hanlon receiving nearly 42% with all districts reporting.

Imperati, whose campaign motto was "Everyone's Sheriff," posted a simple statement to Facebook:

"It is the honor of a lifetime to have been elected your Dutchess County Sheriff," he said.

Hanlon was gracious in her loss. Late on Election Night, she noted on Facebook that she had called Imperati "to congratulate him for a well fought race."

"Although we didn't win, I'm not disappointed. I worked hard, faced significant challenges in fundraising, and I didn't have the advantage of the incumbency. What I did have was an amazing group of highly dedicated activists who put their heart and soul into this race. I take full responsibility for this loss. None of these amazing people who supported me should feel that that they let me down, quite the opposite."

She added, "You know who did win? The voters. For the first time in more than 50 years, the voters had a legitimate choice between two highly qualified candidates. Kirk and I kept our promises to keep it above the belt and on the issues.

"And for all of that I am deeply grateful. As I said to Kirk just before we hung up, 'I'll see you in four years.'"

State Supreme Court Justice (9th Judicial District)

The seven Democratic candidates are currently leading their opponents on the Republican and Conservative lines.

The Democrats are Anne E. Minihan (7.52%), David J. Squirrell (7.09%), Amy S. Puerto (6.75%), Keri A. Fiore (6.80%), Elena M. Goldberg-Velazquez (7.14%), Sherri Eisenpress (6.93%), and David S. Zuckerman (7.13%). The Republicans are Linda M. Murray (5.68%), Richard J. Guertin (5.52%), Robert S. Cypher Jr. (5.21%), Joseph I. Farca (5.28%), and Michael J. Grace (5.24%). Running on both the Republican and Conservative lines were John A. Sarcone III (6.10%) and John Ciampoli (5.99%).

Statewide proposition passes

New York voters decisively approved the Clean Water, Clean Air, and Green Jobs Environmental Bond Act of 2022 to address and combat the impact of climate change and damage to the environment. The result was 59.28% for, 28.7% against, with 12% leaving the question blank on the ballot. The Act authorizes the sale of state bonds up to $4.2 billion to fund environmental protection, natural restoration, resiliency, and clean energy projects.

Turnout slightly lower than predicted

According to data from the New York State Board of Elections, Dutchess County has 214,975 who are registered to vote. Based on information at the county's Board of Elections website, approximately 113,000 participated in the Nov. 8 General Election, or about 52% of eligible voters. This number was slightly lower than the average in years with gubernatorial races, according to DC Republican Commissioner Erik Haight, who was interviewed for this paper last month. The norm for such elections is about 60%, Haight noted.

Local hero recognized with plaque at junior high school

Trabucco was 26 years old. Tom Masch, a local veteran, saw the Major's Hometown Heroes Banner and decided the Dutchess native needed to be recognized and remembered. He contacted Wappingers Central School District officials. The idea for the plaque came about and was okayed.

"I didn't want his name to be another name [forgotten]," said Masch.

According to documentation from Kane, Trabucco was killed in action near Haldenwang, Germany in his P-51 Mustang aircraft. His aircraft was named "Dotty."

"I would like to say that Major Trabucco is a well honored and remembered through his children and grandchildren. I hope that other veterans are remembered in the same way," said student Annalise Froedden, who is with Student Government.

What did she learn from the ceremony, Annalise said, "I learned that many veterans sacrificed themselves for the good of the county. Veterans like Major Trabucco decided to put the lives of many before the life of one."

Trabucco was "a well-known track star," according to the documentation. He held the Dutchess County Cross Country Championship for two years, 1934-1935. He attended Wappingers Central School District from 1932-1936. He was enrolled at the former high school location, which was on Mesier Ave. He earned 3 letters in the sports of baseball, basketball and track.

In the yearbook, it is quoted of Trabucco was "handsome, late to everything, would never be without a dancing partner and wanted to be the world's greatest athlete."

Trabucco attended and graduated from the University of Purdue. He joined the Army Air Corps in 1939. According to documentation, Trabucco was assigned to the 435th Fighter Squadron, which was part of the 479th Fighter Group.

According to documentation, Trabucco, out of the 700 men from this community that enlisted in the service, achieved the highest rank.

Masch said being at the ceremony he wanted to make sure everything went right.

"The ceremony did go right," he said. He thanked school district officials and board members, Dutchess County Legislator Joseph Cavaccini and Wappinger Town Supervisor Richard Thurston. He also noted the excellent work done by ABC Plaques in East Fishkill on the

Notes from the Town of Wappinger Supervisor

Honoring Our Heroes

Last week our community held four moving memorial events to honor our Veterans. On Friday, November 11th, we gathered together in the morning at the Major Joseph McDonald MIA/POW Park in the Village of Wappingers Falls and in the afternoon we met in the Town Hall of the Town of Wappinger. On Thursday, November 10th, Roy C. Ketcham held its annual Veterans ceremony at the High School, and a couple of hours later we met at the Wappingers Junior High School. We assembled together to thank all soldiers who have served our nation, living or deceased, but most especially our living heroes. We celebrated and honored our Veterans for their patriotism, love of country, and unquestioning service and sacrifice for the common good of the people of the United States of America.

Supervisor Richard Thurston

some of the banners of our Hometown Heroes. We hope that those banners and many more banners installed throughout the Town on utility poles, will ensure that our veterans will never be forgotten. When you stop by Town Hall, please take a moment to view the banners and to pay your respect. We continue to accept applications for Hometown Heroes banners and also Memorial Bricks (to be installed at Schlathaus Park).

As often as possible, please stop for a moment or two to recognize in your own way all Veterans and their families among us who have been a part of the great fellowship we call the U.S. military—our Veterans, active-duty service members, guardsmen and reservists. It is their service and sacrifices that have kept our country safe and free.

In the words of John F. Kennedy, "as we express our gratitude, we must never forget that the highest appreciation is not to utter words, but to live by them." As new generations step forward, some, too, will make the ultimate sacrifice defending our great nation. We hope and pray that those sacrifices will be minimized, but sacrifices there will be.

God bless you all, God bless our Veterans, and God bless the United States of America.

Major's plaque.

"Major Trabucco was your typical All-American boy who gave his life for his country," remarked Kane.

Trabucco's body was returned to the United States in 1950, it was stated. He is buried in Wappingers Falls in St. Mary's Cemetery.

The Wappinger Town Board dedicated a second plaque to honor the Major on November 14. It will be installed in the Wappinger Town Hall, according to Wappinger Supervisor Richard Thurston.

Annalise said she would tell veterans "thank you for serving our country and putting your lives ahead of others. You are all good people and I hope you are all remembered forever."

During the morning ceremony on Veterans Day, led by Commander Raymond Chase Jr. at the Major Joseph McDonald MIA/POW Park, the Village recognized Thomas Martin Lynch J., who served in the US Navy during WWII, 1943-1946. Commander Chase presented a wonderful, framed collection of medals to Thomas Lynch's three daughters and son. The day before, on November 10th, at the Junior High, we honored Major Thomas F. Trabucco, who died on March 1, 1945 while flying "Dotty," his P-51 fighter, to stop Nazi aggression. Thanks to Veteran Tom Masch and the Wappingers Central School District, a memorial plaque was unveiled in the Major's honor in the presence of his family. On Monday night, November 14th, at the beginning of our Town Board meeting, we dedicated a second replica plaque to be installed in Town Hall.

On Veterans Day we also renewed our Town's very deep commitment to our ongoing outreach to our veterans. Our Town Board proudly sponsors our Veterans Advisory Group, chaired by Veteran Kevin Hathorn. A special thanks to Kevin and our Board for this commitment.

As we continue to pay homage both to the members of our Armed Forces who have gone before us and to those who are still defending our nation, we display, within the Town's Board meeting room,

Renegades add a 'sweet' alternative identity for 2023

By Rich Thomaselli

The Hudson Valley Renegades minor league baseball team has been the Hudson Valley Renegades since June of 1994, when the franchise relocated here from Erie, Pa.

And, now armed with a 25-year agreement with Dutchess County and a player development contract with the New York Yankees, they'll continue to be the Renegades for the foreseeable future.

Except for a few occasions, that is.

The High Class A Renegades have announced that they will adopt an alternative identity for four games during the 2023 season and will be known as the Hudson Valley Cider Donuts, complete with new logo and uniforms, for those contests.

The name is a nod to fall in the Hudson Valley, its plethora of apple farms, and the seasonal favorite of cider donuts found almost everywhere.

"It is impossible to think about the fall season in the Hudson Valley without thinking of the smell and taste of warm apple cider donuts," Tyson

Jeffers, General Manager of the Renegades, said in a statement. "The Hudson Valley is Cider Donuts country, and it's time to share this fall delicacy with the world. Let's ride!"

A full line of merchandise is available for sale online at the Renegades Team Store, and the identity will be integrated for all home games at the ballpark. Additionally, a new mascot, Dusty the Donut, has also been introduced to the Renegades family.

Invented in New York in the mid-20th century, apple cider donuts are synonymous with fall in the Hudson Valley, with over 30 apple orchards and two dozen cideries calling the region home. The standard recipe for cider donuts includes adding apple cider and fall spices to a cake donut batter. After cooking, they are finished with a coating of cinnamon sugar to make a perfect sweet fall treat.

The first 500 fans to purchase Cider Donuts gear will receive two (2) free tickets to the first Cider Donuts game on Saturday, June 3 when the Renegades take on the Aberdeen IronBirds. Dates for the

Exciting new 4-H programs gain interest

Several new programs started this month, increasing the opportunities for more youth to participate in 4-H.

SP-IN (short for SPecial INterest) Monthly is a series of short programs on a variety of subjects. These programs are open to 4-H'ers and non-members.

The series will start in December with "The Science of Pies" where kids will learn about culinary science while baking holiday pies. Next will be an "Intro to Robotics," and then "The Buzzing World of Bees." Kids can sign up for one or all sessions.

"Equine Explorers" launches this week offering an incredible selection of activities to engage and teach kids about horses, ponies and all things equine.

As the year progresses, they will learn about horse health and care, take trips and have the chance to compete in horse bowl and hippology competitions. This program does not include riding, so is affordable for all.

"Dutchess County Dairy" will be run by 4-H Educator Emma Jenks. 4-H members of our existing Dairy Clubs will come together with other youth who are interested in the dairy industry but don't have access to cows yet. The first activity is to take part in the NYS Ag in the Classroom "The Dairy Innovation Challenge."

For information on any of the above activities please contact us. We welcome new members as well as volunteers who would enjoy helping these kids be their best selves.

 We are busy elves here in the Town of Wappinger Recreation Department! Coming up on Saturday, December 3 is not one, but two exciting events!

First, we will be hosting our second annual Holiday Craft Fair at Wappinger Town Hall. That's right - a mere three weeks after our Fall Craft Fair, our talented local artisans are back to give you a second opportunity to get some holiday shopping done (and self-shopping, too!). The fair runs 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Town Hall at 20 Middlebush Road.

Then, head on over to Schlathaus Park for the annual Tree Lighting, which happens at 5 p.m.! Grab a hot drink and donut and await Santa's arrival as the jolly man will arrive to light our beautiful Christmas tree. I can almost hear the sleigh bells now...

So, make the Town of Wappinger the place to be on December 3rd!

Seniors, the sign ups began on Monday for the annual Senior Holiday Luncheon, which will take place on Wednesday, December 14 at Villa Borghese. You must sign up in person and can register yourself and a spouse/partner. Must show proof of Town of Wappinger residency. Sign up Monday - Friday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Celebrate women's heart health

The funds raised at the Go Red for Women Celebration will let the American Heart Association continue to invest in research - and expand the research that is done both by women and about women, Corcoran emphasized.

Organizers expect more than 300 attendees at this year's event.

The 2022 celebration will have a different feel to it.

"This year, instead of one survivor speaker, we have a panel of six people who will speak during the program. Three of them are survivors who will share their story," explained Corcoran. "The other three are medical experts, and they will be able to provide information and expertise to help our audience understand more about cardiovascular disease, how they can prevent it, and how they should respond if someone has heart disease or stroke."

Patient advocate Yvonne Valladares will discuss the rare heart defect she was born with; Danielle Allen, a sudden cardiac survivor and social worker will speak about her journey; Yoga teacher Allison Graff will speak on being a heart and stroke survivor. Medical experts speaking during the event will be Dr. Aarti Campo who is a cardiologist with Hudson Valley Cardiovascular Practice, P.C & Nuance Health; Dr. Sandeep Joshi, a cardiologist with The Heart Center and Tim Mitzel, an emergency service paramedic with Mobile Life Services.

"I am excited about the passion of our leadership teams this year and how they have infiltrated the community to have the biggest impact," said Danielle Schuka, senior development director for the American Heart Association in the Hudson Valley. "This year's event is going to be more interactive and tug a little harder on the heart strings."

Corcoran said, "We're also excited that we hosted a BetterU program this year. For the past 12 weeks, 11 women have met weekly for informational experiences, and worked out regularly at Gold's Gym. We'll highlight them at the event."

During the event there will be health screenings, health information and the annual silent auction. The silent auction will feature the donated "Purse-Onalities," said Corcoran, which are from local business leaders and businesses.

"We'll have tasty bites from the CIA for participants to enjoy," she noted.

As for the message Corcoran hopes to impart to attendees, she said, "I hope that every woman leaves this event ready to make her own health her No. 1 priority. Women do so much for everyone else, but it's critical that we invest in our own health first. Heart disease is the No. 1 killer of women, and we need to change that."

The CIA is located at 1946 Campus Drive in Hyde Park.

Poughkeepsie native serves aboard USS Thomas Hudner

-Courtesy photo

Petty Officer 2nd Class Steven Johnson, a native of Poughkeepsie is serving the U.S. Navy aboard USS Thomas Hudner.

Johnson joined the Navy five years ago. "I joined the military because I wanted to travel and see the world," said Johnson.

Today, Johnson serves as a boatswain's mate.

Boatswain's mates supervise the maintenance of their ship inside and out. They stand watch as their ship's lookout; repair, maintain and stow equipment; train, direct and supervise their ship's maintenance personnel; assist as search and rescue swimmers; operate sound-powered communication equipment; serve as a member of damage control, emergency and security alert teams; participate in Navy ceremonies; transfer supplies between ships while at sea; operate small boats, tugs, barges and other small craft; assist with flight deck and amphibious operations; serve as flight deck crew during helicopter operations; supervise deck crew in cleaning, painting and maintaining the ship; direct boat crews in landing and rescue operations; and teach seamanship.

"My favorite thing about being a boatswain's mate is getting to lead people through difficult evolutions," said Johnson. "The things that I do are important, but can be really difficult. I enjoy being able to guide people through those events."

Johnson is proud of both personal and professional accomplishments achieved while serving.

"While in the Navy, I've had the wonderful opportunity to become a father," said Johnson. "I've also worked hard enough to advance in rank to petty officer second class, which I am very proud of."

Since joining the Navy, Johnson relies on skills and values learned in Poughkeepsie to succeed.

"Where I grew up, I had to learn how to adapt to my environment," said Johnson. "That rings true in the Navy too. I never settle, and I work hard, even when it's easier not to."

This mindset has continued to help Johnson while serving aboard USS Thomas Hudner. USS Thomas Hudner is an Arleigh Burke-class destroyer and the first ship in the Navy to be named after naval aviator and Navy captain, Thomas J. Hudner Jr.

According to Navy officials, Hudner received the Medal of Honor from President Harry S. Truman for displaying uncommon valor during an attack on his wingman, the first African American naval aviator to fly in combat, Ensign Jesse L. Brown. During the Battle of Chosin Reservoir in the Korean War, Brown's aircraft crashed. Seeing this, Hudner purposefully crashed his own aircraft to join the injured Brown and provide aid. After receiving recognition for his heroism, Hudner remained on active duty, completing an additional 22 years of naval service during which his accomplishments include flying 27 combat missions in the Korean War and serving as the executive officer aboard the USS Kitty Hawk during the Vietnam War.

Serving in the Navy means Johnson is part of a team that is taking on new importance in America's focus on rebuilding military readiness, strengthening alliances and reforming business practices in support of the National Defense Strategy.

"The Navy maintains freedom and safe navigation of the sea," said Johnson.

As a member of the U.S. Navy, Johnson is part of a service tradition providing unforgettable experiences through leadership development, world affairs and humanitarian assistance. Their efforts will have a lasting effect around the globe and for generations of sailors who follow.

"Serving in the Navy means everything to me," added Johnson. "It's how I provide for my family and keep them all safe at home."

A surprising side to Samuel F. B. Morse

By Bill Jeffway

The fact that the exhibition “Fertile Ground: the Hudson Valley Animal Paintings of Caroline Clowes” is taking place at Poughkeepsie’s Locust Grove, the former home of Samuel F. B. Morse (1791-1872), the inventor of the telegraph and Morse code, might at face value seem to involve the story of two persons in very different spheres. Although both are local, one is a woman of art. The other is a man of science.

But the historian Allan Nevins writes in a biography of Morse called “The American Leonardo,” - “Had [Morse] never touched a piece of mechanism, he would be remembered as an eminent portrait-painter and the founder of the National Academy of Design.”

There is a wonderful symmetry and coincidence to the fact that Clowes was born on March 3, 1838, two months after Morse conducted his first public presentation of the telegraph having just put down canvas and brushes for good.

Clowes (1838-1904) was a full generation younger than Morse. She benefited tremendously from the National Academy of Design, which was founded in 1826, and led by Morse as president until 1845.

The exhibition of Clowes’s work at the Academy started in 1865 and was facilitated by her private teacher Frederick Rondel. This was a watershed moment that quickly raised her profile nationally.

The Academy was a formal place of learning, and a way for Clowes to connect with collectors and other artists.

In addition, Clowes benefited from the changes in the field of art that the Academy had brought about. Unlike Morse, who trained in Europe as any serious artist would at the time, Clowes did not go to Europe, nor did she need to. Given that a central goal of the Academy was to create a truly American style of art, certainly Clowes’s elaboration on the uniquely American Hudson River School style, shows that Morse and Clowes had a shared vision on this fundamental concept.

While studying religion, philosophy, mathematics and science at Yale, Morse earned money by painting portraits on the side. He settled in London and was accepted into the prestigious Royal Academy. His better known portraits include John Adams, James Monroe, and the Marquis de Lafayette.

Historical paintings

Morse preferred to paint earnest historical paintings that could educate the public; but his works of that type were not well received. Among the better-known examples of this type is his 1822 “House of Representatives,” a seven by eleven-foot painting of the interior of the chamber carefully depicting specific individuals. His 1833 “Gallery of the Louvre” is a six by nine-foot oil on canvas that accurately depicts 38 paintings such as da Vinci’s “Mona Lisa.” Both failed to gain attention or result in any income for Morse. As a result, he had to rely on portrait painting for income. His painting career collapsed when he was turned down for a commission to paint a historical painting for the U.S. Capitol building in 1837.

Even with his brushes and canvas firmly left behind in December of 1837, Morse maintained an artistic eye for the rest of his life. In a trip to Paris in 1839, he met Louis Daguerre, the inventor of the daguerreotype which was the early photographic process that created and reflected enormous detail, albeit in a somewhat other-worldly hazy glass, rather than paper. Morse was attracted to the idea as an aid to painting portraits. Rather than seeing this emerging technology as a threat to art as many did at the time, he thought it could be useful. He is credited with the earliest experiments with the daguerreotype in the United States.

From the proceeds of his inventing the telegraph, Morse bought the Locust Grove estate in 1847, and started a process of remodeling (see photograph) and became a visible member of Poughkeepsie society.

In August of 1855, Morse stopped in the photo studio of Samuel Walker, which was located on Garden Street, a short distance north of Main Street. Samuel L. Walker was one of the country’s most highly regarded and accomplished daguerrists. Walker married a Poughkeepsie woman and together they raised their children in a home that was also on Garden Street.

Walker reports in an advertisement published in the local newspaper in 1855 that Morse looked at his daguerreotypes and declared that if Walker had entered a recent contest for the best daguerreotype, where Morse was a judge, Walker would have won the top prize of a silver pitcher. Walker claims that he did not know about the contest, despite it being published through the leading national photographic journal at the time. In any case, what is revealed here is that Morse was playing an important role in national conversations about early photography in 1855.

Morse was named a Trustee by Matthew Vassar in the January 1861 founding documents of what was initially called the Vassar Female College. The role was far from ceremonial. Much work needed to be done to establish the College to the standards Vassar expected in a society exhausted by the Civil War, and suspicious of risks that would come with the higher education of women.

Greatest impact

Arguably Morse’s greatest impact was through his being one of five men on the Arts committee, who were charged with establishing the first of its kind for an American college or university: an art department to teach students, and a gallery and collection of art of its own. The committee succeeded in bringing in Henry Van Ingen, the Dutch artist who was teaching in Rochester at the time, to lead the initiatives in art.

Van Ingen quickly became a friend and collaborator with Clowes. Letters show that he regularly brought students to Clowes’s home and studio in LaGrange.

Morse died in 1872, but we find connections between Clowes and Morse’s widow, Sarah Griswold Morse. Caroline Clowes was on a committee of five who created the inaugural art exhibition at the newly opened Vassar Brothers Institute

A permanent exhibition of paintings by Samuel F. B. Morse is open at Locust Grove on weekends. If you visit Locust Grove on a Saturday or Sunday from 1-5 p.m. through Dec. 30, you will be able to see both the Clowes exhibition, and the Morse exhibition.

on Vassar Street. The building stands today among the buildings of the Cunneen-Hackett Center.

Mrs. Morse ensured that Samuel F.B. Morse was well represented. A painting by Morse, called “St. Francis,” was exhibited. A portrait of Morse by George A. Baker, and a statuette of Morse by an unspecified artist were featured. Two paintings from the Morse family collection, one by F. Hilden and one by Oswald Achenbach, were loaned.

The weaving of Morse’s artistic and scientific careers is beautifully revealed when we learn that the major exhibition of his paintings at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York City in 1932, was prompted by the 100th anniversary of his 1832 trip on a ship from France to New York where he conceived of the idea of the telegraph.

Generally speaking, when federal censuses are taken every ten years, the occupation of the counted person is provided, as stated, by the person being counted. We find that in the 1850 federal census taken in Poughkeepsie, Samuel Morse said his occupation was “historical painter.” Being a historical painter was, of course, his very early dream, a dream he very quickly came to find was not working out for him. Perhaps he was stating an aspiration that remained buried deep inside him. If he had said “portrait painter” we could understand why, given his success in this field.

Like every good historical investigation, we do not get “final answers,” but instead get “better questions.”

You are invited to see the paintings of Caroline Clowes at Locust Grove Estate, South Road, Poughkeepsie through December 30, Wednesday to Sunday, 1 pm to 5 pm, except Thanksgiving Day, Christmas Eve, and Christmas Day. The permanent exhibition of the works of Samuel Morse can be seen any Saturday or Sunday in that timeframe if you would like to see both. Both are free of charge.

Entertaining ideas

Tips for holiday gatherings that won't crush your budget.

One thing I love about my life is the people I am blessed to know and interact with, most of whom share my passion for food. It's pretty amazing that all of my closest friends from high school have careers in the food industry, something I'm not sure we knew back then. Today our friendship is still a strong and loving one, and getting together with them is always a pleasure. We're always there for each other, never seem to run out of things to talk about, and the food is always fantastic! It's something I am beyond grateful for, even if we don't see each other as much as we'd like.

Gearing up for all the holidays, it's no wonder I'm thinking about them so much. Great friends are family in a special way. They know you and love you anyway! For many of us, the holidays are centered around getting together to share a meal or a nosh, whether it's a family dinner at the table or a more informal party where everyone mingles and grazes. And while it might be more important than ever to do that, it's no secret that higher prices have some worried that it will be harder to celebrate the season.

I did some research and found that even with food costs high, many people still plan to entertain for the holidays, they're just more cautious and money-conscious than usual. Almost half of the people polled said they will still serve a traditional Thanksgiving feast, while some are looking for less expensive alternatives rather than paring down on the number of guests. Most are shopping earlier to stock up on staples over time when they're on sale, to avoid big expenses all at once.

These are practical approaches that warm my heart because, to me, it shows we're not willing to let go of traditions or forego spending time with the ones we love, the very point of the season. Maybe we spent too much time apart because we had to, but that made us more aware of what we had to give up: physical closeness and the inherent value of gathering around a table. In the recent past we had to find new ways to celebrate, and for many it was a true sacrifice, but I think it made us more appreciative of what we hold dear, and that's a good thing.

So it's important to us to come together, especially for the holidays, and we certainly should if we're able. Celebrations don't have to break the bank or be whittled down, though. There are plenty of ways to entertain creatively and on a budget that won't feel like sacrificing. In fact, I think they might just make everyone's holidays merrier because the focus will be on what we have rather than what we don't.

Start with a set budget. Cash, I know, isn't really "the thing" any more but in this case I think it should be. Take out what you can easily afford to spend on food, plan your menus accordingly and buy wisely. When it's gone it's gone, so you aren't likely to overspend.

Know your guests. Offer meatless options for vegetarians (which are cheaper, to boot!), make sure there are kid-friendly choices and be aware of anyone who is gluten-free. These can be challenging but there are lots of options out there to accommodate those who will surely appreciate your efforts on their behalf.

Make as much as you can yourself. Prepared foods may be infinitely easier, but you pay extra for that. Find recipes for a crowd that you can make ahead of time from inexpensive ingredients: a tray of lasagna (about $2 per serving), pot of chili (about $1 per serving) or flatbreads with a variety of toppings.

If these choices seem unimpressive, I beg to differ. It's all about presentation. You can set a pretty table and serve up anything in style. Get creative, set a mood and have fun! Use your best dishes, cut flatbreads into small manageable pieces and arrange on a platter, serve chili and soups in pretty bowls and garnish with fresh herbs and a dollop of cream or drizzle of oil.

Do as much as you can ahead of time, whether it's prepping ingredients or cooking a roast the day before, to cut back on stress, get you out of the kitchen faster and insure you can enjoy the party, too. Some things, like pasta sauces, soups and chili, even benefit from being made in advance: the flavors meld and you just need to reheat and serve with appropriate garnishes and go-withs, like cornbread or hot rolls.

If you're looking to serve a meal with meat as the centerpiece, opt for less expensive - but still impressive - cuts. Bone-in roasts require low and slow cooking and are perfect for making ahead of time, while a tender spoon roast is just as delicious, if not more flavorful, than filet mignon and a fraction of the price. Pork roasts often cost less than beef and roast chicken is certainly cheaper than turkey.

I could go on and on, but the point is we need to get creative when it comes to entertaining, especially now. The real reason we celebrate is the people we choose to do it with and, with a budget, a pleasant atmosphere and some good home cooking you really have all you need to welcome loved ones into your home and feed them well. Let's not dwell on what we can't do. Let's embrace what we can, get cooking and just enjoy our precious time together. Enjoy!

Legal Notices

The Board of Fire Commissioners of the Hughsonville Fire District, Town of Wappinger, County of Dutchess, in a resolution adopted Wednesday October 26, 2022, approved two amendments to the defined benefit length of service award program effective January 1, 2023: (1) increase the monthly service award from $20 to $30 for all years of service credit earned after January 1, 2023; and (2) to extend the maximum years of service credit for which a participating active volunteer firefighter may earn a service award from 30 to 40 years, thereby increasing the maximum lifetime monthly benefit that could be earned by a participating firefighter to $1,200, provided all service credit is earned after January 1, 2023. The program was established for active volunteer firefighters of the Hughsonville fire department and will continue to be administered by the fire district. This year US News and World Report named Jeff Feldman the Best Lawyers® 2023 Medical Malpractice Law - Defendants "Lawyer of the Year" in White Plains, NY. Recognition is based entirely on peer review and only a single lawyer in each practice area and community is honored with a "Lawyer of the Year" award.

This marks the third year that Jeff is receiving this significant distinction. Jeff is appreciative that his peers felt strongly enough about his abilities and integrity to honor him with this prestigious award.

Remember—don't risk losing a case you should have won or take the chance of not receiving the damages you're entitled to because you didn't hire the right attorney. Consultations are free and always with an attorney. Call Feldman, Kleidman, Coffey & Sappe today.
